BORAH TO VOTE FOR GOLD BILL

Treasury-Postoffice Supply Bill Passed By House

DEBATE OVER CONTRACTS BREAKS OUT

40 MILLION SUBSIDY

House Fails to Amend Section Providing Over 50 Millions for Contracts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The House today passed the $820,693,270 treasury postoffice supply bill after a heated debate over continuing appropriations for ocean and air mail contracts.

There was no record vote.

Charges that many contracts were obtained by fraud were made by Rep. Chase, Repn., Minn., but the House failed to amend the section providing more than $50,000,000 for continuing such contracts.

Rep. Arnold, Dem., Ill., in charge of the bill, said that the contract appropriations were necessary and if reduced might make the government liable for breach of contract.

The bill carries $14,000,000 for domestic air mail contracts, and $37,500,000 for foreign air and ships mail contracts. Arnold admitted that at least $40,250,000 of the total amounted to actual subsidies.

The bill appropriates $149,842,330 for maintenance and operation of the treasury and $670,850,940 for the postoffice department.

Reductions from budget estimates were made in appropriations for the coast guard, customs service and for other agencies affected by the repeal situation.

The measure was based on continuance of the three cent postage rate during the next fiscal year. It was the fourth departmental supply bill to pass the house this session. Others were, independent offices, navy, interior.

FANCIFUL FICTION OF WAR SUPPRESSED

TOKIO, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Publication of a fanciful fiction story describing an imaginary war between Japan and a foreign power, was suppressed today after conferences among government leaders, the United Press learned.

The story was said to have been written by the author of similar fiction seized by U. S. customs authorities at Honolulu. In the confiscated pamphlets, issued as a supplement to a popular Japanese magazine, a war between the United States and Japan for possession of Hawaii was described, with the Japanese victorious.

BONDS IN GREAT DEMAND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—This week's billion dollar government security issue was oversubscribed by nearly five times, latest reports to Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau showed today.

The $500,000,000 of 13 1-2 months two and one half per cent treasury notes drew total subscriptions of more than $3,415,000,000. Subscriptions for the $500,000,000 of 7 1-2 month one and one half per cent treasury certificates were more than 1,355,000,000 making subscriptions for the two issues, $4,770,000,000.

HOOVER PLANS TO MEET WITH PARTY LEADERS

Former President to Make Trip to New York Within Next Few Weeks

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Former President Hoover has advised friends here that he plans a trip to New York City within the next few weeks. It will be his first visit to the east since he left the White House last March and retired to his home at Palo Alto, Calif.

Friends said Mr. Hoover while in New York would devote himself principally to private affairs, which are understood to include the possibility of arranging for publication of a series of articles.

Although Chairman Everett Sanders of the Republican National committee said he had not been advised of Mr. Hoover's trip, it was believed the former president while in New York probably would take the opportunity to confer with party leaders.

While there is considered no possibility that Mr. Hoover again will seek the presidency in 1936, he still is the titular leader of the party. Republicans leaders who were close to him during his administration are expected to seek his advice on means of consolidating the party forces for the congressional elections this fall and perhaps take stock of the outlook for 1936.

Mr. Hoover, although staying rather close to Palo Alto except for a trip to the Chicago exposition, has kept in touch with political affairs. Several party leaders, including former Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills, have visited him in California from time to time, and his former secretary, Lawrence Richey, has remained in Washington.

STATE REGULATION OF SALES ASSAILED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26. —(UP)—City and county officials of California seeking a policy of "local control" of the liquor business in California set out today to draft their own constitutional amendment to carry out their views.

A resolution adopted at a meeting of 150 of the officials here authorized Supervisor James McSheehy, San Francisco, to appoint a committee of ten to draft the proposed amendment. It would include provisions for local regulation and local collection of fees. No mention was made of a provision that a community might vote itself dry. The officials shied away from "local option" discussions during the entire session.

DECLARE RANSOM IS PAID TO KIDNAPERS

ST. PAUL, Jan. 26.—(UP)—An air of fear and anxiety was gone today from the household of Edward G. Bremer, 36, kidnaped banker, but police and relatives maintained absolute secrecy in regard to late developments.

As the result of developments of the past 24 hours, both police and federal agents made public statements indicating that they were not interfering in any way with the efforts of Adolph Bremer, the victim's father and a personal friend of President Roosevelt, to negotiate the safe return of his son for $200,000 ransom.

Reports persisted however that the ransom had been paid and that Bremer would be returned to his family before Saturday night.

REELECTION OF HIRAM JOHNSON IS PREDICTED

Postmaster General Farley Declares California to Return Senator

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Sen. Hiram Johnson, Repn. Calif., one of the Progressives who bolted to President Roosevelt in 1932 will be relected to the senate this year, Postmaster General Farley predicted today.

Johnson's political troubles have multiplied in the past year. A tremendous shift of registrations from the Republican to the Democratic party in California in 1932, placed under the latter label the thousands of independents who consistently have returned the veteran Progressive to office.

It is the opinion of many well informed persons here that Johnson would have difficulty in obtaining the Republican nomination this year because the party in California now largely is controlled by the Hoover forces.

"I'm not familiar with the political situation in California so far as the election of a senator is concerned," Farley told questioners today. "But, pers nally, I know enough about California as a state to believe it will, of course, return Senator Johnson to the senate."

California Democrats sometime ago invited Johnson to enter their party primary this year. Johnson has kept his own counsel but his friends doubt if he would change party labels even if that were the only alternative to defeat. But Johnson could run as an independent and with the administration benediction implied in Farley's statement today probably would be nominated. Once in

U. S. MAY RECOGNIZE VATICAN, REPORTED

ROME, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Although Vatican officials declined to comment today, the rumor was widespread through Pope Pius's domains that there may be a renewal of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Holy See.

The international "legality" of such a movement was recognized in the fact that since the United States last had diplomatic intercourse with the Holy See, which ceased in 1867, the temporal power of the pope has been established over a recognized territory, and he is regarded as a real sovereign, exercising a physical control over subjects within his state.

GIRL FATALLY HURT AS AUTO STRIKES TRUCK

Companion Held in County Jail on Investigation of Drunk Driving

FATALLY INJURED when a light sedan crashed into the rear of an oil truck and trailer in a dense fog near Huntington Beach at 11:45 last night, Miss Muriel Frazier, 17, 1347 Olive street, Long Beach, died this morning in St. Joseph's hospital and her companion, W. S. Connor, 36 also of Long Beach, is being held in the county jail on investigation of drunken driving.

The death of Miss Frazier was the fourth in Orange county this year from traffic accidents. She suffered a fractured skull and cut throat and died at 5:15 a. m., five and one-half hours after the terrific crash on the coast highway west of the Huntington Beach city limits.

It is not known definitely whether Connor or Miss Frabier was driving the car which hit the truck, driven by Jack Buckenham, of Long Beach, driver for the Buckeye Tank line. Connor was badly cut and bruised and was given first aid treatment by a physician in the beach city. He was later taken to the beach jail after being given a sobriety test by police. The girl was taken to the hospital in an ambulance.

Coroner Earl Abbey announced that he would hold an inquest tomorrow at 10 a. m. from the Dixon mortuary in Huntington Beach.

A Newport Beach woman was slightly hurt in a collision in Costa Mesa yesterday morning. Cars driven by Floyd Jones, Newport Beach, and Laura Teter, Corona Del Mar, crashed at Seventeenth and Santa Ana avenues with Mrs. Jones suffering injuries.

SCIENTIST ATTACKS CURSE OF PHAROAHS

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The myth of the "curse of the Pharoahs" was thoroughly exploded today by a scientist directly connected with discovery of the King Tut-Ankh-Amen tomb.

Herbert E. Winlock, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who grew rather tired of hearing and reading about the mystic "curse" overshadowing those who had participated in opening the tomb in Egypt in 1923 did the exploding.

He presented documentary and personal evidence that of the 40 persons directly concerned with the opening of the tomb only six have died—two of old age, two had been in poor health all their lives, and one possibly a suicide.

SAYS LARGE NAVY CHEAP INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The United States should construct a full treaty strength navy to provide "an adequate first line defense" and to protect its sea commerce in event of war, acting Secretary of Navy Henry L. Roosevelt told the ninth women's patriotic conference on national defense today.

"My position is clear," Roosevelt said, "I am for a navy second to none within our treaty commitments; a navy built to the last rivet and the last gun—manned to the last seaman and marine. This is not because I want war. It is because I, and the service I have the honor to represent, want to avoid war."

He termed an adequate navy the "cheapest national insurance."

4 Gangsters Arrested By Town Police

BULLETIN

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(UP)—John Dillinger and three members of his middle western gang, accused of a score of crimes ranging from murder to robbery and jail breaking, were arraigned here today and Justice C. V. Budlong fixed bail at $100,000 each. Four women arrested with them were also arraigned, and bail for them set at $500 each on charges of being accessories.

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(UP)—Fifty deputies, mounted machine guns around the Pima county pail today, guarding four of the midwest's most desperate gangster-killers, captured by a small town police force last night.

In the jail, nonchalant, expensively groomed, were John Dillinger, leader, and Russell Clark, Charles Makley and Harry Pierpont, accused of a score of robberies and murders, a prison break and a jail delivery in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. They had eluded picked metropolitan detectives only to fall prisoners in a "hick" town.

From them police took five machine guns, three of them "Tommy" guns and two "tank" models equipped to fire .351 calibre cartridges; numerous pistols, 12,000 rounds of amunition, six bullet proof veets, $26,000 in cash and $12,000 in jewels.

Meanwhile officers searched the city for two other members of the gang believed still in hiding.

With the men were arrested four women companions, Mary Kindler, Opal Long, Ann Martin and Madge Retzger. Second only in importance to Dillinger, ranked by police as "No. 1 public enemy" since the imprisonment of Al Capone, was the capture of Pierpont, deadly "trigger-man" whom Chicago police characterized as "kill crazy."

No Resistance

Dillinger was captured as he walked into an expensive house he had rented. "Well, I guess you win," he said as police thrust a sub-machine gun in his back and the desperado's hand dropped from his shoulder holster.

"What do you want?" an officer inquired, stalling for time as Dillinger approached the house.

"I guess I'm in the wrong place," Dillinger replied.

"No you're not!" the officer said as two other policemen came from hiding, frustrating the bandit's reach for his gun.

Dillinger's identity was revealed when he was subjected to routine fingerprinting. Mark Robbins, identification expert, thumbed over his files. There was a picture of Dillinger. He compared it with "Frank Sullivan," tourist. Sullivan had a scar on his left wrist; another on his upper lip, concealed by a mustache. So had Dillinger. Then the fingerprints were compared and Dillinger admitted his identity.

GEORGE CREEL IN SABOTAGE CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—George Creel, state administrator of the NRA, was en route to Washington today after making charges of "sabotage" against the president and his CWA program in connection with alleged political interference with CWA work.

"Political interference" was given by Harrold English as the reason for his resignation as head of the Civil Works Administration here. English resigned after having served but nine days since replacing Charles C. Frye.

Creel said:

"Enemies have been on guard instead of friends of the president's plan, and through the CWA they have pushed a campaign of sabotage against him."

WHITE HOUSE PHYSICIANS FIND ROOSEVELT GAINING IN HEALTH DESPITE GRIND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—President Roosevelt is thriving on the grind that shattered the health of his predecessors, a checkup revealed today.

In proving the exception to the rule, Mr. Roosevelt's friends attributed his amazing vitality to the fact that he exercises daily, and, more important, that he also has the happy facility of throwing aside the cares and worries of his high position once decisions are are made. He is good-natured.

After nearly a year of work that would have floored even a Dempsey, the president has been found by White House physicians to be in the pink of condition physically, practically unchanged from last March 4 when he assumed office.

Much of this, they laid to his daily swim in the White House pool, that was built with funds subscribed by admirers soon after he took office.

Scarcely a day goes by that Mr. Roosevelt does not plunge into the tank for a half hour of vigorous paddling that leaves him refreshed after strenuous hours and in fit condition to tackle administration problems at night.

In addition, the president goes through a course of calisthenics similar to the treatment given regularly to the patients of the Warm Springs Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., at which place he is a yearly visitor.

Mr. Roosevelt's exercises are under the supervision of Dr. Ross McIntyre, of the naval hospital here.

Night work has become a habit with the president. Many of his most important conferences on the pressing problems of government are taken up at late hours with his ranking advisers.

S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, BAY OF WHALES, Antarctic, Jan. 26 (Via Mackay Radio)—(UP)—The flagship of the second Byrd Antarctic expedition is again at her precarious berth alongside the high ice flooring of the Bay of Whales and the unloading of supplies for the winter party is once more in full swing.

The high wind that Sunday night forced her to cast off her mooring lines and put to sea subsided shortly after noon yesterday and the ship returned to her former berth an hour later. The starboard boom forward was heaving cargo upon the natural dock. Peraps never in the history of Polar exploration was a prosaic job made more enthralling.

This job of getting winter supplies ashore is always a miserable one, a matter of brute strength, good luck and how much men and dogs are able to stand, but this time there's a sweeping novelty to it.

South of where this ship lies, the frozen flooring of the bay extends to join the swelling undulations of the barrier. Across it runs a road pounded into firmness by the trotting steps of men and dogs and the heavier tread of tractors. Four and a half miles long, it is fifteen feet wide and th. Boston post road is no finer.

To and fro along this road passes a ceaseless transport. Fifteen dog teams trot ahead of sledges piled with boxes. Three tractors haul heavy sledges stacked with gasoline. To the right of it the Pilgrim monoplane takes off at regular half hourly intervals for Little America with its cabin piled with food boxes. There is no stop to it so long as the weather holds. It goes on under the high noon sun and the frostier slow swinging sun of midnight.

MAN BELIEVED TO BE DEAD RETURNS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26.—(UP)—James Zorland Robertson, war veteran found in the navy after being presumed legally dead, was expected to confront his former wife in federal court today as the climax of a modern Enoch Arden case.

The former wife, Mrs. Nora V. Demarre, was expected to defend her action in obtaining a $5,000 war risk judgment in district court on the assumption Robertson had been killed in the World war. He is a government witness.

Neither principal was bound to appear in court. Should they confront each other, it would be their first meeting in 16 years.

AUTO INDUSTRY EMPLOYS OVER 325,000 TODAY

Employment Figures Will Equal Those of 1929 Levels in February

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(UP)—An industrial army of 325,000 workers—100,000 of them recruited from the unemployed of last year—answered automobile factory whistles today as the industry mobilized to meet the largest new car buying wave in five years.

A United Press survey earlier this week disclosed that orders for 1934 cars already have passed the quarter billion dollar mark.

Spurred by this unexpected demand exceeded only in the boom years, the industry is rapidly absorbing its idle labor. Manufacturers report that they are recalling thousands of their former workers every day.

They expect employment figures will approach 1928 and 1929 levels by the end of February.

Assembly line laborers, who have not worked for two or three years, are returning to their all but forgotten tasks. The welfare burden here and in other Michigan cities is proportionately lighter.

The Ford Motor company, leading the production parade because of a month's start on other companies, is working 90,000 men in the Detroit area alone, most of them on assembly lines. The company has between 1500 and 3000 workers in each of ten branch assembly plants scattered throughout the country. Ford workers are turning out 3200 cars daily, five days a week.

PETITION ROLPH TO PROBE KIDNAPING

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Jan. 26.—(UP)—A resolution calling upon Gov. James Rolph, jr., to "investigate the kidnaping and violent treatment" of A. L. Wirin, Los Angeles attorney, at Brawley Tuesday night had been adopted today by a conference here of fifty Methodist bishops from California, western Nevada, Arizona and Honolulu.

The resolution described the kidnaping of Wirin as "one of the most flagrant violations of constitutional law" because Wirin was "exercising the constitutional rights of an American citizen" in defending the free speech of striking workers.

PRINCE AND BRIDE REUNITED

The wealthy American girl told Japanese newspapermen that she was "happy" to have Mdivani help spend the $40,000,000 or more she inherits, according to an interview published in the newspaper Hochi.

The Hochi quoted her as saying that "his expertness in wise spending and in gaining access to the choicest circles is one of the reasons why I married him."

ONLY WAY TO PAY DEBT

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Administration forces swept to victory today on the most vital issue in President Roosevelt's new monetary program.

The senate by a vote of 54 to 36 defeated an effort by conservative Republicans to establish a board of five officials to supervise operation of the President's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Senator Borah, Repn., Ida., said in a senate speech today that he was supporting the Roosevelt monetary bill as "a step in the right direction," and would vote for the measure.

President Roosevelt's dollar revaluation bill was defended in the senate today as essential to any effort to clear America's tremendous burden of public and private debt.

Senator Bailey, Dem., N. C., who speaks but rarely in the senate, said he had been informed by "reliable sources" that the total amount of indebtedness in the country at this time was $220,000,000,000.

"There is not the remotest possibility that the American people can ever pay this debt under the present standards of prices and living," he said.

Answering Republican attacks that took up the entire session yesterday, Bailey said the monetary bill would increase prices to a point where liquidation would be possible.

President Roosevelt already has selected the experts who will guide the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to be established under the monetary bill, it was learned today.

Foreign exchange experts for each of the nations whose currency will figure in operations of the fund are included in the staff, which is said to embrace the best monetary talent available in the United States.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TAKES UP TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The house ways and means committee sought to complete today the tentative draft of the tax revision bill designed to ease the tax burdens of the average man and close loopholes used by big business to avoid large payments.

The committee was expected to decide two remaining points of dispute, concerning whether to abolish present provisions as to exchange and reorganization taxes and whether to eliminate credits for foreign tax payments.

Estimates of how much the bill would add to present income revenues varied. Chairman Hill of the subcommittee which worked on the problem said that despite various changes from the original recommendations "between $270,000,000 and $300,000,000 should be added."

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The myth of the "curse of the Pharoahs" was thoroughly exploded today by a scientist directly connected with discovery of the King Tut-Ankh-Amen tomb.

Herbert E. Winlock, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, who grew rather tired of hearing and reading about the mystic "curse" overshadowing those who had participated in opening the tomb in Egypt in 1923 did the exploding.

He presented documentary and personal evidence that of the 40 persons directly concerned with the opening of the tomb only six have died—two of old age, two had been in poor health all their lives, and one possibly a suicide.

SAYS LARGE NAVY CHEAP INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The United States should construct a full treaty strength navy to provide "an adequate first line defense" and to protect its sea commerce in event of war, acting Secretary of Navy Henry L. Roosevelt told the ninth women's patriotic conference on national defense today.

"My position is clear," Roosevelt said, "I am for a navy second to none within our treaty commitments; a navy built to the last rivet and the last gun—manned to the last seaman and marine. This is not because I want war. It is because I, and the service I have the honor to represent, want to avoid war."

BULLETIN

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(UP)—John Dillinger and three members of his middle western gang, accused of a score of crimes ranging from murder to robbery and jail breaking, were arraigned here today and Justice C. V. Budlong fixed bail at $100,000 each. Four women arrested with them were also arraigned, and bail for them set at $500 each on charges of being accessories.

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(UP)—Fifty deputies mounted machine guns around the Pima county pail today, guarding four of the midwest's most desperate gangster-killers, captured by a small town police force last night.

In the jail, nonchalant, expensively groomed, were John Dillinger, leader, and Russell Clark, Charles Makley and Harry Pierpont, accused of a score of robberies and murders, a prison break and a jail delivery in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. They had eluded picked metropolitan detectives only to fall prisoners in a "hick" town.

From them police took five machine guns, three of them "Tommy" guns and two "tank" models equipped to fire .351 calibre cartridges; numerous pistols, 12,000 rounds of amunition, six bullet proof vests, $26,000 in cash and $12,000 in jewels.

Meanwhile officers searched the city for two other members of the gang believed still in hiding.

With the men were arrested four women companions, Mary Kindler, Opal Long, Ann Martin and Madge Retzger. Second only in importance to Dillinger, ranked by police as "No. 1 public enemy" since the imprisonment of Al Capone, was the capture of Pierpont, deadly "trigger-man" whom Chicago police characterized as "kill crazy."

No Resistance

Dillinger was captured as he walked into an expensive house he had rented. "Well, I guess you win," he said as police thrust a sub-machine gun in his back and the desperado's hand dropped from his shoulder holster.

"What do you want?" an officer inquired, stalling for time as Dillinger approached the house.

"I guess I'm in the wrong place," Dillinger replied.

"No you're not!" the officer said as two other policemen came from hiding, frustrating the bandit's reach for his gun.

Dillinger's identity was revealed when he was subjected to routine fingerprinting. Mark Robbins, identification expert, thumbed over his files. There was a picture of Dillinger. He compared it with "Frank Sullivan," tourist. Sullivan had a scar on his left wrist; another on his upper lip, concealed by a mustache. So had Dillinger. Then the fingerprints were compared and Dillinger admitted his identity.

GEORGE CREEL IN SABOTAGE CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—George Creel, state administrator of the NRA, was en route to Washington today after making charges of "sabotage" against the president and his CWA program in connection with alleged political interference with CWA work.

"Political interference" was given by Harrold English as the reason for his resignation as head of the Civil Works Administration here. English resigned after having served but nine days since replacing Charles C. Frye.

Creel said:

"Enemies have been on guard instead of friends of the president's plan, and through the CWA they have pushed a campaign of sabotage against him."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—President Roosevelt is thriving on the grind that shattered the health of his predecessors, a checkup revealed today.

In proving the exception to the rule, Mr. Roosevelt's friends attributed his amazing vitality to the fact that he exercises daily, and, more important, that he also has the happy facility of throwing aside the cares and worries of his high position once decisions are are made. He is good-natured.

After nearly a year of work that would have floored even a Dempsey, the president has been found by White House physicians to be in the pink of condition physically, practically unchanged from last March 4 when he assumed office.

Much of this, they laid to his daily swim in the White House pool, that was built with funds subscribed by admirers soon after he took office.

Scarcely a day goes by that Mr. Roosevelt does not plunge into the tank for a half hour of vigorous paddling that leaves him refreshed after strenuous hours and in fit condition to tackle administration problems at night.

In addition, the president goes through a course of calisthenics similar to the treatment given regularly to the patients of the Warm Springs Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., at which place he is a yearly visitor.

Mr. Roosevelt's exercises are under the supervision of Dr. Ross McIntyre, of the naval hospital here.

Night work has become a habit with the president. Many of his most important conferences on the pressing problems of government are taken up at late hours with his ranking advisers.

The high wind that Sunday night forced her to cast off her mooring lines and put to sea subsided shortly after noon yesterday and the ship returned to her former berth an hour later. The starboard boom forward was heaving cargo upon the natural dock. Perapsnever in the history of Polar exploration was a prosaic job made more enthralling.

This job of getting winter supplies ashore is always a miserable one, a matter of brute strength, good luck and how much men and dogs are able to stand, but this time there's a sweeping novelty to it.

South of where this ship lies, the frozen flooring of the bay extends to join the swelling undulations of the barrier. Across it runs a road pounded into firmness by the trotting steps of men and dogs and the heavier tread of tractors. Four and a half miles long, it is fifteen feet wide and th... Boston post road is no finer.

To and fro along this road passes a ceaseless transport. Fifteen dog teams trot ahead of sledges piled with boxes. Three tractors haul heavy sledges stacked with gasoline. To the right of it the Pilgrim monoplane takes off at regular half hourly intervals for Little America with its cabin piled with food boxes. There is no stop to it so long as the weather holds. It goes on under the high noon sun and the frostier slow swinging sun of midnight.

MAN BELIEVED TO BE DEAD RETURNS

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26.—(UP)—James Zorland Robertson, war veteran found in the navy after being presumed legally dead, was expected to confront his former wife in federal court today as the climax of a modern Enoch Arden case.

The former wife, Mrs. Nora V. Demarre, was expected to defend her action in obtaining a $5,000 war risk judgment in district court on the assumption Robertson had been killed in the World war. He is a government witness.

Neither principal was bound to appear in court. Should they confront each other, it would be their first meeting in 16 years.

Employment Figures Will Equal Those of 1929 Levels in February

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press)

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(UP)—An industrial army of 325,000 workers—100,000 of them recruited from the unemployed of last year—answered automobile factory whistles today as the industry mobilized to meet the largest new car buying wave in five years.

A United Press survey earlier this week disclosed that orders for 1934 cars already have passed the quarter billion dollar mark.

Spurred by this unexpected demand exceeded only in the boom years, the industry is rapidly absorbing its idle labor. Manufacturers report that they are recalling thousands of their former workers every day.

They expect employment figures will approach 1928 and 1929 levels by the end of February.

Assembly line laborers, who have not worked for two or three years, are returning to their all but forgotten tasks. The welfare burden here and in other Michigan cities is proportionately lighter.

The Ford Motor company, leading the production parade because of a month's start on other companies, is working 90,000 men in the Detroit area alone, most of them on assembly lines. The company has between 1500 and 3000 workers in each of ten branch assembly plants scattered throughout the country. Ford workers are turning out 3200 cars daily, five days a week.

PETITION ROLPH TO PROBE KIDNAPING

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Jan. 26.—(UP)—A resolution calling upon Gov. James Rolph, jr., to "investigate the kidnaping and violent treatment" of A. L. Wirin, Los Angeles attorney, at Brawley Tuesday night had been adopted today by a conference here of fifty Methodist bishops from California, western Nevada, Arizona and Honolulu.

The resolution described the kidnaping of Wirin as "one of the most flagrant violations of constitutional law" because Wirin was "exercising the constitutional rights of an American citizen" in defending the free speech of striking workers.

PRINCE AND BRIDE REUNITED

The wealthy American girl told Japanese newspapermen that she was "happy" to have Mdivani help spend the $40,000,000 or more she inherits, according to an interview published in the newspaper Hochi.

The Hocht quoted her as saying that "his expertness in wise spending and in gaining access to the choicest circles is one of the reasons why I married him."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Administration forces swept to victory today on the most vital issue in President Roosevelt's new monetary program.

The senate by a vote of 54 to 36 defeated an effort by conservative Republicans to establish a board of five officials to supervise operation of the President's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Senator Borah, Repn., Ida., said in a senate speech today that he was supporting the Roosevelt monetary bill as "a step in the right direction," and would vote for the measure.

President Roosevelt's dollar revaluation bill was defended in the senate today as essential to any effort to clear America's tremendous burden of public and private debt.

Senator Bailey, Dem., N. C., who speaks but rarely in the senate, said he had been informed by "reliable sources" that the total amount of indebtedness in the country at this time was $220,000,000,000.

"There is not the remotest possibility that the American people can ever pay this debt under the present standards of prices and living," he said.

Answering Republican attacks that took up the entire session yesterday, Bailey said the monetary bill would increase prices to a point where liquidation would be possible.

President Roosevelt already has selected the experts who will guide the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund to be established under the monetary bill, it was learned today.

Foreign exchange experts for each of the nations whose currency will figure in operations of the fund are included in the staff, which is said to embrace the best monetary talent available in the United States.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TAKES UP TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The house ways and means committee sought to complete today the tentative draft of the tax revision bill designed to ease the tax burdens of the average man and close loopholes used by big business to avoid large payments.

The committee was expected to decide two remaining points of dispute, concerning whether to abolish present provisions as to exchange and reorganization taxes and whether to eliminate credits for foreign tax payments.

Estimates of how much the bill would add to present income revenues varied. Chairman Hill of the subcommittee which worked on the problem said that despite various changes from the original recommendations "between $270,000,000 and $300,000,000 should be added."

the general election, it is believed Johnson would overwhelm any opposition which might arise against him.

There was no hint today of the attitude here toward other progressive Republicans who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932. Senator La Follette, Repn., Wis., is expected to have formidable Democratic opposition this year for re-election and Senator Cutting, Repn., N. M., may find the going less easy than before.

Rep. McGrath, Dem., Calif., urged California Democrats to support Senator Johnson for re-election.

"This is no time to carp about party labels," McGrath said. "The Democratic party will be honoring itself by offering him the unopposed nomination for re-election. The election will be a mere formality.

"As for me, I shall support him at all times and under all circumstances. I feel that I am correctly expressing the sentiments of a vast majority of the citizens of my congressional district."

McGrath pointed out that Johnson supported Mr. Roosevelt for president and said that in congress "he has stood in the forefront of the fighters under the leadership of Roosevelt. His dynamic personality is always on the right side. He is feared and respected in every reactionary influence."

MAY RETURN LAND AGAIN TO INDIANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Thousands of acres of sub-marginal land which the government intends taking out of active cultivation under the program of the federal surplus relief corporation may be turned over to Indians, a great many of whom now are "on the bread line."

Economists estimate that approximately 50,000,000 acres of poor farm lands scattered throughout the country, but particularly in the west should be taken out of cultivation. As an initial fund for acquisition of sub-marginal lands, the Public Works Administration has allotted $25,000,000 to the surplus relief corporation.

The United Press learned that the surplus corporation was seriously considering giving some of this land to Indians, approximately 100,000 of whom are landless.

WILL ROGERS says:

CLAREMORE, Okla., Jan. 26.—(To the Editor of The Register:) The old homing pigeon flew back to its nest today, crossed Arizona, New Mexico and Texas last night. Sleep all the way. Fort Worth for breakfast. Amon Carter meets all planes and sells tickets for the big Roosevelt ball Tuesday night. I bet Fort Worth raises more money for that splendid cause than any city five times its size.

Bill Murray has taken good care of the old State since I been gone. In California we had forgotten there was such a thing left as a bootlegger, but back in these States, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, they are thicker than C.W.A. workers. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

POLICE ASSERT ARREST SOLVES 4 S. A. THEFTS

Solution of four recent Santa Ana burglaries was claimed today by police with the recovery of a gun and jewelry from Waldamar Miller, alias Arthur F. Ralston, 37, arrested in Fullerton on January 17 and now being prosecuted by Los Angeles police on a charge of being an ex-convict with a gun.

The gun recovered was stolen from the home of Herbert R. Green, 220 South Sycamore street while a gold watch and tie pin taken from the home of County Auditor W. T. Lambert, 607 East Bishop street, was also secured. Police declare that Miller also robbed the homes of Miss Myrtle Kroese, 327 East Bishop street, and I. E. Barnard, 212 East Myrtle street, all four of which were burglarized on January 12.

The gun was the only loot taken from the Green home but the value of the Barnard robbery was $300, the Kroese case $15 and the Lambert loss, $50. In the last three cases, a hatchet was used to break open windows while a pass key was used to rob the Green home.

Miller was brought to Santa Ana this afternoon and will face trial here. He has spent 17 of his 35 years inprison and was released from Folsom prison in November of last year, it is said. He was arrested in Fullerton on the same charge but was turned over to the Los Angeles authorities to face heavier charges.

"You can have them," Dillinger said. "They were only for disguise."

"J. C. Evans," tourist, was taken into custody at an automobile camp. Suave, gentlemanly, scholarly, he readily agreed to come to the police station for questioning. Seated in the office of Chief of Police C. A. Wollard, he changed character.

Goes For Gun

He whipped out a pistol. Officers overpowered him. Then he jerked another weapon from a shoulder holster but it was knocked from his hand before he could fire.

"Evans" was identified as Pierpont, the trigger-man, most deadly killer of the gang. No longer the scholarly gentleman, he sneered: "I'll remember you, and you, and you!" pointing to the officers in the room. "I can get out of any jail. I'll be back and I'll not forget."

The trigger-man attempted to swallow a paper. "Give it up," an officer commanded. Pierpont was adamant. Police then applied his own nippers to the gang man's arm. He took the paper in his hand, and another twist of the nippers opened his clenched fist. The writing was too blackened to read.

Clark was the first to be arrested. Officer Chet Sherman approached a house Clark had rented. He saw the suspect within on a divan. Clark came to the door, gun in hand. Sherman seized the gun.

Clark pulled the officer bodily into the room. His woman companion closed the door before the other officers could enter. Hanging on to the pistol with a grip which meant his life, Sherman fought with the gangster. Through the living room the two men struggled.

Battle in House

Clark, much heavier than Sherman, jockeyed the officer into a bedroom, forcing him back down, on the bed. Sherman clung to the pistol still, forcing the muzzle of the weapon away from his body.

The woman attempted to find another pistol under a pillow. The struggling men were over it. The other officers broke down the door and the butt of a police pistol descended on Clark's head. His hair and features a mass of blood, he was taken to jail.

The habit of a Tucson fireman of reading detective story magazines led to the arrests, which stand to net the small town officers some $35,000 in rewards.

"I can't leave the job," Freeman replied. The gangster gave him $50 and Freeman retrieved the grips. The next day he recognized the hotel guest as Harry Makley from a detective magazine picture and informed police.

The officers traced the baggage and the arrests followed.

The Dillinger gang is regarded by police as the foremost group of robbers, gunmen and killers in the country. Their records form a page of the criminal history of the middle west.

Dillinger's first known crime was a robbery in Grovetown, Ind., in 1924, for which he served six years in prison. Released, he went into bank robbery, a career which reached its height last year.

Escape From Prison

While hunted for the robbery of a Lima, O., bank, Dillinger engineered a plot through which Pierpont, Clark, Mackley, John Hamilton and six others escaped from the Michigan City, Ind., state penitentiary. Shortly afterward Dillinger was arrested as a bank robber and the men whom he had released from prison rescued him from the jail, shooting Sheriff Jess Sarber in the process of the delivery.

On Nov. 20, 1933, the gang robbed the American Bank & Trust Company of Chicago of $10,000. Leslie Homer, one of the group, was captured and confessed. The next month, Hamilton, Makley and Dillinger robbed the safety deposit vaults of the Union Trust and Savings bank of Chicago of $8700.

A few days later Hamilton shot and killed Sergeant William Shanley in Chicago, following which Chicago police were given orders to "shoot to kill" any o fthe gang on sight. The next brush with police came early in January when Dillinger and others of the gang raided the Beverly Gardens tavern and wounded two police in escaping.

The last recorded crime was Jan. 15, when Dillinger and Hamilton and one other man killed Policeman William P. O'Malley in a holdup of the First National Bank of East Chicago, Ind. The robbery netted them $20,000.

GANGSTER IS FOUND GUILTY IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Despite the court's charge to the jury that they might discount all or any part of an alleged kidnaping victim's testimony because he died, Joseph (Red) O'Riordan, charged with the abduction of Abe Fein in 1927, stood convicted today and awaited sentence next Thursday.

GUN USED TO ROB MOTORIST IN S. A. CANYON

Flagging him down in the Santa Ana canyon near the Green river camp in Riverside county, two hoboes robbed R. M. Johnston, 146 Forty-seventh street, Los Angeles, tool salesman, at the point of a gun shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Sheriff's officers were advised by Riverside officers of the holdup and the California highway patrol was assigned to search for the men. Johnston, driving a small car, said he stopped to avoid hitting the men when they jumped out in the center of the road and was robbed of about $10 before being ordered to drive on. He was driving to Riverside at the time of the holdup.

One of the suspects was described as being 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 175 pounds and wearing blue overalls. The other man was 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighed 140 or 150 pounds and had brown hair. Johnston said both men were dressed in dirty clothing and probably came from some hobo camp in the vicinity of the highway.

CROWDS VISIT RACE DRIVER AT FORD AGENCY

Fred Frame, famous veteran racing driver who is one of the few topnotch drivers to evade death after 18 years in the game, received hundreds of visitors today at George Dunton's Ford agency, 810 North Main street, where his stock racing Ford V-8 which won the Elgin race on August 26, 1933, was on display.

The noted racing driver, who holds nine national and international records, described the fascination of speed, telling how it holds drivers to the game despite the dangers. Frame has been unusually lucky, for he has had but two crackups and has suffered but several broken ribs while driving in from 15 to 18 races a year for 18 years, he said.

The stock roadster which Frame drove at an average of 80.22 miles per hour in the Elgin, Michigan, race to win in the 203 mile race, bears the license plates numbered "V-8" which were given to Henry Ford, who gave them to Frame when he started a tour of the country. The driver attained a top speed of 100.3 miles an hour in the stock roadster, which has the fenders off of it.

He contrasted modern cars with racing cars of 13 years ago, pointing out that at that time Ralph de Palma won the race in a specially built French racing car which averaged but 79.5 miles an hour.

"Racing now is a test of cars," he said, "and the results are used by manufacturers of commercial cars." Frame once drove a car 162 miles an hour and averaged 144 miles an hour for 50 miles in a stream-lined car.

Frame predicted many changes in automobiles during the near future. He predicted more streamlining in cars to minimize air resistance and for greater economy. He believes that cars will be driven from motors in the rear, with passengers seated up in front, to make it possible to taper the rear end of the cars. Motors will be smaller because not so much power will be needed to overcome air resistance, he declared, which will effect further economies.

He predicted that wheels of cars will be entirely eliminated, with large, jumbo-type tires being used. The brake, he said, will be incorporated into the wheels. Instead of the brake drum being a separate part of the wheel, it will be placed so that the outer edge of the rim will hold the tire and act as a brake drum.

Chassis and body will be constructed in one unit, he said, to provide for more strength.

Frame will be in Dunton's garage until about 9 o'clock tonight to receive visitors and answer questions, and will leave tomorrow to continue his tour. He was a featured speaker at a meeting of the Santa Ana Realty Board today in James' cafe.

Besides the stock car used in the Elgin race, a novel exhibit consisting of a Ford sedan with a ton of flour on the top is shown to demonstrate the rigidity and strength of the body construction. A cutaway chassis also is being displayed, demonstrating the working parts of the new Ford V-8 automobile.

AIRPLANE MODEL BUILDERS TO MEET

Santa Ana Model Airplane Builders will elect officers tonight at their organization meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce building, according to an announcement today by sponsors of the organization. The meetings opens at 7 o'clock.

In addition to holding their election the boys will be given their first instructions in preparing models. It will be necessary for each boy to have a lay out board similar to a mechanical drawing board, a razor blade with one protected edge, a bundle of straight pins, thumb tacks, one-foot rule and a pencil.

GAS COMPANY MAY GET INJUNCTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Federal Judge Curtis Wilbur today indicated that he favored granting the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., the injunction it sought to delay a $2,100,000 annual reduction in natural gas rates until the courts can decide on the legality of the rate cut.

Wilbur sat with Judges A. F. St. Sure and Harold Lauderback in hearing argument on the utility company's application for the injunction against the state railroad commission's order. The hearings were postponed until Feb. 5 to give the jurists an opportunity to study the arguments thus far presented.

"It seems to me," Wilbur said, "that the railroad commission has failed to follow the rules of the supreme court in arriving at basic rates."

FIVE ASK FOR PROBATION IN COURT TODAY

Chester T. Steffy pleaded guilty in superior court this morning to an information accusing him of driving an automobile while intoxicated and asked for probation. Superior Judge H. G. Ames set the probation hearing for February 9. According to the complaint Steffy was arrested January 9 on Newport Boulevard.

Jesus Lara and Genaro Lara pleaded guilty to burglary charges and also requested probation. Their hearing was set for February 9 by Judge Ames. The Lara brothers are accused by the district attorney of entering the Chapman building in Fullerton on the night of January 21.

John Post also pleaded guilty to a burglary charge and requested probation. Post is accused of burglarizing a garage in Huntington Beach and his probation hearing was set for February 9.

The fifth application for probation filed this morning was by C. M. Coelho who pleaded guilty to a hit-and-run charge. Hearing on the application was set for the same date as the other four. Coelho is accused of having failed to stop and render aid after his automobile struck the car of Joe Tornevacca and injured him. The accident happened January 8 at the intersection of First street and Verano road.

While Miss Lillian Beaudette, 212 West Walnut street, was away from home between noon and 6:30 p. m. yesterday, a thief stole clothing and bath towels from a clothesline in her yard, she reported to police today.

ALLEGED SHORT CHANGE ARTIST DENIES GUILT

Pleading not guilty to charges of petty theft, Billy Thomas, 24, one of three asserted short change artists arrested Wednesday, had his trial set for tomorrow at 10 a. m. by Judge J. G. Mitchell when arraigned this morning.

Police announced that B. G. Bowden, 36, and Miss Billie Wright, 24, the other two suspects, will be taken to Whittier to face petty theft charges because they are wanted there on several counts. A fourth member of the gang, who apparently escaped local officers, is still being sought.

The alleged swindlers visited a great number of stores in the county and worked a clever short change trick, according to police reports. A five cent confection would be purchased and a $1 bill tendered, after which the customer would conceal the 50 cent piece in the change and complain that he had been shortchanged. They had about $30 in change when arrested.

the general election, it is believed Johnson would overwhelm any opposition which might arise against him.

There was no hint today of the attitude here toward other progressive Republicans who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932. Senator Lt Follette, Repn., Wis., is expected to have formidable Democratic opposition this year for re-election and Senator Cutting, Repn., N. M., may find the going less easy than before.

Rep. McGrath, Dem., Calif., urged California Democrats to support Senator Johnson for re-election.

"This is no time to carp about party labels," McGrath said. "The Democratic party will be honoring itself by offering him the unopposed nomination for re-election. The election will be a mere formality.

"As for me, I shall support him at all times and under all circumstances. I feel that I am correctly expressing the sentiments of a vast majority of the citizens of my congressional district."

McGrath pointed out that Johnson supported Mr. Roosevelt for president and said that in congress "he has stood in the forefront of the fighters under the leadership of Roosevelt. His dynamic personality is always on the right side. He is feared and respected in every reactionary influence."

MAY RETURN LAND AGAIN TO INDIANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Thousands of acres of sub-marginal land which the government intends taking out of active cultivation under the program of the federal surplus relief corporation may be turned over to Indians, a great many of whom now are "on the bread line."

Economists estimate that approximately 50,000,000 acres of poor farm lands scattered throughout the country, but particularly in the west should be taken out of cultivation. As an initial fund for acquisition of sub-marginal lands, the Public Works Administration has allotted $25,000,000 to the surplus relief corporation.

The United Press learned that the surplus corporation was seriously considering giving some of this land to Indians, approximately 100,000 of whom are landless.

WILL ROGERS says:

CLAREMORE, Okla., Jan. 26.—(To the Editor of The Register:) The old homing pigeon flew back to its nest today, crossed Arizona, New Mexico and Texas last night. Sleep all the way. Fort Worth for breakfast. Amon Carter meets all planes and sells tickets for the big Roosevelt ball Tuesday night. I bet Fort Worth raises more money for that splendid cause than any city five times its size.

Bill Murray has taken good care of the old State since I been gone. In California we had forgotten there was such a thing left as a bootlegger, but back in these States, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, they are thicker than C.W.A. workers. Yours,

WILL ROGERS.

Solution of four recent Santa Ana burglaries was claimed today by police with the recovery of a gun and jewelry from Waldamar Miller, alias Arthur F. Ralston, 37, arrested in Fullerton on January 17 and now being prosecuted by Los Angeles police on a charge of being an ex-convict with a gun.

The gun recovered was stolen from the home of Herbert R. Green, 220 South Sycamore street while a gold watch and tie pin taken from the home of County Auditor W. T. Lambert, 607 East Bishop street, was also secured. Police declare that Miller also robbed the homes of Miss Myrtle Kroese, 327 East Bishop street, and I. E. Barnard, 212 East Myrtle street, all four of which were burglarized on January 12.

The gun was the only loot taken from the Green home but the value of the Barnard robbery was $800, the Kroese case $15 and the Lambert loss, $50. In the last three cases, a hatchet was used to break open windows while a pass key was used to rob the Green home.

Miller was brought to Santa Ana this afternoon and will face trial here. He has spent 17 of his 35 years inprison and was released from Folsom prison in November of last year, it is said. He was arrested in Fullerton on the same charge but was turned over to the Los Angeles authorities to face heavier charges.

Police handed him back his glasses.

"You can have them," Dillinger said. "They were only for disguise."

"J. C. Evans," tourist, was taken into custody at an automobile camp. Suave, gentlemanly, scholarly, he readily agreed to come to the police station for questioning. Seated in the office of Chief of Police C. A. Wollard, he changed character.

Goes For Gun

He whipped out a pistol. Officers overpowered him. Then he jerked another weapon from a shoulder holster but it was knocked from his hand before he could fire.

"Evans" was identified as Pierpont, the trigger-man, most deadly killer of the gang. No longer the scholarly gentleman, he sneered: "I'll remember you, and you, and you!" pointing to the officers in the room. "I can get out of any jail. I'll be back and I'll not forget."

The trigger-man attempted to swallow a paper. "Give it up," an officer commanded. Pierpont was adamant. Police then applied his own nippers to the gang man's arm. He took the paper in his hand, and another twist of the nippers opened his clenched fist. The writing was too blackened to read.

Clark was the first to be arrested. Officer Chet Sherman approached a house Clark had rented. He saw the suspect within on a divan. Clark came to the door, gun in hand. Sherman seized the gun.

Clark pulled the officer bodily into the room. His woman companion closed the door before the other officers could enter. Hanging on to the pistol with a grip which meant his life, Sherman fought with the gangster. Through the living room the two men struggled.

Battle in House

Clark, much heavier than Sherman, jockeyed the officer into a bedroom, forcing him back down, on the bed. Sherman clung to the pistol still, forcing the muzzle of the weapon away from his body.

The woman attempted to find another pistol under a pillow. The struggling men were over it. The other officers broke down the door and the butt of a police pistol descended on Clark's head. His hair and features a mass of blood, he was taken to jail.

The habit of a Tucson fireman of reading detective story magazines led to the arrests, which stand to net the small town officers some $35,000 in rewards.

"I can't leave the job," Freeman replied. The gangster gave him $50 and Freeman retrieved the grips. The next day he recognized the hotel guest as Harry Makley from a detective magazine picture and informed police.

The officers traced the baggage and the arrests followed.

The Dillinger gang is regarded by police as the foremost group of robbers, gunmen and killers in the country. Their records form a page of the criminal history of the middle west.

Dillinger's first known crime was a robbery in Grovetown, Ind., in 1924, for which he served six years in prison. Released, he went into bank robbery, a career which reached its height last year.

Escape From Prison

While hunted for the robbery of a Lima, O., bank, Dillinger engineered a plot through which Pierpont, Clark, Mackley, John Hamilton and six others escaped from the Michigan City, Ind., state penitentiary. Shortly afterward Dillinger was arrested as a bank robber and the men whom he had released from prison rescued him from the jail, shooting Sheriff Jess Sarber in the process of the delivery.

On Nov. 20, 1933, the gang robbed the American Bank & Trust Company of Chicago of $10,000. Leslie Homer, one of the group, was captured and confessed. The next month, Hamilton, Makley and Dillinger robbed the safety deposit vaults of the Union Trust and Savings bank of Chicago of $8700.

A few days later Hamilton shot and killed Sergeant William Shanley in Chicago, following which Chicago police were given orders to "shoot to kill" any o fthe gang on sight. The next brush with police came early in January when Dillinger and others of the gang raided the Beverly Gardens tavern and wounded two police in escaping.

The last recorded crime was Jan. 15, when Dillinger and Hamilton and one other man killed Policeman William P. O'Malley in a holdup of the First National Bank of East Chicago, Ind. The robbery netted them $20,000.

GANGSTER IS FOUND GUILTY IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Despite the court's charge to the jury that they might discount all or any part of an alleged kidnaping victim's testimony because he died, Joseph (Red) O'Riordan, charged with the abduction of Abe Fein in 1927, stood convicted today and awaited sentence next Thursday.

Flagging him down in the Santa Ana canyon near the Green river camp in Riverside county, two hoboes robbed R. M. Johnston, 146 Forty-seventh street, Los Angeles, tool salesman, at the point of a gun shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Sheriff's officers were advised by Riverside officers of the holdup and the California highway patrol was assigned to search for the men. Johnston, driving a small car, said he stopped to avoid hitting the men when they jumped out in the center of the road and was robbed of about $10 before being ordered to drive on. He was driving to Riverside at the time of the holdup.

One of the suspects was described as being 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 175 pounds and wearing blue operalls. The other man was 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighed 140 or 150 pounds and had brown hair. Johnston said both men were dressed in dirty clothing and probably came from some hobo camp in the vicinity of the highway.

CROWDS VISIT RACE DRIVER AT FORD AGENCY

Fred Frame, famous veteran racing driver who is one of the few topnotch drivers to evade death after 18 years in the game, received hundreds of visitors today at George Dunton's Ford agency, 810 North Main street, where his stock racing Ford V-8 which won the Elgin race on August 26, 1933, was on display.

The noted racing driver, who holds nine national and international records, described the fascination of speed, telling how it holds drivers to the game despite the dangers. Frame has been unusually lucky, for he has had but two crackups and has suffered but several broken ribs while driving in from 15 to 18 races a year for 18 years, he said.

The stock roadster which Frame drove at an average of 80.22 miles per hour in the Elgin, Michigan, race to win in the 203 mile race, bears the license plates numbered "V-8" which were given to Henry Ford, who gave them to Frame when he started a tour of the country. The driver attained a top speed of 100.3 miles an hour in the stock roadster, which has the fenders off of it.

He contrasted modern cars with racing cars of 13 years ago, pointing out that at that time Ralph de Palma won the race in a specially built French racing car which averaged but 79.5 miles an hour.

"Racing now is a test of cars," he said, "and the results are used by manufacturers of commercial cars." Frame once drove a car 162 miles an hour and averaged 144 miles an hour for 50 miles in a stream-lined car.

Frame predicted many changes in automobiles during the near future. He predicted more streamlining in cars to minimize air resistance and for greater economy. He believes that cars will be driven from motors in the rear, with passengers seated up in front, to make it possible to taper the rear end of the cars. Motors will be smaller because not so much power will be needed to overcome air resistance, he declared, which will effect further economies.

He predicted that wheels of cars will be entirely eliminated, with large, jumbo-type tires being used. The brake, he said, will be incorporated into the wheels. Instead of the brake drum being a separate part of the wheel, it will be placed so that the outer edge of the rim will hold the tire and act as a brake drum.

Chassis and body will be constructed in one unit, he said, to provide for more strength.

Frame will be in Dunton's garage until about 9 o'clock tonight to receive visitors and answer questions, and will leave tomorrow to continue his tour. He was a featured speaker at a meeting of the Santa Ana Realty Board today in James' cafe.

Besides the stock car used in the Elgin race, a novel exhibit consisting of a Ford sedan with a ton of flour on the top is shown to demonstrate the rigidity and strength of the body construction. A cutaway chassis also is being displayed, demonstrating the working parts of the new Ford V-8 automobile.

In addition to holding their election the boys will be given their first instructions in preparing models. It will be necessary for each boy to have a lay out board similar to a mechanical drawing board, a razor blade with one protected edge, a bundle of straight pins, thumb tacks, one-foot rule and a pencil.

GAS COMPANY MAY GET INJUNCTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Federal Judge Curtis Wilbur today indicated that he favored granting the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., the injunction it sought to delay a $2,100,000 annual reduction in natural gas rates until the courts can decide on the legality of the rate cut.

Wilbur sat with Judges A. F. St. Sure and Harold Lauderback in hearing argument on the utility company's application for the injunction against the state railroad commission's order. The hearings were postponed until Feb. 5 to give the jurists an opportunity to study the arguments thus far presented.

"It seems to me," Wilbur said, "that the railroad commission has failed to follow the rules of the supreme court in arriving at basic rates."

ALLEGED SHORT CHANGE ARTIST DENIES GUILT

Pleading not guilty to charges of petty theft, Billy Thomas, 24, one of three asserted short change artists arrested Wednesday, had his trial set for tomorrow at 10 a. m. by Judge J. G. Mitchell when arraigned this morning.

Police announced that B. C. Bowden, 36, and Miss Billie Wright, 24, the other two suspects, will be taken to Whittier to face petty theft charges because they are wanted there on several counts. A fourth member of the gang, who apparently escaped local officers, is still being sought.

The alleged swindlers visited a great number of stores in the county and worked a clever short change trick, according to police reports. A five cent confection would be purchased and a $1 bill tendered, after which the customer would conceal the 50 cent piece in the change and complain that he had been shortchanged. They had about $30 in change when arrested.

LETTING OF BEACH CONTRACT DELAYED

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 26.—Because the city council deviated from the form prescribed by Chief Engineer Trask of the California board administrating the work of the public works administration in this state in advertising for bids for the $190,000 Arch Beach sewer system, the letting of the contract will be delayed at least one week.

The change was made when the council listened to a plea made by members of the Laguna Beach Insurance Agents' association and included a provision that the successful bidder would be required "to take out workmen's compensation insurance (unless placed with the state), faithful performance bond, labor and material bond and public liability insurance through a bona fide Laguna Beach agent who has had an established office in Laguna Beach and doing an insurance and bonding business in Laguna Beach prior to and at all times subsequent to January 1, 1932."

City Attorney Milburn G. Harvey was notified by Engineer Trask that the advertisement was not acceptable in that form. By amendment of all members of the city council the notice inviting sealed proposals is being readvertised this week without the word "required" in the paragraph on insurance. Under the new form, the successful bidder with be "requested" to take out insurance in Laguna Beach.

The council will choose the three lowest responsible bids and submit them to the California board of the PWA, which will have the power to name the contractor to get the bid.

FORUM LEADER DEFENDS RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUALS

Harry Gerhart, director of the People's Forum, declared at the meeting last night that it was rumored or alleged that the district attorney of Orange county had recently made the statement that he and his spies were watching the Open Forum and all committee meetings that take place there, on the outlook for "Red" activities, and further that he proposes to "crack down" when there is anything to warrant it.

The speaker then went on to emphasize that some people and some politicians always were trying to find some connection with the "Reds", when anybody was talking about human rights, as the Forum had been recently, calling attention to conditions under the Welfare and under the CWA departments. He declared that those who were gathered there were protected just as much by the constitution of the United States as property was.

He further said: "We, and our forefathers for many hundreds of years have fought for the property and personal rights which we now enjoy. We established those rights through the Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Both are necessary and should be preserved."

He criticized those politicians and officials who took the attitude of "to hell with personal rights." He recited the advances that had been made in some of the CWA work, and declared that one member of the CWA committee, who had selected the CWA director, had in turn been appointed to a position at $1.10 an hour by the director.

He also said that the petitions of the Association for Economic Betterment that had been started out had received many signatures. In one community all the business men but two signed it, and he said that over 100 signatures had been gotten in one of the smallest communities.

He commended the work that was done in borrowing the $155,053 from the state emergency relief fund by the board of supervisors.

He said that the present CWA income, after the cut in hours, was inadequate to take care of large families, who are being forced to turn to the unemployment organizations, and to the welfare department for aid.

LIQUOR CAN BE SERVED BY GLASS IN PLACES WHERE MEAL CAN BE SERVED IF REQUESTED

Liquor can be served by glass anywhere in California where the establishment handling it is able to serve a full meal, "if the customer calls for it."

This was the answer of Edwin T. Keiser, state board of equalization administrator for Los Angeles county, at the meeting of the Orange County League of Municipalities in Tustin last night when he was asked by City Attorney Clyde Downing of Santa Ana as to what was the interpretation by the control board of what constitutes a meal in connection with liquor serving. Keiser said that there had been no definite standard except that instructions had been issued that any establishment serving liquor by the glass must be able to serve a full meal if the customer calls for it.

"Local officers are on an equal basis with state officials and the state board of equalization regarding the enforcement of the liquor laws," it was emphasized by Keiser in his talk.

Urges Police Action

Keiser urged local police to take the initiative in enforcing the state liquor act so that the revenue from fines would go to the cities and relieve the state agencies. Violators who attempt to fight the jurisdiction of local departments or the validity of the state liquor act will be dealt with by the federal internal revenue department, since the taxing of liquor comes under its jurisdiction, Keiser said.

Asked how much money cities could expect to receive from the taxes paid for liquor permits, Keiser said that the plan had not been working long enough to make estimates. He said that the cost of enforcing the law would be paid from the taxes and then the cities would receive in semi-annual payments, 60 per cent of the net profit. It is believed that this will not be a large amount unless the cost of enforcing is radically reduced, it was pointed out.

To counteract the menace of open drinking, the state will probably take over the problem of selling liquor in the next few days, Keiser predicted. He said the people will not stand for the saloon nor open drinking and that the state supreme court is now making a ruling for the city of Ukiah regarding the question of open drinking and the legality of the state law prohibiting it.

Possession Cases

In further clarifying the question of local control, Keiser said that if a person was arrested with more than five gallons of any kind of liquor, and did not have a dealer's license, he could be arrested for violation of the state act and taken before the city court.

Keiser and W. E. Shay, administrator for Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Inyo counties, who was present, assured Councilman W. B. Potter of Fullerton that the city has control of liquor sales in parks or other public places and that no sales of any kind could be made to minors. The question of ice cream flavored by liquor came up and Keiser said that an off sale license was necessary for selling of that confection or anything else containing liquor.

The state officials said that the recommendation of local officials and the chief of police would be followed in the granting of licenses if there was good reason for denial. The board will always deny if there is a violation of zoning but a mere protest on personal grounds will not be heeded.

Orange councilmen said that they were opposed to the selling of liquor in poolrooms but Shay explained that since poolhalls were granted licenses in other cities, the board had no grounds on which to deny those in Orange. He added, however, that should sufficient reason be shown after the granting of the permit that the license should be revoked, a hearing would be held at once.

Keiser mentioned the advantages of the sales tax in reducing taxation and said that it would help balance the state budget. He said it was believed that the sales tax would bring in about $60,000,000 the first year, much more than anticipated.

Whale Seen In Kelp Near Laguna Beach

R. E. Sype, driver on the Motor Transit stage line, arrived at Crystal Cove between Laguna Beach and Balboa, just in time yesterday to see a large whale disporting himself in a kelp bed about 50 feet off-shore. The huge sea mammal gave Sype an extra treat by spouting as the driver sighted him, the stream of water jetting about six feet above his head.

Sype says that the whale's body was concealed in the coils of kelp and that only his head was above water. He states that whales seek kelp beds to scratch the barnacles from their bodies.

MEMBER OF COMMITTEE ON CWA PAYROLL

Following assertions made at the Peoples Forum last night by Harry Gerhart, director, that a member of the county CWA committee had been given a job with the CWA, investigation made today at the office of Robert Ramsey, county CWA director, revealed that R. C. Ewing, one of the committee members, has been on the CWA payroll at $1.10 an hour since January 10.

Ewing, who lives in Anaheim, was a member of the CWA committee which named Ramsey, former Anaheim publisher, as director of CWA activities in Orange county to succeed Byron Curry, welfare relief director who was acting head of the CWA program in the county.

The committee member is working 30 hours per week as safety director, it was learned.

Ramsey said today that the CWA committee, which appointed him, has been dissolved by a recent order from San Francisco, and no longer has any voice in CWA affairs in the county except in an advisory capacity.

LETTING OF BEACH CONTRACT DELAYED

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 26.—Because the city council deviated from the form prescribed by Chief Engineer Trask of the California board administrating the work of the public works administration in this state in advertising for bids for the $190,000 Arch Beach sewer system, the letting of the contract will be delayed at least one week.

The change was made when the council listened to a plea made by members of the Laguna Beach Insurance Agents' association and included a provision that the successful bidder would be required "to take out workmen's compensation insurance (unless placed with the state), faithful performance bond, labor and material bond and public liability insurance through a bona fide Laguna Beach agent who has had an established office in Laguna Beach and doing an insurance and bonding business in Laguna Beach prior to and at all times subsequent to January 1, 1932."

City Attorney Milburn G. Harvey was notified by Engineer Trask that the advertisement was not acceptable in that form. By assignment of all members of the city council the notice inviting sealed proposals is being readvertised this week without the word "required" in the paragraph on insurance. Under the new form, the successful bidder with be "requested" to take out insurance in Laguna Beach.

The council will choose the three lowest responsible bids and submit them to the California board of the PWA, which will have the power to name the contractor to get the bid.

FORUM LEADER DEFENDS RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUALS

Harry Gerhart, director of the People's Forum, declared at the meeting last night that it was rumored or alleged that the district attorney of Orange county had recently made the statement that he and his spies were watching the Open Forum and all committee meetings that take place there, on the outlook for "Red" activities, and further that he proposes to "crack down" when there is anything to warrant it.

The speaker then went on to emphasize that some people and some politicians always were trying to find some connection with the "Reds", when anybody was talking about human rights, as the Forum had been recently, calling attention to conditions under the Welfare and under the CWA departments. He declared that those who were gathered there were protected just as much by the constitution of the United States as property was.

He further said: "We, and our forefathers for many hundreds of years have fought for the property and personal rights which we now enjoy. We established those rights through the Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Both are necessary and should be preserved."

He criticized those politicians and officials who took the attitude of "to hell with personal rights." He recited the advances that had been made in some of the CWA work, and declared that one member of the CWA committee, who had selected the CWA director, had in turn been appointed to a position at $1.10 an hour by the director.

He also said that the petitions of the Association for Economic Betterment that had been started out had received many signatures. In one community all the business men but two signed it, and he said that over 100 signatures had been gotten in one of the smallest communities.

He commended the work that was done in borrowing the $155,053 from the state emergency relief fund by the board of supervisors.

He said that the present CWA income, after the cut in hours, was inadequate to take care of large families, who are being forced to turn to the unemployment organizations, and to the welfare department for aid.

LIQUOR CAN BE SERVED BY GLASS IN PLACES WHERE MEAL CAN BE SERVED IF REQUESTED

Liquor can be served by glass anywhere in California where the establishment handling it is able to serve a full meal, "if the customer calls for it."

This was the answer of Edwin T. Keiser, state board of equalization administrator for Los Angeles county, at the meeting of the Orange County League of Municipalities in Tustin last night when he was asked by City Attorney Clyde Downing of Santa Ana as to what was the interpretation by the control board of what constitutes a meal in connection with liquor serving. Keiser said that there had been no definite standard except that instructions had been issued that any establishment serving liquor by the glass must be able to serve a full meal if the customer calls for it.

"Local officers are on an equal basis with state officials and the state board of equalization regarding the enforcement of the liquor laws," it was emphasized by Keiser in his talk.

Urges Police Action

Keiser urged local police to take the initiative in enforcing the state liquor act so that the revenue from fines would go to the cities and relieve the state agencies. Violators who attempt to fight the jurisdiction of local departments or the validity of the state liquor act will be dealt with by the federal internal revenue department, since the taxing of liquor comes under its jurisdiction, Keiser said.

Asked how much money cities could expect to receive from the taxes paid for liquor permits, Keiser said that the plan had not been working long enough to make estimates. He said that the cost of enforcing the law would be paid from the taxes and then the cities would receive in semi-annual payments, 60 per cent of the net profit. It is believed that this will not be a large amount unless the cost of enforcing is radically reduced, it was pointed out.

To counteract the menace of open drinking, the state will probably take over the problem of selling liquor in the next few days, Keiser predicted. He said the people will not stand for the saloon nor open drinking and that the state supreme court is now making a ruling for the city of Ukiah regarding the question of open drinking and the legality of the state law prohibiting it.

Possession Cases

In further clarifying the question of local control, Keiser said that if a person was arrested with more than five gallons of any kind of liquor, and did not have a dealer's license, he could be arrested for violation of the state act and taken before the city court.

Keiser and W. E. Shay, administrator for Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino and Inyo counties, who was present, assured Councilman W. B. Potter of Fullerton that the city has control of liquor sales in parks or other public places and that no sales of any kind could be made to minors. The question of ice cream flavored by liquor came up and Keiser said that an off sale license was necessary for selling of that confection or anything else containing liquor.

The state officials said that the recommendation of local officials and the chief of police would be followed in the granting of licenses if there was good reason for denial. The board will always deny if there is a violation of zoning but a mere protest on personal grounds will not be heeded.

Orange councilmen said that they were opposed to the selling of liquor in poolrooms but Shay explained that since poolhalls were granted licenses in other cities, the board had no grounds on which to deny those in Orange. He added, however, that should sufficient reason be shown after the granting of the permit that the license should be revoked, a hearing would be held at once.

Keiser mentioned the advantages of the sales tax in reducing taxation and said that it would help balance the state budget. He said it was believed that the sales tax would bring in about $60,000,000 the first year, much more than anticipated.

Former S.A. Church Worker Principal In L. A. Love Suit

Miss Betty Thompson, 18-year-old Angelus Temple musician who is suing Paul Bragg, health lecturer and author for $100,000, alleging seduction, formerly was active in church work here according to testimony given yesterday by her mother, Mrs. Cora Thompson.

Mrs. Thompson, testifying yesterday before a jury in Judge Sproul's court, said that before becoming identified with musical activities in Angelus Temple her daughter had been active in church work in Santa Ana. She said that her daughter first started to go out with Bragg when she was 17 years old. She told of Bragg wanting to employ her daughter as his secretary and of her daughter's trip, through the Panama Canal to New York with Bragg. The health lecturer, according to the girl's mother had promised to send for the mother later.

Bragg, testifying in his own defense blamed quarrels over the girl's mother for breaking up their romance. He admitted that he was in love with his secretary and had discussed marriage with her. He said that when he took the girl with him to New York in the spring of 1933 to assist him in delivering a series of health lectures, and failed to send for her mother, the trouble began.

KAUFMAN GOES TO FLORIDA IN MITCHELL CASE

District Attorney S. B. Kaufman left last night for Tallahassee, Fla., to aid in the fight for extradition of Howard Mitchell, called "king of the bail jumpers" who is wanted in Orange county to answer charges of grand theft. Mitchell originally jumped $3000 bail posted in superior court here and later, when arrested in Chicago posted $500 bail and disappeared. Recently he was apprehended in Tallahassee.

Before leaving for Florida yesterday Kaufman requested U. S. Attorney Pierson Hall in Los Angeles to wire Attorney General Cummings at Washington, D. C., asking that official to instruct the United States attorney at Tallahassee to assist Kaufman in presenting the matter in United States district court there.

Kaufman's trip followed Mitchell's action in having his case taken into federal court, in an effort to have that court compel the state supreme court to set bail pending decision on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus now before the state court.

Following his arrest in Tallahassee Mitchell launched a stubborn battle to prevent extradition. Deputy Sheriff Merle Dean, provided with regular extradition papers has been in Florida for approximately two weeks in an effort to extradite the man. Extradition proceedings issued by Orange county at the time of Mitchell's arrest were passed upon by the state attorney general's office and Governor Rolph as well at the attorney general of Florida and the governor of Florida who issued a governor's warrant for Mitchell's arrest.

Mitchell's next move was to have a writ of habeas corpus issued by the state supreme court of Florida and was represented in that proceeding by three firms of Florida lawyers. California was represented by Cary D. Landis, attorney general of Florida, and by William C. Hodges, president of the senate of the state of Florida. The state supreme court has not yet made a ruling on the writ but will do so in a few days.

On January 22 Federal Judge Sheppard of the U. S. district court, northern district of Florida, issued a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of compelling the state supreme court to set bail at this time. Mitchell has filed in the supreme court a petition for a stay of judgment pending appeal to the United States Supreme court.

Voice Instructor Known Here Dies

Edmund J. Myer, nationally-famous voice instructor with many friends in Santa Ana and Orange county, died at his Los Angeles home yesterday, it was learned here today.

The musician, who celebrated his 88th birthday last Sunday, continued active teaching of his classes until two weeks ago, when he was stricken with heart trouble. He had attained wide fame as a teacher and composer and maintained a studio in Carnegie Hall in New York City for 40 years before coming to Los Angeles about 10 years ago. He conducted master classes of music teachers each summer in the East.

Mr. Myer is survived by his daughter, Miss Helen Ethel Myer and his son, Edmund J. Myer jr., both of Los Angeles. Funeral services will be held Saturday in Los Angeles.

ASKS ANNULMENT

Carver Louis Walker has filed suit in superior court seeking annulment of his marriage to Mrs. Vera Gladys Green Walker who is said to be living in Sylvia, Kansas, at this time. Walker, in his complaint alleges that he was fraudulently persuaded to marry his wife September 5, last, in Yuma, Ariz. For the purpose of inducing him to marry her, Walker alleges, his wife falsely represented that he was the father of her unborn child. After the ceremony, the complaint recites, Walker was informed that another man was the father of the child.

NEED ACTION TO CONTROL FAR EAST SITUATION

"Today the United States and the world has the choice to control the Russo-Chinese-Japanese situation. Tomorrow it will be beyond control and will either lead to an alliance between Russia and China which will sovietize China or to the building of a military power by China the like of which has never been known. China will then absorb Japan, the military man will be elevated from the lowest place in the Chinese scale which he has always occupied to the dominating position and the Yellow Peril will become a reality."

Thus Tom M. Elliott formerly Y. M. C. A. secretary in Amoy, China, characterized the future situation in the Orient, in his lecture last night on "Both Sides of the Pacific Problem," at the People's Forum.

Elliott told of the natural riches of Manchuria and the other provinces of China and the tremendous man power which the great nation can apply either toward peaceful constructive benefit to the world or for destruction.

Boycott

In response to questions Elliott said he believed a boycott against Japan would have the desired result in controlling the Oriental situation, but that it would have to be world wide and exist both in the field of buying and selling.

"War with Japan or sending troops to the Orient will not solve the problems must be settled any problem. After the fighting the problems must be settled around a peace table.

"It would take more millions of men than went to France to make any impression on that oriental situation. It would mean more than 4,000,000 men with thousands drowned on the way. And our millions would have to be joined to the combined armies of the world to accomplish any appreciable result against the teeming millions over there. It would spell prosperity again for America if you want to pay that price. But 15 years from now it would mean another hell like we are passing through now."

No Menace

Elliott did not consider the Japanese directly a menace to the United States and the west coast because of their lack of natural resources and ability to prepare for such an enterprise.

The speaker told of the vast natural resources in China,—the richest soil in the world, great forests, the thickest vein of coal in the world, from 78 feet to 420 feet thick and extending under 16,500 acres and 100,000 square miles in another territory all underlain with coal. He stated that Japan was desirous of these recources but had made little progress in Manchuria toward controlling more than the principal railroad zones, and was experiencing great difficulty holding them.

Elliott advocated the development of a different spirit toward the Orient, one of less agression and less armed forces which have done more harm to the Americans in China than good, and a change in our treatment of even the greatest of the Orientals who wish to visit our country to learn of our methods and apply them to their awakening and progressing countries. "Let us demonstrate a spirit of confidence and friendliness and we will receive friendliness in return," he declared.

B. & P. W. CLUB TOLD BENEFITS OF NRA DRIVE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 26.—That women are better organized to carry on the work of the NRA was emphasized last night when B. Z. McKinney of Santa Ana addressed the Business and Professional Women's club at the Marigold cafe last night, explaining to the members the purpose and workings of the National Recovery Act.

Women in Orange county are particularly well organized to carry on this work, he said as he prophesied that the recovery act will be on the statute books for a long time to come and will gather in momentum all the time.

At the time President Roosevelt was inaugurated there were 15,000,000 out of work. The law seeks to stabilize industry, take care of unemployment, limit production and limit maximum hours and minimum wages. The codes are really those of fair ethics and each are drawn up by representatives of capital, labor and governent officials. The slogan is "Recovery and Reform" and is only a part of the general program for prosperity.

Following an explanation of the compliance board and the penalties for violators of the NRA the speaker answered questions in an open forum discussion.

The musical program was provided by Raymond Bagdley who played two saxophone solos, a serenade and "The Rosary."

Under the direction of Kate E. McCullah, song leader, members learned the new national Business and Profesisonal Women's song, "The Golden Key," by Carrie Jacobs Bond. The song will be sung at the Southern District meeting that will be held in Santa Ana.

Engineer Hapgood expressed doubt the work at the city park will be concluded by February 15, although 27 men are now at work. While eight painters are at work on the city hall and the city water tower this project will not be completed until after February 15.

LOS ANGELES STREET TO BE OPENED FEB. 1

ANAHEIM, Jan. 26—With North Los Angeles street to be opened to traffic on February 1 a committee has been appointed by August Eltiste, president of the chamber of commerce, to make plans for the opening celebration that will be held some time soon, the date to be settled by the committee. The board of directors' meeting was held yesterday noon at the Elk's clubhouse.

Dr. Walter Bigham was named chairman of the committee and those who will work with him are P. A. Stanton, William Schumacker, Charles Pearson, Robert Easton and Oscar Renner.

George Reid, secretary, reported that letters were sent out from his office this week to the 14 property owners between here and Buena Park urging them to support the Manchester road proposal and show their approval to the board of supervisors.

The directors went on record as supporting the Merchant's and Manufacturer's association in its aim to have a central advertising committee to pass upon all forms of advertising schemes brought into Anaheim. Members pointed out that these various schemes brought in by outsiders take a great deal of money out of the city and net small profit in return.

Towards this end Secretary Reid said that letters have been sent all churches and lodges warning them napkin and advertising propositions and asking them to let the committee pass on each form of such advertising.

B. & P. W. CLUB TOLD BENEFITS OF NRA DRIVE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 26.—That women are better organized to carry on the work of the NRA was emphasized last night when B. Z. McKinney of Santa Ana addressed the Business and Professional Women's club at the Marigold cafe last night, explaining to the members the purpose and workings of the National Recovery Act.

Women in Orange county are particularly well organized to carry on this work, he said as he prophesied that the recovery act will be on the statute books for a long time to come and will gather in momentum all the time.

At the time President Roosevelt was inaugurated there were 15,000,000 out of work. The law seeks to stabilize industry, take care of unemployment, limit production and limit maximum hours and minimum wages. The codes are really those of fair ethics and each are drawn up by representatives of capital, labor and governent officials. The slogan is "Recovery and Reform" and is only a part of the general program for prosperity.

Following an explanation of the compliance board and the penalties for violators of the NRA the speaker answered questions in an open forum discussion.

The musical program was provided by Raymond Bagdley who played two saxophone solos, a serenade and "The Rosary."

Under the direction of Kate E. McCullah, song leader, members learned the new national Business and Profesisonal Women's song, "The Golden Key," by Carrie Jacobs Bond. The song will be sung at the Southern District meeting that will be held in Santa Ana.

SEWER PROJECT IS BEING RUSHED HERE

ANAHEIM, Jan. 25.—With 152 men now at work on the sewer project being carried on under the Civil Works Act City Engineer E. A. Hapgood reported this morning that 725 feet of pipe was laid yesterday, this being the highest amount put down since the work was started last week. Work is being somewhat delayed owing to inability to secure enough men to do the work on acount of the limited quota allowed this district.

Work was resumed yesterday on the dip at Center and Olive streets and will be finished within two weeks.

Engineer Hapgood expressed doubt the work at the city park will be concluded by February 15, although 27 men are now at work. While eight painters are at work on the city hall and the city water tower this project will not be completed until after February 15.

RESIDENT HERE FOR THIRTY YEARS DIES

ANAHEIM, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Mary J. Mott, 84, and a native of New York but a resident of California for 30 years, 14 of which were spent in the home of her daughter, Mrs. William A. Snyder of East Alberta street, passed away late yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness.

The deceased was a charter member, as well as the oldest member, of the Calvary Baptist church.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Snyder of Anaheim and Mrs. Ed Herrow of Pomona; two sons, Anson R. Mott of Anaheim and Fred Mott of Fresno; twelve grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral arangements are in charge of the Hilgenfeld Funeral home and will be announced later.

NEGRO SLASHED IN FIGHT EARLY TODAY

ANAHEIM, Jan. 26.—Rex Jones, 32-year-old negro of 311 West Chestnut street was the victim early this morning of a 12 inch razor blade cut across his stomach that he received during a fight with Claude Brown, 19-year-old negro at Sante Fe, Fullerton.

The victim was given first aid treatment by Dr. E. H. Kersten and then taken to the Orange County hospital. While he was bleeding profusely the attending physician said that the cut was not deep.

Brown was lodged in the local jail where he told police this morning that he used the razor in self defense after Jones came after him with two knives. Police are of the opinion that both were intoxicated.

Unable to make a decision last Tuesday in regard to details of operating the county police radio station members of the board of supervisors, today indicated that they hoped to reach an agreement on all details when the board meets next Tuesday. He said that, speaking for himself and not for other members of the board, he felt that the station should be sufficiently independent and that every municipality should have the uncensored right to the radio.

He said that there is no doubt but that the radio station should be in jail for the protection and centralization of law enforcement.

This morning Chairman Willard Smith said that he believed that statements by Lyon expressed the sentiment of the board and indicated that the decision when reached would be, generally, along the lines suggested before the League of Municipalities last night.

MUNICIPALITIES LEAGUE ASKS UNIFORMITY OF CWA HOURS, PROGRAM EXTENSION

Charges of discrimination against small cities in the new allocation of hours on CWA projects and demands for an extension of the CWA program in Orange county were two of the important items of business discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Orange County League of Municipalities held in the K. P. hall in Tustin last night.

Mayor L. A. Hogue of Brea led the fight by the smaller cities in demanding a uniform schedule of CWA working hours. He pointed out that in the Middle West and other sections of the country, persons living in towns of less than 2500 population were not so affected by the 15 hour week but that in Southern California, there was little or no difference in the status of the working man in the small and large city and both were entitled to 24 hours.

On the motion of Councilman Leo Sheridan of Anaheim, the League voted to send telegrams of protest to county, state and federal CWA officials, asking that a uniform system be used in fairness to smaller towns of this section.

Seek Extension

Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana brought up the question of asking for an extension of the CWA program and the enlarging of the quota for Orange county. He said that this county was far below the standard of other neighboring counties and that the 2400 men at work did not adequately take care of the need here. His motion to ask CWA officials for a change was adopted unanimously and telegrams will be sent by Secretary Albert Launer.

Questioned by Mayor William Hale of Fullerton, City Attorney Clyde Downing of Santa Ana said the uniform handbill ordinance question had been referred to each individual city for action.

County Assessor James Sleeper, a guest at the meeting, spoke briefly concerning assessing in the county and reminded the city officials of the new laws regulating the validating of automobile licenses and the payment of taxes. He also mentioned the proposed 10 per cent reduction in assessed valuations to be made for next year.

Visitors Present

Placentia officials announced that they were planning to consider the adoption of an anti-picketing ordinance, similar to that of the county. Orange has given first reading to the ordinance and will pass it next week, it was reported.

Mayor William Huntley of Tustin gave the address of welcome and announced that the Pythian sisters served the banquet at the meeting. Among those introduced at the meeting were J. Fred Sidebottom and Thomas Taylor, local liquor administrators for the state board of equalization, H. B. Davis, foreman and Lee J. Hasenjaeger, bookkeeper, both of the Tustin Hills Citrus association, Mrs. Herman Hilmer, wife of the Newport Beach mayor and Fred Baughn, former secretary of the Los Angeles League of Municipalities.

Councilman A. C. Hasenjaeger of Santa Ana, new president of the association, was introduced by retiring president Leo J. Sheridan of Anaheim. Vice President Hogue of Brea and Secretary Launer of Fullerton, also were introduced.

TOUR OF MEXICO

Hailed as the first auto tourist caravan from Southern California into Mexico, a large group of motorists is scheduled to leave Los Angeles February 23 for a six-weeks' trip through the southern republic. This tour is officially sponsored by the Mexican government.

Sleeper Elected Vice President Of Assessors Group

James B. Sleeper, Orange county assessor, yesterday was elected vice president of the Assessors' Association of Southern California at the annual meeting of that organization concluded yesterday in Los Angeles.

E. W. Hopkins, Los Angeles county assessor, was elected president of the group and Charles S. Tomlinson of Santa Barbara was named secretary and treasurer.

W. M. Patch of the Syncrotax Association, addressing the assessors advocated that all present forms of state, county and city taxes be replaced by a percentage tax on the gross monetary returns of individuals or corporations.

Retail Milk Price Remains Same

Retail prices of milk remained on an even keel today in Orange county, unaffected by a milk war in the Los Angeles area which sent prices of milk down to a low level.

This report was made today by A. L. Christie, secretary of the Orange County Milk Distributors and Producers associations who predicted that the trouble would soon blow over in the Los Angeles area.

PLANNING HELD REAL NEED OF CWA PROGRAM

Underlying weakness of the CWA programs is directly related to planning and can be eliminated in large part at least by a wider acceptance and more intelligent application of planning principles, L. Deming Tilton, planning consultant to the Orange County Planning commission, told members of the commission at a monthly meeting yesterday in the courthouse annex.

Criticism of the CWA is heard in many quarters and the principal burden of this criticism is that the workers frequently are not being permitted to give an honest days work because the jobs to which they are sent, in many instances, have never been properly planned, he said in his monthly report.

Superficial, leaf-raking, puttering "manicuring" types of made-work predominate in many CWA programs, Tilton reported, advocating that planning agencies of the government tie in more directly into the CWA and PWA programs. He advocated the preparation of fully documented plans for cities and counties on a wide variety of needed public improvements to meet needs as they arise.

The necessity for keeping men employed through governmental agencies is not likely soon to disappear, the report stated, and the need for a reservoir or comprehensive program of work projects to draw upon will continue.

During the past month Nat H. Neff, county superintendent of roads and Tilton have given more consideration to the planning of local work projects than to the master plan studies. Studies have been made of improvements in Irvine park, Westminster park and other parks. These studies have been carried further in Neff's office by architects and engineers specially employed for the preparation of plans for CWA projects.

In his report, Tilton stressed the importance of road improvements to offer opportunities for employment to thousands over the entire county in the continuance of a CWA program.

MISCONDUCT OF JURY CHARGED IN EY TRIAL

Denials of motions for a new trial and arrestment of judgment, and charges of misconduct on the part of the jury featured a hearing in the police court yesterday afternoon when Attorney Frank Ey appeared for pronouncement of judgment in connection with his conviction by a jury on a charge of violating the city license ordinance.

E. C. McKinstry, member of the jury which found Ey guilty Tuesday, was placed on the stand by the defendant in an effort to prove the charges of misconduct. McKinstry said he did not approve of some of the evidence introduced by Prosecutor Clyde Downing and demanded a polling of the jury after the verdict was given. The poll was unanimous for conviction.

Judge A. W. Swayze sustained the objection of Downing on the charges because there was not any testimony that the verdict was arrived at by lot or chance.

Ey then moved for a new trial, which was denied by Swayze. The next motion was for arrestment of judgment, which was also denied. Judge Swayze then fined Ey $200 and was given oral notice of appeal by the lawyer, who posted a $200 appeal bond.

Ey contended at the trial that he paid a state license and was not compelled to pay a city license.

He said that this county was far below the standard of other neighboring counties and that the 2400 men at work did not adequately take care of the need here. His motion to ask CWA officials for a change was adopted unanimously and telegrams will be sent by Secretary Albert Launer.

Questioned by Mayor William Hale of Fullerton, City Attorney Clyde Downing of Santa Ana said the uniform handbill ordinance question had been referred to each individual city for action.

County Assessor James Sleeper, a guest at the meeting, spoke briefly concerning assessing in the county and reminded the city officials of the new laws regulating the validating of automobile licenses and the payment of taxes. He also mentioned the proposed 10 per cent reduction in assessed valuations to be made for next year.

Visitors Present

Placentia officials announced that they were planning to consider the adoption of an anti-picketing ordinance, similar to that of the county. Orange has given first reading to the ordinance and will pass it next week, it was reported.

Mayor William Huntley of Tustin gave the address of welcome and announced that the Pythian sisters served the banquet at the meeting. Among those introduced at the meeting were J. Fred Sidebottom and Thomas Taylor, local liquor administrators for the state board of equalization, H. B. Davis, foreman and Lee J. Hasenjaeger, bookkeeper, both of the Tustin Hills Citrus association, Mrs. Herman Hilmer, wife of the Newport Beach mayor and Fred Baughn, former secretary of the Los Angeles League of Municipalities.

Councilman A. C. Hasenjaeger of Santa Ana, new president of the association, was introduced by retiring president Leo J. Sheridan of Anaheim. Vice President Hogue of Brea and Secretary Launer of Fullerton, also were introduced.

TOUR OF MEXICO

Hailed as the first auto tourist caravan from Southern California into Mexico, a large group of motorists is scheduled to leave Los Angeles February 23 for a six-weeks' trip through the southern republic. This tour is officially sponsored by the Mexican government.

Sleeper Elected Vice President Of Assessors Group

James B. Sleeper, Orange county assessor, yesterday was elected vice president of the Assessors' Association of Southern California at the annual meeting of that organization concluded yesterday in Los Angeles.

E. W. Hopkins, Los Angeles county assessor, was elected president of the group and Charles S. Tomlinson of Santa Barbara was named secretary and treasurer.

W. M. Patch of the Syncrotax Association, addressing the assessors advocated that all present forms of state, county and city taxes be replaced by a percentage tax on the gross monetary returns of individuals or corporations.

Retail Milk Price Remains Same

Retail prices of milk remained on an even keel today in Orange county, unaffected by a milk war in the Los Angeles area which sent prices of milk down to a low level.

This report was made today by A. L. Christie, secretary of the Orange County Milk Distributors and Producers associations who predicted that the trouble would soon blow over in the Los Angeles area.

PLANNING HELD REAL NEED OF CWA PROGRAM

Underlying weakness of the CWA programs is directly related to planning and can be eliminated in large part at least by a wider acceptance and more intelligent application of planning principles, L. Deming Tilton, planning consultant to the Orange County Planning commission, told members of the commission at a monthly meeting yesterday in the courthouse annex.

Criticism of the CWA is heard in many quarters and the principal burden of this criticism is that the workers frequently are not being permitted to give an honest days work because the jobs to which they are sent, in many instances, have never been properly planned, he said in his monthly report.

Superficial, leaf-raking, puttering "manicuring" types of made-work predominate in many CWA programs, Tilton reported, advocating that planning agencies of the government tie in more directly into the CWA and PWA programs. He advocated the preparation of fully documented plans for cities and counties on a wide variety of needed public improvements to meet needs as they arise.

The necessity for keeping men employed through governmental agencies is not likely soon to disappear, the report stated, and the need for a reservoir or comprehensive program of work projects to draw upon will continue.

During the past month Nat H. Neff, county superintendent of roads and Tilton have given more consideration to the planning of local work projects than to the master plan studies. Studies have been made of improvements in Irvine park, Westminster park and other parks. These studies have been carried further in Neff's office by architects and engineers specially employed for the preparation of plans for CWA projects.

In his report, Tilton stressed the importance of road improvements to offer opportunities for employment to thousands over the entire county in the continuance of a CWA program.

MISCONDUCT OF JURY CHARGED IN EY TRIAL

Denials of motions for a new trial and arrestment of judgment, and charges of misconduct on the part of the jury featured a hearing in the police court yesterday afternoon when Attorney Frank Ey appeared for pronouncement of judgment in connection with his conviction by a jury on a charge of violating the city license ordinance.

E. C. McKinstry, member of the jury which found Ey guilty Tuesday, was placed on the stand by the defendant in an effort to prove the charges of misconduct. McKinstry said he did not approve of some of the evidence introduced by Prosecutor Clyde Downing and demanded a polling of the jury after the verdict was given. The poll was unanimous for conviction.

Judge A. W. Swayze sustained the objection of Downing on the charges because there was not any testimony that the verdict was arrived at by lot or chance.

Ey then moved for a new trial, which was denied by Swayze. The next motion was for arrestment of judgment, which was also denied. Judge Swayze then fined Ey $200 and was given oral notice of appeal by the lawyer, who posted a $200 appeal bond.

Ey contended at the trial that he paid a state license and was not compelled to pay a city license.

"I Have Made an Insurance Trust!"

Would You Desert Your Family?

leaving them no means of support; no final words of affection and interest? The man who leaves his family without a WILL is, in reality, deserting them, providing no chance for them to know that he wanted them well protected. Make this a make-a-will-day on your calendar!

Life insurance is something no man should begrudge the efforts to own. It will do for you what fluctuating business conditions will sometimes fail to do—build up financial independence, and an estate for the use and protection of the dependents you are responsible for. When you have created such an estate, you can PROTECT its value and service by establishing a Life Insurance Trust! You can thus make sure that the proceeds will be wisely managed, conserved by men of wide experience in making money serve its masters to the best advantage. Ask yourself if you have ENOUGH life insurance—if you could stand a little more—and then ask The First National about a LIFE INSURANCE TRUST!

FORD SCHOOL SOUP KITCHEN SCHEDULED TO OPEN MONDAY

FULLERTON, Jan. 26. — The Ford school soup kitchen will open Monday and it is anticipated more than 200 children will be served hot soup at noon. Delays have made the opening much later than anticipated.

Mrs. W. B. Purdy, president of the Ford Parent-Teacher association under which the kitchen will be operated, has ready lists of names of parents providing for 10 women each day to assist Mrs. George Magee in serving. Mrs. Magee is to be cook.

The kitchen has been made over from one of the school rooms that was formerly on the Bastanchury ranch and is arranged with a kitchen at one end and with long table benches that will seat 80 children at a time.

The work has been done principally with CWA funds and has included refinishing of the inside and re-roofing of the building, as well as moving it to the Ford school site.

Children may have soup at one cent a bowl. Those who cannot pay are to be given tickets exactly like the tickets of those who can pay, and any donations to the kitchen, in funds or otherwise, are to be made by parents. It is particularly requested the children bring no more than one cent a bowl for soup. Parents wishing to make money donations are requested to make them to school authorities, or to Mrs. Purdy and her P.-T. A. members for the work.

As soon as the work is well under way, a tea and open house will be held by the P.-T. A. in the new kitchen.

LA HABRA, Jan. 26.—Over 250 members and friends attended the monthly meeting of the La Habra Farm center at the Lowell Joint school last Wednesday, with the new president, C. Jack Zinn, presiding.

Holmes Bishop, executive secretary of the Orange County farm bureau, warned growers against strike methods as practiced by agricultural labor agitators. He declared that the American Federation of Labor was not behind these movements. He said they were usually started by paid agitators.

R. A. Wheatley was chairman of the evening and introduced J. Green of the Fruit Auction association, who showed motion pictures of the various eastern auction centers.

Farm Advisor H. E. Wahlberg introduced Mr. Parker, of the Citrus Experiment station at Riverside, who spoke on fertilization, telling the results from the various experimental plots.

Fashion Show Is Held By Society

BREA, Jan. 26.—Forty-five women, members and friends of the Ladies' Aid society of the Christian church, met in the annex of the church Wednesday for a pot-luck luncheon followed by a social afternoon. Mrs. Marie Tippin, president, Mrs. J. Wesley Runyan, Mrs. Chaires Harvey, Mrs. Frank Adams and Mrs. Kenneth Sutliff comprised the committee in charge of the luncheon and entertainment.

Practically every guest was in old fashioned costume, providing the theme for the fashion show which followed immediately after the luncheon. Each guest brought a "white elephant" gift to be exchanged with another guest, the gifts arranged about a table representing an African jungle in which stood miniature elephants.

Games were played and songs contributed by Mrs. F. J. Schweitzer and Mrs. Harvey, the former singing in German and the latter a gypsy song, each in typical costume.

Mrs. Geo. Friend Hostess To Brea

BREA, Jan. 26.—A pleasant evening of bridge was enjoyed at the home of Mrs. George Friend this week when members of the O. O. O. Bridge club gathered there for their monthly meeting.

Members playing were Mrs. Eda Hurst, Mrs. Forrest Hurst, Mrs. George Gesme, Mrs. Floyd LaGraffe, Mrs. E. H. Templeman, Mrs. Dayton Alexander, Mrs. Roy Shoff, Mrs. L. A. Stumbo, Mrs. Harry Yarbrough, Mr. Rosemary Bennett, and the hostess. Mrs. Margaret McKemy, Fullerton, supplied for Mrs. Ted Craig who could not be present.

Mrs. Alexander scored for first prize and Mrs. McKemy was awarded for the second high score. At the close of the playing Mrs. Friend served ice cream, cake and coffee.

FORD SCHOOL SOUP KITCHEN SCHEDULED TO OPEN MONDAY

FULLERTON, Jan. 26. — The Ford school soup kitchen will open Monday and it is anticipated more than 200 children will be served hot soup at noon. Delays have made the opening much later than anticipated.

Mrs. W. B. Purdy, president of the Ford Parent-Teacher association under which the kitchen will be operated, has ready lists of names of parents providing for 10 women each day to assist Mrs. George Magee in serving. Mrs. Magee is to be cook.

The kitchen has been made over from one of the school rooms that was formerly on the Bastanchury ranch and is arranged with a kitchen at one end and with long table benches that will seat 80 children at a time.

The work has been done principally with CWA funds and has included refinishing of the inside and re-roofing of the building, as well as moving it to the Ford school site.

Children may have soup at one cent a bowl. Those who cannot pay are to be given tickets exactly like the tickets of those who can pay, and any donations to the kitchen, in funds or otherwise, are to be made by parents. It is particularly requested the children bring no more than one cent a bowl for soup. Parents wishing to make money donations are requested to make them to school authorities, or to Mrs. Purdy and her P.-T. A. members for the work.

As soon as the work is well under way, a tea and open house will be held by the P.-T. A. in the new kitchen.

NIGHT BASEBALL TEAM CONSIDERED

FULLERTON, Jan. 26.—Fullerton Chamber of Commerce directors yesterday voted to investigate the possibility of starting a night baseball team, in connection with making use of the baseball field being developed in West Commonwealth park under the CWA program by the city council. The president, A. B. Hillabold, appointed a committee to investigate the possibilities and to report back. The committee is composed of Ralph Irwin, J. H. Roberts and Harry Suters.

Billy Stewman, in charge of the President's Birthday ball, reported on the sale of sickets, and said arrangements have been made to serve a 140-pound birthday cake the evening of the ball.

An official delegation from the chamber is to be taken to the aqueduct of the Metropolitan Water district at a convenient date, according to Walter Humphreys, representative of Fullerton on the district board. Humphreys gave an interesting report on advancement made in the district work.

NIGHT SCHOOL TO OFFER THREE NEW CLASSES

Starting Monday night, three new courses will be added to the adult education program, it was announced today by Mrs. Golden Weston, director of the adult education department.

Instruction in all three subjects will be given by Robert Speed, of Santa Ana, who will teach creative writing, California history and advertisement writing and publicity.

The course in creative writing will be held in room 114 at the Willard Junior High school Monday evening. The course in California history will start Tuesday evening in room 113, of the Willard school, and the class in advertisement writing and publicity will begin Wednesday night in room 38, of the Lathrop Junior High school. There will be no charge for any of the courses.

Speed, who recently finished a course of instruction in short story writing at the Y. M. C. A., is well qualified to teach the three subjects, according to Mrs. Weston. In the field of creative writing he has had short stories and articles in the Sunday magazine section of the Los Angeles Times and in the last three years he has sold articles, short stories and serial stories to nine different magazines, Mrs. Weston said.

He was in newspaper work and publication management for 10 years and has been a student of California history for many years and has both written and lectured on this subject, it was announced.

Picnics and Reunions

KANSAS

Judge Wm. F. Schoch, president of the Long Beach Kansas Association, announces the annual Kansas day picnic reunion, celebrating the seventy-third anniversary of statehood, all day Monday, January 29 in Bixby park, Long Beach. There will be county registers and headquarters so all may find the old neighbors. There will be a brief program opening at 2 o'clock, songs, short talks, but the main purpose will be to have a good time. Raymond Darby, Mayor of Inglewood, will be among the popular speakers. All the tourists and visitors from the old home state will be made welcome and may meet many old time friends.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to Walgreen's, McCoy Drug or your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

IF YOU STILL Have GOOD FRONT TEETH, but your back ones are out why not get a Partial Plate? They are comfortable to wear and will fill out that sunken place in your cheeks. Come in and ask about them.

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON

By Paul Mallon

GRAFT

News readers must think Washington has gone stark mad.

Here the administration is beating its breast and charging itself with corruption, graft and bad politics. And there is congress yawning about it.

Nothing like that ever happened before. The normal procedure is for an administration to maintain it is purer than the driven snow, while congress throws soot wildly all around the place.

The chance is startling, but not without reason. In fact, there papears to be a rather definite method behind the madness.

• • •

In some respects it is the shrewdest strategy yet devised under the new deal.

The charges of graft and politics made by the Public Works and Civil Works administrators against their outfits are notably unspecific. Public mention is given only in minor cases. Other more serious cases are supposed to exist but are not being advertised.

The breast-beating strengthens public confidence in officials at the top and frightens the petty grafters at the bottom. The activities of the petty fellows are hard to prove.

Also it takes the wind out of the sails of such Republicans as Senator Arthur Robinson, who has been attracting attention by making similar charges against the administration.

That makes it about a 100 per cent logical Democratic move.

It is precisely the same strategy followed by Mr. Roosevelt in the budget. He made it look so bad that he left his opponents nothing to say about it.

• • •

CONGRESS

The strangest aspect is the refusal of congress to start investigating all this graft. The explanation for that is the real meat in the cocoanut.

Congressmen live off the fat of federal expenditures. There is not a Democrat, Republican or moron in congress who wants to do anything to interfere with the distribution of federal funds to constituents in his home district. He wants his people to get all the PWA and CWA money they can. He will be the last one to rock the boat, while they are getting it.

The situation can be expected to continue so long as the money lasts.

• • •

RESULTS

When the Republican Robinson made his attack on federal expenditures, Democratic Pat Harrison asked him if he was opposed to building postoffices in his home state of Indiana; if he wanted the CWA to allot less money for Indiana.

The Indianan avoided a direct answer by saying he did not wish to be divorted from his subject.

Republican representative Fred Britten (a big navy man) chided the Democrats for expenses in the house this week. A baby Democrat from Texas turned Britten around by asking if he favored smaller appropriations for the navy. Britten had to confess he did not.

The Democrats seem to have the Republicans just where they want them on the expenditures issue.

• • •

TRUST

The corrupt dealing in relief expenditures seems to be no more, and probably it is less than was anticipated.

Messrs. Ickes and Hopkins have the confidence of nearly everyone. The feeling seems to be general that if Ickes has erred in public works it has been on the side of too much caution. No one could spend all the money he and Hopkins are spending without being victimized by undetected graft of a minor nature all along the line.

Reports indicate that state politicians in some instances have played politics with distribution of CWA funds. The method of distribution is so involved that there are more cases of absurdities than there are of graft.

In one instance a high school graduate in mechanical drawing received an architect's allowance from the CWA. He read the funny papers for several weeks until some one asked him to design something and then it was discovered he was not an architect. Also he had a letter from his senator which he used to get on the CWA payroll in the first place.

• • •

MARKET

The stock market boys have not been worrying very much about legislation. They expect congress will pass a simple general proposal for licensing exchanges under an indefinite federal overlordship.

Under that agreement the exchanges themselves will be held responsible for protecting the public. The government would NOT try to make specific rules requiring so much margin, etc.

Such legislation would probably bring very little, if any, change in the existing corrected rules of the New York exchange. It might force the little exchanges around the country to conform to New York corrections.

That is one reason why the markets paid no attention to the news that the Dickinson market regulation report had been submitted to the president.

Another reason was the tip that the Dickinson report would be submitted to the banking committee merely for its information, and not as an administration recommendation.

NOTES

A southern congressman says he has received dozens of complaints from his constituents whose cooks, maids and chauffeurs have quit to work for the CWA. Some of the complaints stated that the CWA paid for quilting and such household tasks.

• • •

The treasury interest rate is going up as expected. It was 2¼ per cent in December, is now 2½ per cent and will be higher.

• • •

The man who did most of the detail work in putting the deposit insurance scheme across was Walter J. Owens, who has been in the treasury 20 years, although his name has not been mentioned in the publicity congratulations being handed around.

• • •

One thing about the CWA is certain, namely that the $357,000,000 doled out up to Jan. 20 directly created that much purchasing power.

FARMERS

Their recent contacts with Washington show a sudden form reversal in the Agriculture Department. Their status has changed from unwanted step-children to prodigal sons. Authorities assure them that no plan affecting their interests will be put into effect without their advance knowledge and consent.

Insiders give chief credit for this lightning change act to Governor Lehman. A special messenger was sent from Albany to Washington to tell those concerned that it wasn't quite right to handle farm groups, which had given the president and the governor such firm political aid, as if they were something the cat had dragged in.

New York farm leaders interpret recent events as meaning that Tugwell's agricultural theories are being pushed into a closet. They were told in Washington that the Professor was their best friend but they remained politely skeptical.

Local authorities contend that we are up against a tougher game than we realize in playing our stabilization fund against England's. They say that matching our experience in the foreign exchange field against Britain's is like pitting a couple of bridge amateurs against the Culbertsons. They wonder whether a superiority in the cards we hold will offset our opponents' skill.

One of the main problems the managers of our fund must solve is that of maintaining a plentiful supply of dollars to meet the demand arising from repatriation of capital, increasing foreign investments here and a balance of exports over imports. If we don't do that the dollar is bound to rise in foreign markets and upset the price lifting program.

In order to supply dollars we must sell them and buy something abroad. The question is what. It is risky to buy pounds because England might ditch us with a heavy loss by devaluation of her own. The amount of gold we can buy is limited. Some experts think the best answer is Shanghai exchange—which would tend to raise prices in the Orient.

COMBINATION

Insiders have evidence that Japan and Britain have combined informally to keep Far Eastern prices down to their own advantage and the detriment of our aims. It's all done through China. Japanese and British investments in that country have shown a startling growth recently.

You'll hear a lot more about China before this question of money and prices is settled. This also means that the silver question is only napping.

• • •

SPECULATORS

Speculators in foreign exchange are pulling all kinds of fancy stunts in order to make some last-minute hay before our $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund puts the quietus on them. That accounts for the strange gyrations of the dollar in the past week. Contrary to reports England has done nothing serious about it. She is waiting for us to make the first move.

• • •

WHEAT

The world wheat agreement is due to be opened for discussion again soon on Australian initiative. The Aussies have decided that their quota is the last word in economic injustice.

• • •

MANCHUKUO

The new Manchukuo government with Pu-Yi on the throne is to be fashioned point for point on the Japanese pattern. Besides its hereditary ruler it will have a Cabinet, a Diet and an assortment of government bureaus just like Japan's. Pu-Yi's promotion is due to a feeling in Tokyo that it wouldn't be comfortable to have a government which was republican even in theory as such a close associate.

Americans in the Far East are urging the President to recognize Manchukuo as soon as Pu-Yi is crowned. They suggest that recognition would overcome Japan's belief that the United States has secretly agreed to support Soviet Russia in case of a Russo-Japanese war.

• • •

STOPOVERS

Most people traveling from Vienna to Prague go by airplane these days. During December and January the planes on this route are machines of the German Lufthansa line. Several times during recent weeks the planes did not land at Prague "on account of low visibility" but continued to Germany.

That always happened when German refugees happened to be aboard who were active in anti-Nazi work in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. They were appropriately welcomed on German soil.

ATTACHMENT

The American holder of a $1000 bond of the North German Lloyd who obtained a $30 judgment against the line for defaulting on the semi-annual interest payment won a Pyrrhic victory.

Theoretically he can now attach the super-liners Europa and Bremen. He found it would cost him about $30,000 if he went through with it and the line decided not to defend the action.

A combine of bondholders would be a different story but what to do with the ships?

• • •

REFUGEES

This figure jibes with information that American Consular offices in Germany issued immigration visas to more than 1000 German-Jewish families during the year.

INCREASE IN GAS

Gasoline consumption during 1933 was slightly in excess of that for 1932, indicating increased use of motor vehicles, and motorists spent approximately $2,225,000,000 for motor fuel, including taxes, according to the American Automobile Association.

NIGHT SCHOOL TO OFFER THREE NEW CLASSES

Starting Monday night, three new courses will be added to the adult education program, it was announced today by Mrs. Golden Weston, director of the adult education department.

Picnics and Reunions

KANSAS

Judge Wm. F. Schoch, president of the Long Beach Kansas Association, announces the annual Kansas day picnic reunion, celebrating the seventy-third anniversary of statehood, all day Monday, January 29 in Bixby park, Long Beach. There will be county registers and headquarters so all may find the old neighbors. There will be a brief program opening at 2 o'clock, songe, short talks, but the main purpose will be to have a good time. Raymond Darby, Mayor of Inglewood, will be among the popular speakers. All the tourists and visitors from the old home state will be made welcome and may meet many old time friends.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to Walgreen's, McCoy Drug or your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

IF YOU STILL Have GOOD FRONT TEETH, but your back ones are out why not get a Partial Plate? They are comfortable to wear and will fill out that sunken place in your cheeks. Come in and ask about them.

-- News Behind The News --

WASHINGTON

By Paul Mallon

GRAFT

News readers must think Washington has gone stark mad.

Here the administration is beating its breast and charging itself with corruption, graft and bad politics. And there is congress yawning about it.

Nothing like that ever happened before. The normal procedure is for an administration to maintain it is purer than the driven snow, while congress throws soot wildly all around the place.

The chance is startling, but not without reason. In fact, there papears to be a rather definite method behind the madness.

* * *

REASONS

In some respects it is the shrewdest strategy yet devised under the new deal.

The charges of graft and politics made by the Public Works and Civil Works administrators against their outfits are notably unspecific. Public mention is given only in minor cases. Other more serious cases are supposed to exist but are not being advertised.

The breast-beating strengthens public confidence in officials at the top and frightens the petty grafters at the bottom. The activities of the petty fellows are hard to prove.

Also it takes the wind out of the sails of such Republicans as Senator Arthur Robinson, who has been attracting attention by making similar charges against the administration.

That makes it about a 100 per cent logical Democratic move.

It is precisely the same strategy followed by Mr. Roosevelt in the budget. He made it look so bad that he left his opponents nothing to say about it.

* * *

CONGRESS

The strangest aspect is the refusal of congress to start investigating all this graft. The explanation for that is the real meat in the cocoanut.

Congressmen live off the fat of federal expenditures. There is not a Democrat, Republican or moron in congress who wants to do anything to interfere with the distribution of federal funds to constituents in his home district. He wants his people to get all the PWA and CWA money they can. He will be the last one to rock the boat, while they are getting it.

The situation can be expected to continue so long as the money lasts.

* * *

RESULTS

When the Republican Robinson made his attack on federal expenditures, Democratic Pat Harrison asked him if he was opposed to building postoffices in his home state of Indiana; if he wanted the CWA to allot less money for Indiana.

The Indianan avoided a direct answer by saying he did not wish to be divorted from his subject.

Republican representative Fred Britten (a big navy man) chided the Democrats for expenses in the house this week. A baby Democrat from Texas turned Britten around by asking if he favored smaller appropriations for the navy. Britten had to confess he did not.

The Democrats seem to have the Republicans just where they want them on the expenditures issue.

TRUST

The corrupt dealing in relief expenditures seems to be no more, and probably it is less than was anticipated.

Messrs. Ickes and Hopkins have the confidence of nearly everyone. The feeling seems to be general that if Ickes has erred in public works it has been on the side of too much caution. No one could spend all the money he and Hopkins are spending without being victimized by undetected graft of a minor nature all along the line.

Reports indicate that state politicians in some instances have played politics with distribution of CWA funds. The method of distribution is so involved that there are more cases of absurdities than there are of graft.

In one instance a high school graduate in mechanical drawing received an architect's allowance from the CWA. He read the funny papers for several weeks until some one asked him to design something and then it was discovered he was not an architect. Also he had a letter from his senator which he used to get on the CWA payroll in the first place.

MARKET

The stock market boys have not been worrying very much about legislation. They expect congress will pass a simple general proposal for licensing exchanges under an indefinite federal overlordship.

Under that agreement the exchanges themselves will be held responsible for protecting the public. The government would NOT try to make specific rules requiring so much margin, etc.

Such legislation would probably bring very little, if any, change in the existing corrected rules of the New York exchange. It might force the little exchanges around the country to conform to New York corrections.

That is one reason why the markets paid no attention to the news that the Dickinson market regulation report had been submitted to the president.

Another reason was the tip that the Dickinson report would be submitted to the banking committee merely for its information, and not as an administration recommendation.

NOTES

A southern congressman says he has received dozens of complaints from his constituents whose cooks, maids and chauffeurs have quit to work for the CWA. Some of the complaints stated that the CWA paid for quilting and such household tasks.

* * *

The treasury interest rate is going up as expected. It was 2¼ per cent in December, is now 2½ per cent and will be higher.

* * *

The man who did most of the detail work in putting the deposit insurance scheme across was Walter J. Owens, who has been in the treasury 20 years, although his name has not been mentioned in the publicity congratulations being handed around.

* * *

One thing about the CWA is certain, namely that the $357,000,000 doled out up to Jan. 20 directly created that much purchasing power.

NEW YORK

FARMERS

Their recent contacts with Washington show a sudden form reversal in the Agriculture Department. Their status has changed from unwanted step-children to prodigal sons. Authorities assure them that no plan affecting their interests will be put into effect without their advance knowledge and consent.

Insiders give chief credit for this lightning change act to Governor Lehman. A special messenger was sent from Albany to Washington to tell those concerned that it wasn't quite right to handle farm groups, which had given the president and the governor such firm political aid, as if they were something the cat had dragged in.

New York farm leaders interpret recent events as meaning that Tugwell's agricultural theories are being pushed into a closet. They were told in Washington that the Professor was their best friend but they remained politely skeptical.

EXCHANGE

Local authorities contend that we are up against a tougher game than we realize in playing our stabilization fund against England's. They say that matching our experience in the foreign exchange field against Britain's is like pitting a couple of bridge amateurs against the Culbertsons. They wonder whether a superiority in the cards we hold will offset our opponents' skill.

One of the main problems the managers of our fund must solve is that of maintaining a plentiful supply of dollars to meet the demand arising from repatriation of capital, increasing foreign investments here and a balance of exports over imports. If we don't do that the dollar is bound to rise in foreign markets and upset the price lifting program.

In order to supply dollars we must sell them and buy something abroad. The question is what. It is risky to buy pounds because England might ditch us with a heavy loss by devaluation of her own. The amount of gold we can buy is limited. Some experts think the best answer is Shanghai exchange—which would tend to raise prices in the Orient.

COMBINATION

Insiders have evidence that Japan and Britain have combined informally to keep Far Eastern prices down to their own advantage and the detriment of our aims. It's all done through China. Japanese and British investments in that country have shown a startling growth recently.

You'll hear a lot more about China before this question of money and prices is settled. This also means that the silver question is only napping.

SPECULATORS

Speculators in foreign exchange are pulling all kinds of fancy stunts in order to make some last-minute hay before our $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund puts the quietus on them. That accounts for the strange gyrations of the dollar in the past week. Contrary to reports England has done nothing serious about it. She is waiting for us to make the first move.

* * *

WHEAT

The world wheat agreement is due to be opened for discussion again soon on Australian initiative. The Aussies have decided that their quota is the last word in economic injustice.

* * *

MANCHUKUO

The new Manchukuo government with Pu-Yi on the throne is to be fashioned point for point on the Japanese pattern. Besides its hereditary ruler it will have a Cabinet, a Diet and an assortment of government bureaus just like Japan's. Pu-Yi's promotion is due to a feeling in Tokyo that it wouldn't be comfortable to have a government which was republican even in theory as such a close associate.

Americans in the Far East are urging the President to recognize Manchukuo as soon as Pu-Yi is crowned. They suggest that recognition would overcome Japan's belief that the United States has secretly agreed to support Soviet Russia in case of a Russo-Japanese war.

STOPOVERS

Most people traveling from Vienna to Prague go by airplane these days. During December and January the planes on this route are machines of the German Lufthansa line. Several times during recent weeks the planes did not land at Prague "on account of low visibility" but continued to Germany.

That always happened when German refugees happened to be aboard who were active in anti-Nazi work in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. They were appropriately welcomed on German soil.

ATTACHMENT

The American holder of a $1000 bond of the North German Lloyd who obtained a $30 judgment against the line for defaulting on the semi-annual interest payment won a Pyrrhic victory.

Theoretically he can now attach the super-liners Europa and Bremen. He found it would cost him about $30,000 if he went through with it and the line decided not to defend the action.

A combine of bondholders would be a different story but what to do with the ships?

REFUGEES

INCREASE IN GAS

Gasoline consumption during 1933 was slightly in excess of that for 1932, indicating increased use of motor vehicles, and motorists spent approximately $2,225,000,000 for motor fuel, including taxes, according to the American Automobile Association.

Bus Pigeon Switches To New Driver

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 26.—Photographers were doubled crossed yesterday morning by the strange pigeon, whose flights with Greyhound lines buses for the past month have mystified drivers and passengers. The bird, which for the past week has ben flying to Laguna Beach and beyond, starting at Newport Beach, accompanying the bus arriving here at 8:50 a. m., switched about two miles north of the city to a Motor Transit bus bound to Santa Ana. A. J. Leroux, the driver of the Greyhound bus with which the bird was expected to arrive, declared it was the first time the pigeon had accompanied any but one of their vehicles.

Th bird first was noticed by Leroux last month when it picked up his bus at Newport Beach, settled into a position outside the window next to the driver's seat and followed the vehicle to a point north of Huntington Beach. The performance was repeated every morning for two weeks. At that time Leroux was on the run leaving here at 9:45 a. m. and going toward Long Beach. Other drivers had the run at times but the bird kept up the practice. Two weeks ago the pigeon accompanied Leroux as far as Laguna Beach. One morning it went as far as Oceanside with another driver. Several mornings when the bus left this city, going south, the pigeon was perched atop the baggage on the rear.

So yesterday morning newspaper men and photographers awaited the pigeon's arrival, hoping to get some good pictures. They wonder if the pigeon is camera shy, or if it sensed the fact there was to be a reception.

McKay, Mrs. Whitson, Mrs. Fred Foley and sister, Mrs. Beale, Mrs. Russell I. Johnson, Mrs. William Frazier, Mrs. Anna L. Van Steenbergh, Mrs. Gerald Gill and the hostess, Mrs Pearl Arnett.

The Needle Crafters' club, which is composed of practically the same group, will meet for pot luck luncheon and a day's needlework February 7 at the home of Mrs. Mary Boden, 916 Garfield street, Santa Ana.

Auxiliary Plans Welfare Activity

BREA, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Ruth Doty, president, presided at the brief business session of the American Legion auxiliary held in the Legion hall Wednesday night.

Plans for welfare work occupied most of the time, the welfare committee having in mind work to be done immediately. Mrs. Mary Crowe is chairman of this committee.

Mrs. Doty announced the county council meeting in Buena Park February 13. The next meeting of the Brea unit will be held on February 14.

WORLD AFFAIRS DISCUSSED AT CLUB SESSION

YORBA LINDA, Jan. 26.—Mrs. E. E. Smith, of Anaheim, speaking before members of Yorba Linda Woman's club this week, brought views of modern and current events as portrayed through the present contemporary writers.

She was introduced by Mrs. C. E. Simmons, program chairman, and presented a list of books with a very short resume of each to members. Mrs. Willits Van Cleave presided and the hostesses, Mrs. J. A. Logsdon, Mrs. George Giddings and Mrs. A. A. Adams, served refreshments at the close of the session.

In presenting her suggested list of books portraying modern trends, Mrs. Smith, who was a member of a Sherwood Eddy tour in Europe, divided the group into several sections. On world peace she suggested reading "We Move in New Directions," by H. A. Overstreet; "Cry Havoc," by Beverley Nichols; "Testament of Youth," by Vera Brittain; "America Faces the Next War," Frank Simmonds.

China, which she said is gradually making progress, may be seen from many views by reading "House of Exile," by Nora Waln; "Oil for the Lamps of China," by Alice lesdale Hobart; "Ways That Are Dark," by Ralph Thompson, and "The Challenge of the East," by Sherwood Eddy.

Germany, which to Mrs. Smith presents the greatest problem today, has a list of modern books that give a picture of things as they are, and she presented these books: "Germany Enters the Third Reich," by Calvin Hoover; "Hitler's Reich," by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, and "My Struggle," by Adolph Hitler.

Facts on Russia may be learned by reading "The Great Offensive," by Maurice Hindus; "First to Go Back," by Irma Skaviatma, author also of "The New Life Begins" and "Russia Day by Day," by Carliss and Margaret Lamont, and "British Agent," by R. H. Bruce Lockhart, while the picture of Europe in general may be had slightly by reading "The Challenge of Europe," by Sherwood Eddy, and "Europe Today," by G. D. H. and Margaret Cole.

Miss Marsha Vernon announced that 18 tables will be representative of states of the nation at the states dinner to be served February 10 and Mrs. J. A. Small and Mrs. S. W. Acker are to be in charge of the dinner.

PARENT EDUCATION LECTURES OPEN IN HARBOR HIGH SCHOOL

NEWPORT HEIGHTS, Jan. 26.—Dr. Jessie Fenton, specialist in child psychology, addressed over 50 fathers and mothers on the topic, "What is a Wholesome Child?" at the Newport Harbor union high school yesterday, opening a series of talks on parent education.

"Parenthood should be a business and not a matter of mere intuition," Dr. Fenton said. "Parenthood is among the highest of all callings, yet it receives almost the least training of any. A study of several hundred children shows that one of the chief reasons why they grow up unwholesomely is that they are unhappy. The solution of the problem then is; strive to give the child a feeling of security, capability and independence. Teach him to love and be loved, strive to keep down any social wall that may be growing up about him, and help him build up a mental wholesomeness by letting him be himself as much as possible. There are no bad children; their character weaknesses plus environment make them so."

There will be eight meetings, held each Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. It was definitely arranged that a nursery will be established to care for small children. A competent woman will be in charge, it was stated.

Principal S. H. Davidson welcomed the group on behalf of the school board of trustees. Mrs. J. R. McClure was in charge of the meeting.

The course is being handled under the auspices of the Newport Beach and the Costa Mesa Parent-Teacher associations. Mrs. Alberta Sparkes is president of the Newport Beach group, Mrs. C. C. Brown of the Lindbergh group of Costa Mesa, and Mrs. Lillian Hill of the Main school group of Costa Mesa.

At the next meeting on February 1 Kenyon J. Scudder, probation officer of Los Angeles county, will speak on the topic, "The Juvenile Wanderer Reaches Los Angeles."

GARDEN GROVE METHODIST AID CIRCLES MEET

GARDEN GROVE, Jan. 26.—Members of two circles of the Woman's Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church met this week. Circle No. 1 met for an all day meeting in the home of Mrs. F. A. Monroe on Ocean avenue, with Mrs. W. M. Adland as cohostess.

The time was spent in sewing on a layette for welfare work. A short business session was presided over by Mrs. Ralph Chaffee in the absence of Mrs. Edward Chaffee, president.

At 1 o'clock luncheon was served at one long table decorated with a centerpiece of stocks. Covers were placed for Mesdames J. M. Chilson, Grover Ralston, Ralph Chaffee, G. R. Reyburn, Conser, J. C. Mitchell, A. F. Mills, Holiday, Glenn Short, S. S. Jackson, G. F. Crane, Earl Gardner, T. C. Natland, Miss Mettie Chaffee and the hostesses.

Mrs. Elmer Launders entertained members of circle No. 2 at her home on East Acacia street Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Percy Prior presided at the business meeting. Plans were made for the serving of the Brotherhood dinner in February, with the following committee appointed to have charge: Mrs. Edward R. Schneider, Mrs. Robert McDonald and Mrs. Elmer Launders.

Devotionals were led by Mrs. Grover Ralston, who also gave a report to the Federated Woman's Aid meeting held in Orange recently. After a guessing game had been played the remainder of the afternoon was spent piecing a quilt.

Refreshments of tea and cookies were served to the following: Mesdames Harvey Newsom, Fred Andres, Will Schnitger, W. W. Dungan, Ralph Reafsnyder, L. Launders, E. P. Williams, Grover Ralston, Wesley Lamb, Storm, Bartlett, M. R. Sprinkle, C. Edwards, Conrad Schroff, J. H. Chilson, E. R. Schneider, Percy Prior, A. Rogers, Robert McDonald and Launders.

Girl Scouts In School Program

WESTMINSTER, Jan. 26.—Mr. sixth, seventh and eighth grade classes of Westminster school were entertained at assembly Thursday by 32 members of Miss Nellie French's Girl Scout troop No. 2.

The program was announced by Doris Montgomery, one of the Scouts and was as follows: "Hike Song," by troop; skit, "A Weekly Meeting of Girls," by the Indian and Eagle Patrols, talk on "What Scouts Are," by Linda McDaniel, Scout; knot tying contest by Mildred Robertson, Frances Dell Hurd, Freida Knox and Linda McDaniel. Bus Pigeon Switches To New Driver

LAGUNA BEACH, Jan. 26.—Photographers were doubled crossed yesterday morning by the strange pigeon, whose flights with Greyhound lines buses for the past month have mystified drivers and passengers. The bird, which for the past week has ben flying to Laguna Beach and beyond, starting at Newport Beach, accompanying the bus arriving here at 8:50 a. m., switched about two miles north of the city to a Motor Transit bus bound to Santa Ana. A. J. Leroux, the driver of the Greyhound bus with which the bird was expected to arrive, declared it was the first time the pigeon had accompanied any but one of their vehicles.

Th bird first was noticed by Leroux last month when it picked up his bus at Newport Beach, settled into a position outside the window next to the driver's seat and followed the vehicle to a point north of Huntington Beach. The performance was repeated every morning for two weeks. At that time Leroux was on the run leaving here at 9:45 a. m. and going toward Long Beach. Other drivers had the run at times but the bird kept up the practice. Two weeks ago the pigeon accompanied Leroux as far as Laguna Beach. One morning it went as far as Oceanside with another driver. Several mornings when the bus left this city, going south, the pigeon was perched atop the baggage on the rear.

So yesterday morning newspaper men and photographers awaited the pigeon's arrival, hoping to get some good pictures. They wonder if the pigeon is camera shy, or if it sensed the fact there was to be a reception.

WORLD AFFAIRS DISCUSSED AT CLUB SESSION

YORBA LINDA, Jan. 26.—Mrs. E. E. Smith, of Anaheim, speaking before members of Yorba Linda Woman's club this week, brought views of modern and current events as portrayed through the present contemporary writers.

She was introduced by Mrs. C. E. Simmons, program chairman, and presented a list of books with a very short resume of each to members. Mrs. Willits Van Cleave presided and the hostesses, Mrs. J. A. Logsdon, Mrs. George Giddings and Mrs. A. A. Adams, served refreshments at the close of the session.

In presenting her suggested list of books portraying modern trends, Mrs. Smith, who was a member of a Sherwood Eddy tour in Europe, divided the group into several sections. On world peace she suggested reading "We Move in New Directions," by H. A. Overstreet; "Cry Havoc," by Beverley Nichols; "Testament of Youth," by Vera Brittain; "America Faces the Next War," Frank Simmonds.

China, which she said is gradually making progress, may be seen from many views by reading "House of Exile," by Nora Waln; "Oil for the Lamps of China," by Alice Iesdale Hobart; "Ways That Are Dark," by Ralph Thompson, and "The Challenge of the East," by Sherwood Eddy.

Germany, which to Mrs. Smith presents the greatest problem today, has a list of modern books that give a picture of things as they are, and she presented these books: "Germany Enters the Third Reich," by Calvin Hoover; "Hitler's Reich," by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, and "My Struggle," by Adolph Hitler.

Facts on Russia may be learned by reading "The Great Offensive," by Maurice Hindus; "First to Go Back," by Irma Skaviatma, author also of "The New Life Begins" and "Russia Day by Day," by Carliss and Margaret Lamont, and "British Agent," by R. H. Bruce Lockhart, while the picture of Europe in general may be had slightly by reading "The Challenge of Europe," by Sherwood Eddy, and "Europe Today," by G. D. H. and Margaret Cole.

PARENT EDUCATION LECTURES OPEN IN HARBOR HIGH SCHOOL

NEWPORT HEIGHTS, Jan. 26.—Dr. Jessie Fenton, specialist in child psychology, addressed over 50 fathers and mothers on the topic, "What is a Wholesome Child?" at the Newport Harbor union high school yesterday, opening a series of talks on parent education.

"Parenthood should be a business and not a matter of mere intuition," Dr. Fenton said. "Parenthood is among the highest of all callings, yet it receives almost the least training of any. A study of several hundred children shows that one of the chief reasons why they grow up unwholesomely is that they are unhappy. The solution of the problem then is; strive to give the child a feeling of security, capability and independence. Teach him to love and be loved, strive to keep down any social wall that may be growing up about him, and help him build up a mental wholesomeness by letting him be himself as much as possible. There are no bad children; their character weaknesses plus environment make them so."

There will be eight meetings, held each Thursday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. It was definitely arranged that a nursery will be established to care for small children. A competent woman will be in charge, it was stated.

Principal S. H. Davidson welcomed the group on behalf of the school board of trustees. Mrs. J. R. McClure was in charge of the meeting.

The course is being handled under the auspices of the Newport Beach and the Costa Mesa Parent-Teacher associations. Mrs. Alberta Sparkes is president of the Newport Beach group, Mrs. C. C. Brown of the Lindbergh group of Costa Mesa, and Mrs. Lillian Hill of the Main school group of Costa Mesa.

HUSBAND SUES DOCTOR OVER WIFE'S DEATH

Charging that Dr. Francis D. Coltrin of Fullerton was negligent in operating and neglectful of his wife after the operation Ernest C. Turner has filed a suit in superior court demanding damages of $50,000 for the death of his wife on Christmas day.

According to the complaint his wife, Mrs. Effie Lewis Turner, went under the care of Dr. Coltrin December 18, suffering from "pernicious vomiting pregnancy" and the doctor was to "operate and cure her for a reasonable reward."

Turner alleges in the complaint filed with County Clerk Joe Backs that a therapeutic abortion was performed on his wife from which she later contracted septicemia and died. He charges the doctor was careless with the operation and afterwards left Mrs. Turner without further care or treatment, according to the complaint.

SAN CLEMENTE

SAN CLEMENTE, Jan. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Sanders, of Westwood Hills, were recent over night guests of their daughter, Mrs. F. T. Hogeland.

Mrs. Virgil Westbrook entertained a group of friends Tuesday with a luncheon at noon followed by bridge. Mrs. Clare Hogeland, Mrs. Patti Divel and Mrs. Genelia Johnston were guests. Mrs. Divel received a prize for high score.

WARDS TO HOLD COOKING CLASS EVENT IN S. A.

Believing that better cooks are far more capable of making and maintaining better, happier homes, the Montgomery Ward stores in Santa Ana is offering to the women of Santa Ana and vicinity an opportunity to become more efficient in the art of meal preparation. "Just what the wife is going to put on the table for meal-time has always been an important subject," the announcement of the event today says. Exceeded only perhaps by how well it is cooked is how well it is seasoned. Every experienced cook has her own favorite recipe for special dishes but it really requires an expert to go right down the menu list and explain the best method of making everything delicious—from soup to nuts."

Famous Chef Directs

In announcing the plans for the cooking school that is to be held by Montgomery Ward, in the basement of their store, starting Tuesday, January 30, and lasting for the six following days, E. L. Lucas, manager, said, "This is no reflection upon the cooking ability of the ladies. We all know they are wonderful cooks—even their husbands will admit that—but we thought that increased interest would be developed if the services of a celebrated chef could be secured to direct this cooking school and demonstration.

"Mr. C. S. Alexander, who will be in charge, has held cooking classes all over the country. He not only has the ability to cook wonderful dishes, but he possesses the capability of imparting this knowledge to his audience so simply and understandingly that anyone will be able to go home and duplicate Mr. Alexander's culinary feats after the lesson."

Lucas said that the public will be cordially invited to attend these demonstrations and lecture. There will be no admission charge. Seating accommodations are arranged to assure comfort for everyone in attendance. Also, according to Lucas, there will be many attractive inducements in the nature of awards to make the classes even more interesting.

GARDEN GROVE

Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Nida have as their house guest, Miss Sybil Baker of Long Beach.

Harby To Visit Old Home During Round World Trip

Andrew J. Harby, retired Santa Ana shoe dealer, will leave Monday noon from San Pedro on the Dollar steamship, President Johnson, for an extended tour of foreign countries which will end for him at his former home in Jutland, Denmark, where he will visit his sister.

The cruise will take Harby first to Honolulu, then to Japan, China, Manila, the Malay Peninsula, India, Suez, Egypt, Italy and to France, where he will leave the boat to travel through European countries to Denmark.

Harby left his home in Denmark 30 years ago and has been back twice, the last time 12 years ago. After a stay with his sister, he will travel back through Scotland and plans to leave England for New York on August 2. At New York he will take a boat through the Panama Canal back to San Pedro.

POLICEMAN'S WIFE GIVEN HEART BALM

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The affections of Policeman Norman E. Nottingham had a court value of $7500 in the opinion of a jury of 10 "model husbands" and two bachelors.

The jury brought in a $7500 verdict for Mrs. Susanne Nottingham, his wife, in her alienation of affections suit against Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue. Mrs. Nottingham sought $100,000 damages.

Mrs. Nottingham charged that Mrs. Blacklidge stole these affections and backed up her claims with testimony gleaned from spying episodes during which she climbed over automobiles and packing-cases to watch her husband and Mrs. Blacklidge in the latter's apartment.

New Bakery Will Open Here Soon

Featuring home made bread and pasteries, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Calhoun, formerly of San Diego, will open a complete modern bakeshop on Saturday, February 3, at 2202 North Main street, at the corner of Buffalo avenue.

The proprietors of the new bakery conducted a large establishment in San Diego for many years but moved to Santa Ana because they preferred the drier climate and business possibilities here. They will conduct an exclusive retail trade and will bake a complete line of cakes, pies, bread, and pastries. Nearly a month has been spent in equipping the building and a gala opening is being planned.

NEW CHEVROLET MODELS SHOWN BY McMULLEN

Proclaimed by its creators as "America's Thrill Car for 1934" the new Chevrolet, with magical "knee action" wheels, a Blue Streak engine of 80 horsepower providing a "glide instead of a ride" at 80 miles an hour, goes on display today at the B. J. McMullen agency, First and Sycamore streets.

Sleek, superbly-styled, with a 112 inch wheelbase and "the ultimate in size for a low-priced, economical car," the new Chevrolet—its sponsors declare — will once again lead the entire field in sales as it has done for the last three yetars.

Of the car and its features, W. M. Packer, Western sales chief for Chevrolet, says, "The new Chevrolet provides a glide instead of a ride because the sensations of sound and feeling, that annoy the motorist, have been eliminated. The new Chevrolet is lower, longer, more streamlined. The engine has been moved forward in the chassis. The seating has been radically changed. Because of Knee Action wheels and miraculous distribution of weight, this new Chevrolet provides a perfect Back-Seat ride. Even though the whispering Blue Streak engine whisks you out of traffic with the ease of a magic carpet and speeds you over all types of roads, you are always aware of the fact that you are gliding, not riding, in this new car.

"Knee Action"

"The secret of this glide is knee action wheels. At the General Motors Proving Ground over medieval Belgian Block road, I drove this new Chevrolet and experienced a gliding sensation at 50 miles an hour through ruts a foot deep and over boulders 8 inches high. By independent front wheel suspension—the Knee Action unit—is meant the attachment of the front wheels directly to the frame without the use of a front axle.

"Independent springing relieves the front springs of this task and permits the use of a front spring which has a soft, velvety action—just as soft, in fact, as the rear springs. Thus the new Chevrolet has front and rear springs of equal tension.

"The new Blue Streak engine—with which the 1934 Chevrolet is powered — is more powerful, smoother, quieter and more economical than any of its predecessors. Chevrolet engineers have succeeded in developing a race type engine with very small piston displacement and which delivers exceptionally high power.

Insurance Chief Makes Speech On National Hookup

Sitting in his Boston office and addressing agents of the New England Life Insurance company over a national telephone broadcasting system, George Willard Smith, president of the company, reported this week on the company's business position at the end of 1933, it was learned from Hays, Hudson and Bradstreet, general agents of the company with offices in Santa Ana at 408 North Sycamore street.

Mr. Smith's talk was received in the Los Angeles office of the company by regular telephone wires and was amplified by a loud speaker to the assembled group. The entire hook-up of 70 stations was the largest telephone broadcast of its kind in the knowledge of local telephone company officials.

Smith said the company had increased its assets during 1933 by more than $10,000,000 to a total of $288,335,000; received 13 per cent more premiums, exclusive of annuities, than in 1932, and wrote more new policies and annuity contracts than in any other year in the nine decades of its existence.

WESTERN THRILLER AT WALKER STATE

A Western Machiavelli whose greed for a range "empire" inaugurates open warfare over the possession of property known as "The Basin," provides the exciting motive that keeps the outdoor drama, "Rusty Rides Alone," now showing at Walker's State theater moving at a fast pace.

Opposed to this tyrant is a lone ranger, as played by the popular Tim McCoy, who succeeds in defeating the plans of the man who would drive all the other homesteaders from their lands.

Barbara Weeks is seen as the leading lady, Dorothy Burgess portrays a high-spirited daughter of the grasping tyrant, and the remaining members of the cast include Rockliffe Fellows, Edmund Burns and Wheeler Oakman.

INSURANCE FIRM SUED ON POLICY

Mrs. Norah D. Morris of Santa Ana, widow of John Morris, has filed suit in superior court against the Prudence Mutual Life Insurance association alleging that the association has refused to pay her the face value of a life insurance policy in the company, held by hr husband.

In her complaint Mrs. Morris charges that the association issued a policy for $2000 to her husband August 1, 1928. The policy named her as beneficiary. At the time of his death, July 25, 1933, according to the complaint Morris was in good standing with the association. On August 7, the same year Mrs. Morris, according to the complaint, furnished the company with proof of her husband's death and later was notified in writing that the company denied liability under the policy.

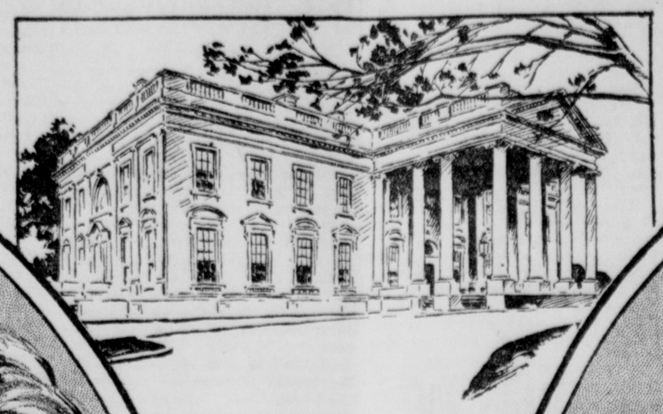
Contrasting America's Two "New Dealers"

ANDREW JACKSON
1834



FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT
1934

By Henry W. Lawrence
Professor of History, Connecticut College.

With Jackson, the firebrand, came the rise of the common man, the people taking charge of government; with Roosevelt, the diplomat, comes the rescue of the "forgotten man," the government taking charge of the people

A CENTURY ago the "man of the hour" was Andrew Jackson, just as Franklin Roosevelt is today.

Very different, these two men—and very similar. As to their difference, take the following scene, and try to imagine Roosevelt playing Jackson's part:

Two angry men are standing, ten yards apart, glaring at each other. One is Andrew Jackson; the other Charles Dickinson, the best shot in the Mississippi Valley. Each of these men is determined to kill the other, in a very gentlemanly duel.

It has been agreed that at the word "Fire!" each may shoot as quickly as he chooses. Jackson knows Dickinson to be quicker on the trigger than he, so he deliberately lets him shoot first. The bullet breaks a rib or two and scrapes his breastbone. A mere scratch, since his heart is still ticking. Now it is Jackson's turn.

Slowly he raises his long arm and takes careful aim. He pulls the trigger, but the pistol misses fire. The seconds decide that this was merely a mechanical error, and that he has another shot.

With murderous calmness, Jackson again takes long and deadly aim. He fires, and kills his antagonist.

TAKE another illustration. France, in Jackson's time as now, owed money to the United States, which we had long been trying unsuccessfully to collect. Conciliation and diplomatic politeness were not in Jackson's nature; hence he had demanded payment in words that France considered insulting.

That he was about to add plenty more to this insult would appear from the following notes on the subject, written in his own hand and spelled in his own way, as a proposed part of his next message to Congress. Fortunately Jackson's diplomatic advisers managed to suppress these irritating though truthful comments on the French failure to pay.

"A pretended insult to her in the President Message of 1834! What! France take offense at a message which detailed the truth! Why, it may be asked, had not France paid the debt she acknowledged to be just and had pledged her national faith and the honor of her King long before that she would pay?

"If she had, she would have spared the Executive of the painful duty in exposing in his communication to Congress in 1834 the facts detailing the bad faith of the Government of France, as he was bound to do by the requisitions of the Constitution. What disgraceful and dishonorable attitude has France by this proviso placed herself?"

(France demanded an apology before she would pay.) "What! After having acknowledged the justness of the debt, because she is asked to pay, being long due, and having failed to pay, she takes the requirement to pay as an insult and is contented to pockett the money which she acknowledges justly due to our citizens as an indemnity for this pretended insult—how degrading such conduct as this to that proud and chivalric nation? ? would this have been the conduct of her Frances the first, her Henry 4th, or her Boneparte, or even any high-minded honorouble Frenchman. the answer of every honest highminded honorable man must be in the negative—the debt would have been first paid, and then the demand for satisfaction of her insulted honor. . . ."

POINTS of similarity between Jackson and Roosevelt would include, surely, the nation-wide popularity of each, especially among the still numerous group of citizens not under investigation for some kind of financial iniquity. Also the tendency to one-man rule ("King Andrew the First"; "Franklin the Dictator."), and to experimentation with new measures and methods to meet new situations.

With Jackson came the rise of the common man; universal suffrage and democracy; the people taking charge of the government. With Roosevelt, the rescue of the forgotten man; codes and security; the government taking charge of the people.

Jackson brought in the astonishing heresy that government should be neither for nor by the wealthy and the well-born, but that the unwashed and unlettered mob should control it by their votes and even occupy many of its offices.

THIS filled the better people with alarm. Successful governments had never been run that way in the past, and the lurid horrors of Jacobin Democracy in the French Revolution were still fresh in their memories. The Wild West seemed to be moving in to take control over the civilized East. Experiment was about to replace experience.

The kind of people whom President Roosevelt today is calling "modern Tories" said this was all wrong and perilous and subversive of American institutions. It seemed as impractical and unsafe to the Tories of 1834 as, for example, such words as the following, uttered recently by a prominent member of the Roosevelt administration, seem to the Tories of 1934:

"It is exceedingly important that business men never again take as large a percentage of the national income for profits as they did in 1929. We need a new type of business man, who is willing to devote all his talents to bringing about a fair, workable relationship between the income of labor, the income of agriculture, and at the same time receive for his services only a small return on capital and a modest salary. If the New Deal means anything, it means subordination of capital rights and property rights to human rights."

MOREOVER, the centralization of control over business by the government in Washington seemed intolerable in Jackson's time.

Unless it were speedily checked, there would soon be no more freedom, either political or economic. At any rate, so it seemed to the people of South Carolina and in less degree to the people of other sections who disliked the government's tariff policy.

According to eminent statesmen of the South, the Constitution does not authorize the federal government to pass laws which so regulate private business as to diminish seriously the profits thereof. Under Jackson, certain protective tariff laws had been passed which gravely injured the business of exporting cotton from the southern states to England, and South Carolina was all ready to lead an armed revolt against this unconstitutional enlargement of federal authority.

Revolt was avoided by a compromise, but the resentment against undue and unwarranted interference by government in business remained.

This resentment waned in the presence of the dire national emergency of March, 1933, but it shows signs of reviving rapidly with the prospect of prosperity, and is beginning to assert the constitutional rights of a traditionally rugged individualism against the collectivist tendency of President Roosevelt's New Deal legislation. Today, as a hundred years ago, the Constitution is called upon to authorize ever-increasing powers for the national government.

JACKSON'S management of the national finances and currency is the subject of almost as much criticism and controversy today as is that of President Roosevelt. Our central financial institution of a hundred years ago was the Bank of the United States, chartered in 1816 for a 20-year period, but slain in mortal combat by President Jackson before that period had expired.

To Jackson, this bank was just the "Big Bad Wolf" of Wall Street, and he easily mobilized against it the distrust and hatred of his supporters in the campaign of 1832, to prevent its re-charter four years later.

Then he proceeded to starve it to death by withdrawing from it the government's deposits. These deposits were placed in numerous smaller and less cautious banks, and thus became the basis for a mania of speculation which had much to do with bringing on the disastrous panic of 1837.

CONSERVATIVE bankers and statesmen then and now have joined in condemning Jackson's policy in this matter as one based on ignorance and a willingness to try a reckless experiment. On the other hand, it has found defenders, one of whom recently stated:

"It is significant that the masses of the people, not without evidence to justify them, came to believe with President Jackson that the Bank of the United States had become a gigantic institution which could and did use its economic power and its connection with the government to entrench itself more deeply and to manipulate the finances of the country in the interest of bankers and their friends rather than of the masses of the people.

"It is likewise significant that this opinion has remained sufficiently firm to prevent the re-charter of that or of any other such monopoly. It is perhaps a coincidence that many of the present opponents of President Roosevelt's financial policies represent interest similar to those represented by the opponents of President Jackson."

Jackson's harsh and quarrelsome methods with Congress contrast sharply with Roosevelt's pleasantly persuasive coercion. When Jackson slew the bank, the Senate censured him for so doing. He protested against the censure, and year after year, through the agency of his friend Senator Benton, sought to have it expunged from the record. At last the long siege was victorious and a motion to expunge passed the Senate after a debate lasting nearly 13 hours.

IN comparing the breadth of view of these two New Dealers—their understanding of the present and vision of the future—the superiority of Roosevelt seems strikingly apparent. Indeed, there is a good deal of evidence suggesting that Jackson viewed the problems of his time in a very narrow fashion and understood very little of what was going on around him in the world at large or at home.

For instance, the letters he wrote give the reader that impression. In the preface to the most recently published volume of Jackson's correspondence, the editor comments on this fact as follows:

"The range of President Jackson's interest in the affairs of the world, and even of the United States, was plainly not wide. . . . He was content to be simply the executor of its laws and its foremost politician."

To some extent, and certainly more than Jackson, Roosevelt may be considered the creator, and not solely the creature, of a New Era, provided the beginnings he has made are at length carried to a successful completion.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

When they told Lucy Stone's mother, who had just finished milking eight cows, that her eighth baby was a girl she said, "Oh dear, I'm so sorry. A woman's life is so hard." That was in 1818. Inez Haynes Irwin in "Angels and Amazons," dramatizes the evolution of the American woman from Mrs. Stone's days to that of the woman of 1933.

This is the one social movement of the last one hundred years that has stood out above all others—the rise of woman. In the day of the pioneer, there were no women in trade, none in the professions, none in public life, only a handful in teaching, a smattering in the arts, and any woman who considered business as a career opened herself to the charge of being unsexed. Today we have a world peculiarly marked with the touch of feminine hands. Many social changes have come about through the influence of women.

It is much more than the mere struggle for equality that the book describes, however. Mrs. Irwin has been notably successful in painting the mental changes that have taken place in the American people due to feminine influence. Marriage, birth-control, world peace, education, child labor, morals have all felt the impact.

The concluding portion of the book traces the work of the individuals and organizations of the past few years. Whether woman has lost or gained by entering the struggle for a share of the world's goods, the reader is left to decide from the evidence. The author paints a realistic picture of the new place of women in a new and fast-changing world. She makes it clear at least that the remark of Lucy Stone's mother no longer applies.

Of the many fascinating cities in the world, there is none more so than San Francisco. Charles Caldwell Dobie, a native son, tells the tumultuous and dramatic story of this adventurous city in "San Francisco, A Pageant."

It was founded by priests and soldiers for the glory of God and the Spanish king. Captured, bedeviled and glorified by westward-thrusting American pioneers, it became a metropolis of questing gold-diggers, planters, trappers, promoters, bankers, whalers, poets and professors drawn from half the world. Rocked by earthquakes, devastated by fires, robbed by crooks, and rescued by vigilantes old and new—such is the invincible bantling of rocks and flats now grown to splendid maturity as it comes to the reader from Mr. Dobie's pages.

This is a beautiful book worty of its subject. It presents the flavorful personality and the glamorous history of the city of the Golden Gate. It is a dramatic story of the founding, the turbulent youth, and the far from prosaic coming age of San Francisco, home-town of the adventurous breed of the fabulous Forty-Niners. San Francisco is all here—what it has been, what it is, what it eats and wears and thinks, its sins, its gallantries, its unique bouquet.

Never has it been said more accurately of a book that the text and illustrations were produced from a love of the subject. Mr. Dobie writes of the city he has loved and studied all his life. The artist, E. H. Suydam, who went to San Francisco to do the pictures, lost his heart to the city.

Long after the Forty-Niners, gold and silver poured out of the west in a flood that made millionaires of the fortunates who could get and keep the bounty of the earth. C. B. Glasscock, who knows those men and days better than anyone else, has become their accepted historian with his two sparkling books, "The Big Bonanza" and "Gold in Them Hills." It was only a matter of time till he came to the most spectacular figure in all the bizarre scramble for riches. This he has done in "Lucky Baldwin."

He was the man who was never licked. A Hoosier who never shoveled a pound of ore, he made millions from the Comstock. His famous theater and his splendiferous hotel in San Francisco were his everlasting pride and almost wrecked his fortune. He was the first of the Southern California realtors, with more than fifty thousand acres in his ranches, to sell the climate and throw in the land. He was the developer of Lake Tahoe, pioneer hunter of big time in India, and pioneer of the traveling vaudeville show. He was a spendthrift who lavished checks, hoarded cash and wouldn't pay a bill without a court judgment.

He was the embodiment of the unmoral frontier, the greatest individualist of the West when individualism was a creed. He crowned wealth, notoriety, accomplishment, obloquy, amusement and success with a great age and with a luck he has always denied but that has been demonstrated in the accumulations of millions of dollars. In short, he was Lucky Baldwin.

NEW BOOKS IN PUBLIC LIBRARY

When they told Lucy Stone's mother, who had just finished milking eight cows, that her eighth baby was a girl she said, "Oh dear, I'm so sorry. A woman's life is so hard." That was in 1818. Inez Haynes Irwin in "Angels and Amazons," dramatizes the evolution of the American woman from Mrs. Stone's days to that of the woman of 1933.

This is the one social movement of the last one hundred years that has stood out above all others—the rise of woman. In the day of the pioneer, there were no women in trade, none in the professions, none in public life, only a handful in teaching, a smattering in the arts, and any woman who considered business as a career opened herself to the charge of being unsexed. Today we have a world peculiarly marked with the touch of feminine hands. Many social changes have come about through the influence of women.

It is much more than the mere struggle for equality that the book describes, however. Mrs. Irwin has been notably successful in painting the mental changes that have taken place in the American people due to feminine influence. Marriage, birth-control, world peace, education, child labor, morals have all felt the impact.

The concluding portion of the book traces the work of the individuals and organizations of the past few years. Whether woman has lost or gained by entering the struggle for a share of the world's goods, the reader is left to decide from the evidence. The author paints a realistic picture of the new place of women in a new and fast-changing world. She makes it clear at least that the remark of Lucy Stone's mother no longer applies.

Of the many fascinating cities in the world, there is none more so than San Francisco. Charles Caldwell Dobie, a native son, tells the tumultuous and dramatic story of this adventurous city in "San Francisco. A Pageant."

It was founded by priests and soldiers for the glory of God and the Spanish king. Captured, bedeviled and glorified by westward-thrusting American pioneers, it became a metropolis of questing gold-diggers, planters, trappers, promoters, bankers, whalers, poets and professors drawn from half the world. Rocked by earthquakes, devastated by fires, robbed by crooks, and rescued by vigilantes old and new—such is the invincible bantling of rocks and flats now grown to splendid maturity as it comes to the reader from Mr. Dobie's pages.

This is a beautiful book worty of its subject. It presents the flavorful personality and the glamorous history of the city of the Golden Gate. It is a dramatic story of the founding, the turbulent youth, and the far from prosaic coming age of San Francisco, home-town of the adventurous breed of the fabulous Forty-Niners. San Francisco is all here—what it has been, what it is, what it eats and wears and thinks, its sins, its gallantries, its unique bouquet.

Never has it been said more accurately of a book that the text and illustrations were produced from a love of the subject. Mr. Dobie writes of the city he has loved and studied all his life. The artist, E. H. Suydam, who went to San Francisco to do the pictures, lost his heart to the city.

Long after the Forty-Niners, gold and silver poured out of the west in a flood that made millionaires of the fortunates who could get and keep the bounty of the earth. C. B. Glasscock, who knows those men and days better than anyone else, has become their accepted historian with his two sparkling books, "The Big Bonanza" and "Gold in Them Hills." It was only a matter of time till he came to the most spectacular figure in all the bizarre scramble for riches. This he has done in "Lucky Baldwin."

He was the man who was never licked. A Hoosier who never shoveled a pound of ore, he made millions from the Comstock. His famous theater and his splendiferous hotel in San Francisco were his everlasting pride and almost wrecked his fortune. He was the first of the Southern California realtors, with more than fifty thousand acres in his ranches, to sell the climate and throw in the land. He was the developer of Lake Tahoe, pioneer hunter of big time in India, and pioneer of the traveling vaudeville show. He was a spendthrift who lavished checks, hoarded cash and wouldn't pay a bill without a court judgment.

He was the embodiment of the unmoral frontier, the greatest individualist of the West when individualism was a creed. He crowned wealth, notoriety, accomplishment, obloquy, amusement and success with a great age and with a luck he has always denied but that has been demonstrated in the accumulations of millions of dollars. In short, he was Lucky Baldwin.

Hooks and Slides

by Bill Braucher

CHEERFUL EARFUL

Things are definitely on the upturn, Alcibiades. Soon you'll have those chickens in the pot and two cars in your garage—if you still own one. For the Poukhkeepsie regatta is to be revived this season, and you know, Al, that the boys called it off last year because of lack of funds.

The regatta — ah, there is a sports spectacle! To our mind nothing can be as vivid as the picture of those frail shells plunging through the water over the four-mile course drive by the rhythmic beat of oars pulled by strong young arms and backs . . . the orderly stroke during the first two miles . . . the quickening of the pace in the third mile . . . and the desperate struggle at the last to heave that bark over the line first . . . and then the collapse in a heap at the finish from an exertion that knows no equal.

OH, THAT DEPRESSION!

But to stage a regatta between Columbia, Syracuse, Navy, Cornell, Penn, California, Washington, Stanford, and those other schools costs dough, big dough. And last year they didn't have it.

So, we can take it that the resumption of this rowing classic is an indication that prosperity is here again. Happy days!

Resumption of the race after a lapse of only one year since 1895 —except during the war years of 1917-18-19—will mean expenditure of the following by all schools taking part:

Racing shell, $1500; eight oars at $20 each, $160; rowing coach at a salary close to $5000 a year; training barges that can't be bought for chicken feed; maintenance of training quarters; uniforms; shell rigging, including slides and oarlocks; transportation of crew and subs from as far away as Washington and California. This expense, of course, is for the training of one crew, and then there must be shells for junior varsity and, in some cases, freshman crews. All in all, the college supporting a crew must spend in the neighborhood of $20,000 a year, and that figure is conservative.

A TIDY SUM

Calculating on an average of six crews in a race, and you can see nearly $120,000 going past when they finish in front of the spectators in the 'Keepsie.

Let it here be said that the spectators are of a rare type. They are of the nonpaying variety simply because the schools have no way of building a four-mile course, and no way to fence in a body of water to keep out prying eyes. Therefore, crew racing has no revenue.

Rowing as a sport is full of thrills. It is a mark on the credit side of the ledger for colleges that they have decided to renew this non-commercial contest. But then, perhaps, the increased attendance at football games last fall had something to do with it.

ANOTHER TWENTY GRAND?

A full sister of the great Twenty Grand starts racing with the juveniles this year . . . the daughter of St. Germans-Bonus has been named Truepenny. . . . The Greentree stable — Mrs. Payne Whitney's—has named most of its two-year-old most appropriately . . . for instance, there is a bay filly by Upset out of Goose Egg . . . the name is Scrambled Eggs.

Another bay filly by St. Germans out of Gaiety Girl has been named Jolly Saint . . . a chestnut colt by Upset out of Upsedaisy is ticketed Up and Up . . . then there's a bay filly by Royal Minstrel out of Glade, and the romantic monicker is Sylvan Song . . . a bay gelding by Whichone out of High Climb is called Alpenstock . . . a chestnut colt, the get of Peter Pan-Oroya is named Forever Young . . . a bay son of St. James-Lady Be Good will go to the races under the name of Sailor Beware.

THAT'S JUDGING

Lexington commentator Brownie Leach spins a story which makes several Kentucky gentlemen look very smart in the matter of judging horseflesh . . . last summer a yearling judging contest was held by the Thoroughbred Club . . . 10 yearlings were inspected at the Greentree farm . . . three of the judges picked No Saint, a brown colt by High-Time-Sister Joan, as the outstanding yearling.

The other day No Saint was given his first start in a two-year-old dash at Tropical Park . . . he tin-canned in, setting a new track record for the three-furlong sprint . . . the men who picked him are John S. Wiggins, Neville Dunn and Charles Black.

SOME NAMES

Six of the Whitney youngsters have not been named . . . you might try your hand at it and see how close you come . . . for instance, what would you call a bay gelding by Chicle-Hoity Toity? . . . my hunch would be Silly Sap, but the Whitneys probably would overrule that one . . . Then there's a chestnut filly by Pennant-Crispena . . . my name for her would be Banner Lady . . . A bay gelding by Diavolo-Petronella might bear up under the monicker Dinella. . . .

My suggestion for a son of St. Germans-Tigress would be Jungle Saint . . . A son of Toro-Mad Hand could be called Big Fist. . . . A bay colt by Victorian-My-Tide might easily wear the monicker Victory Tide.

And that's all for today.

SAINTS INVADE ALHAMBRA FOR SERIES OPENER

COAST PREPARATORY LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Glendale	4	0	1000.
Long Beach	3	1	.750
Alhambra	4	2	.667
Santa Ana	2	4	.333
San Diego	2	4	.333
Pasadena	1	5	.167

Tonight's Games

Santa Ana at Alhambra; San Diego at Glendale; Long Beach at Pasadena.

Alhambra, one of the "Big Three" of Coast Prep league standings, will be favored to increase its string of basketball victories when the rambling Moors entertain Santa Ana's Saints in the Alhambra gym tonight.

The Moors, who divided with San Diego and Long Beach and beat Pasadena twice in their weekly doubleheaders, have earned an enviable record in stiff competition, and must be given an edge over the Santa Anans, who have won only two of their six league assignments.

Alhambra

Alhambra 12, San Diego	26
Alhambra 24, San Diego	18
Alhambra 15, Long Beach	12
Alhambra 10, Long Beach	27
Alhambra 35, Pasadena	20
Alhambra 33, Pasadena	29
Alhambra 129; Opponents	132

Santa Ana

Santa Ana 30, Pasadena	20
Santa Ana 22, San Diego	30
Santa Ana 24, San Diego	22
Santa Ana 13, Glendale	21
Santa Ana 127; Opponents	145

All four of Santa Ana's defeats have been by close margins, usually gained after the Saints begin to weaken near the end of the third quarter. Coach Reese Greene has been chagrined by their lack of endurance but is well satisfied with their floorwork and believe they are capable of downing Alhambra by playing "four instead of three quarters of basketball."

Tom Lacy's injured knee has improved to such an extent that he will be able to work the entire game at guard. Lacy is perhaps the most accurate shooter on the squad. LeRoy Levens, aggressive little guard, also will start in a lineup of Fred Wiemer, center; Walt Hendrie and Erwin Youel, forwards.

Heeb, fleet forward, has been figuring prominently in Alhambra's victories. He is listed in a tentative Moor lineup of West, forward; Anderson, center; Folsom and Bettinger, guards. Winterbottom and Fisk are the best of the reserves.

Pasadena defeated Santa Ana 37-29 and Alhambra 27-12 in the best performances of the losers, who appear evenly-matched for their fifth start.

PRO TENNIS OUTGROWS EVEN PYLE'S IDEA

Second round contests will be run off Saturday Feb. 3, the pairings to be published in The Register next Friday.

Pairings for matches in the Orange county men's doubles, an event starting here Sunday, will be released tomorrow. More than 10 tandems have entered; and the list includes practically all the ranking players of the district. Lewis Wetherell and Arno Finster, 1933 champions, both have new partners this year. Wetherell will be with Olaf Hansen of Fullerton. Finster with Johnny Cress of Santa Ana.

* * *

The rankings: (1) Lewis Wetherell, Santa Ana; (2) Art Flum, Pomona; (3) Gerald Boege, Fullerton; (4) Ralph Arnold, Pomona; (5) Ray Swain, Riverside; (6) John Alman, Pomona; (7) Jack Walker, Pomona; (8) Bill Grafton, Fullerton; (9) Toby White, Santa Ana; (10) Walter Blair, Pomona.

Santa Ana also dominated the women's division, Mildred Ward ranking No. 1, followed in order by Peggy Hay, Pomona; Katherine Wood, Fullerton; Marjorie Lauderbach, Santa Ana, and Melva Roquet, Fullerton.

BEN EASTMAN WILL RUN FOR OLYMPIC CLUB

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—Ben Eastman, holder of two world's records—the 440 and 880 yards runs—although without an Olympic title to his credit, will compete for the Olympic club during the coming track season, he announced today.

The "Blazer" has one objective in running this season. Ben has his eyes on the Olympic Games 800-meter title for 1936.

A student at Stanford school of business, he works out three times a week and appears to be rounding into form for some real activity this spring. According to present plans he intends to run only the half-mile. Evidently he's not too sure about the leg injury that kept him from most competition last year, and without a question record-breaking quarter miles aren't the best prescription for a previous injury.

Hables With Club

Les Hables, the hard luck runner of the Stanford team for the past two years, has sharpened his spikes and intends to do a bit of sprinting for Charley Hunter's clubmen. Hables, who has had everything from two injured muscles to a broken rib and appendicitis, worked out on the track last fall and decided that he still had some of the "zip" left in his legs that made him a 9.7 sprinter.

Along with "Tex" Oliver, who has been clocked at 9.6, Hables should furnish Hunter with a pair of one-two sprinters for most meets. Unless Hunter can inveigle Eastman to run a "slow" lap once in a while, the club will be without a 440-yard runner who can step the distance under 50 seconds. Don Blackman, former Stanford relay man, and Walt Elliott can just about hit 50 flat when in perfect condition.

Norm Bright, sorrel-topper graduate student at Stanford, and Clarence Holst, Montana ace who has been credited with a 4:16 mile, furnish the Olympics with a fine pair of milers. Holst took fourth place in the national championships last year.

Laborde Back

Al Herbert, I. C. 4-A. low hurdle champion, and "Mush" Duncan, former Oregon State timber-topper who ran 14.7 last year, are Hunter's mainstays in the barrier events.

For weight tossing "Hercules" Laborde, back from his travels to Europe where he tossed the discus better than 160 feet with regularity, will provide the club with a steady point-getter. Bob Jones, Stanford's former intercollegiate discus champnan, is expected to compete and consequently furnish Laborde with all the competition he needs.

Johnny Stolp, a consistent better-than-six-foot jumper, will take care of the high jump with Bill Koblick and Dick Baldy, both 13-foot vaulters handling things in the pole vault. Ed Waterbury, former Bear javelin tosser, and Clem Friedman, who has been consistent at 195 feet for the club for several seasons, will take care of the spear-tossing event. George Martin, who can always be counted on to leap 24 feet when in condition, is the club's leading contender in the broad jump.

By JIMMY DONAHUE
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

High up in a little Chicago hotel room, C. C. ("Cash and Carry") Pyle lies seriously ill, the victim of a stroke. But his idea, big-time pro tennis, is blossoming into robust health."

It was old "Collect the Coin" who ushered in the golden ra of tennis. There were pro tennis players before Pyle muscled into the sports. But they weren't certain where their next meal was coming from until he laid his Midas touch on the game. His first troupe of Vincent Richards, Suzanne Lenglen, Mary K. Browne, Howard Kinsey, Paul Feret, and Harvey Snodgrass started the landslide that finally engulfed Ellsworth Vines, U. S. No. 1 ranking player in 1933, and Henri Cochet, French tennis marvel, last year.

* * *

Of his first troupe, only Vinnie Richards is stil lactive. The veteran likes to reminisce about the time he signed to 'ay for Pyle.

"Pyle picked his moment well," Richards recalls. "After several sleepless nights, in which I came to the realizatio that my best playing days were over, I signed on the dotted line—and I have never regretted it.

"The $30,000 he guaranteed me for a four-months' tour was more than I'd ever make playing amateur tennis."

The seed Pyle planted in 1926 grew in the succeeding years until Big Bill Tilden joined the ranks in 1931. Previous questioning of Tilden had brought forth emphatic statements that he never would turn pro, but turn he did when Jack Curley got his name on the line late in December, 1930.

So ended the stormy career of Tilden the amateur, and began the career of Tilden the pro. He left behind him seven American championships, 11 years on the Davis Cup squad, and championships of England, France, Italy, Austria and New Zealand.

"That, I figured, was plenty to have done for amateur tennis—so I started out to do omething for myself," he says.

Tilden not only did something for himself, but he started the second big step in the pro game—the stabilization of professional tennis.

* * *

At the time Bill joined up, the troupe consisted of Francis T. Hunter, Emmett Pare, Karel Kozeluh of Czechoslovakia, Vinnie Richards and a few more. Immediately on his entrance, a hue and cry went up for a profesisonal champion, and Bill, then nearly 40, won in his first time up.

Ever since, Bill's hand has been seen in the advance of the pro game. Under his ballyhoo and big name influence, it has jumped to a point where pressure is being brought for formation of a national tennis open, to be played annually between pros and amateurs.

Tilden, now on a 60,000-mile tour with Vines, Richards and Bruce Barnes, is contending that true tennis greatness is only proven by a test between the greatest amateurs and the best pros. He is the foremost exponent of the open tournament.

U.S.C. Heavy Favorite To Beat Indians

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The Stanford university basketball team launches its final invasion of Southern California tonight when it meets the U. S. C. Trojans in the opener of a two-game series at Olympic auditorium.

The Trojans are tied for the Southern division leadership with California, and are favored slightly to thump the Indians.

The contest will be broad cast by KMTR.

SECOND PLACE STRUGGLE TOPS PREP SCHEDULE

Ever fickle, the Orange league's basketball spotlight moves to Anaheim tonight where and when Anaheim and Newport Harbor struggle to remain in the spirited contest for 1934 championship honors.

The league-leading San Juan Capistrano Cougars have a comparative easy assignment at Garden Grove, complicated only by a trip to an unfamiliar floor, and the sudden improved Tustin Tillers draw a home game with the thrice-defeated Huntington Beach five, so the Anaheim-Newport affair is carrying the evening's real load. However the Orange-Brea-Olinda dual at Orange may be a sizzler, too, as both clubs have potential power, Orange registering its class last Friday by forcing Capistrano into two extra periods before succumbing by a single field goal.

Anaheim looks stronger than Newport Harbor. The Colonists routed Tustin to open their season, lost a close decision to Brea, then came back to muzzle Huntington Beach, 38-6. Newport Harbor beat Huntington Beach 21-7, dropped a one-sided affair to Capistrano, but rallied nicely for a decisive victory over Garden Grove last week.

Apparently past all the hard ones except San Juan Capistrano's champions, Tustin is in the best spot of all title claimants. The Farmers meet the Cougars at Capistrano Feb. 9 in what may prove the decisive joust of the season.

Although both teams have improved steadily since the start of the season, Tustin has been installed favorite over Huntington Beach.

With Howard Spangler, first string forward, on the bench with a back injury, Cole again will send a revised team on the floor. Bob Forbes, promising reserve, will be used at left forward, alongside Dean Francis. Wilson Seacord will be shifted from forward into the center position vacated by Spangler. "Chuck" Forbes and Ellsworth Teter will be at guard. Starting for the Oilers probably will be Peters and Morse, forwards; Cowling, center; Okada and Dunstan, guards.

PREININGER'S BASKETS BREAK UP 35-31 TILT

Clair Preininger

Clair Preininger, freshman forward, was the toast of Andrews gymnasium today, for in an extra five-minute period against an inspired Citrus team he caged two successive field goals to give Santa Ana's Dons a hard-earned 35 to 31 victory over Coach Al Clayes' Azusa Owls here last night.

Deadlocked at the end of both halves, 20-20 and 31-31, the Eastern jaysee basketball game was one of the wildest and most thrilling ever played on the home court.

With approximately a minute left in the second half, and Citrus leading 31-30, Alex Clark of the Dons was fouled and awarded two charity throws. The fans went wild as the Santa Ana guard tossed the first one through to tie the score. His second attempt, which would have won the game, barely missed the ring. The Owls took the ball off the backboard and twice reached the Don goal for close shots before the gun sounded. The teams rested two minutes for the dramatic extra session in which Santa Ana's Preininger was to star.

Neither quintet could find the basket in the first two minutes of the playoff, but Preininger finally sank a beautiful side-shot to shove Coach Bill Cook's club into the lead, 33-31. Another minute elapsed. Then Preininger, faking a comparatively long shot, side-stepped a Citrus guard and slipped the ball through the iron rim from close range. With the pressure off at last, the Santa Anans protected their precious lead in the closing 70 seconds.

Caging field goals from every range, Citrus broke a 6-6 deadlock early in the first half and in a spirited rally, ran up a 20-9 lead in the first 12 minutes. But the Dons improved their defense, and held the visitors scoreless while earning the next 11 points to finish 20-20 at the intermission.

After nine minutes had elapsed in the second half, Santa Ana was ahead 23-22, but in the following minute of play Citrus earned a 26-23 margin, and kept the lead until the Dons tied the count 30-30 in the last four minutes. Hendley, Citrus guard, then sank a foul shot, and the Owls remained out in front until Clark scored his charity throw in the final minute.

Harold Youel's great improvement at center was the highlight. Although lack of height prevented him from receiving the tip-off from Henderson, a sixfoot, 215-pounder, Youel collected 11 points, turned in a fine floor game.

Making a bid for high scoring honors in the league, Forward Ed Bragg tallied 12 points, which brought his total to 29 for two games. Preininger scored 8 points. The exceptional guarding of Clark was one o fthe contributing factors of the Don victory. He was all over the court. Bob Schwarm, guard, also played a powerful defensive game.

M'LARNIN ASKS $50,000 TO BOX ROSS FOR TITLE

BERKELEY, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Jimmy McLarnin, the baby-faced Irishman who holds the world's welterweight title, was more concerned today with reducing his golf score than with the prospect of meeting sensational Barney Ross, lightweight king, in New York this spring.

Announcement that Ross already has signed for the "fistic natural" reached the fairways of a Berkeley golf course.

Reporters were more excited than the Vancouver boy who won the title last summer with a single punch in the first round of his bout with Young Corbett in Los Angeles seven months ago.

To all questions, and they were many, McLarnin laconically replied:

"Suits me fine. See 'Pop' Foster about the rest."

Foster proved more loquacious. So much so that he stammered and stuttered in expressing his ideas about the fight. He is the champion's manager.

"It isn't enough," were Foster's first word. He referred to the $25,000 guarantee offered McLarnin to meet the newest fistic sensation for the 147-pound title.

"A fight with Ross is worth $50,000 if it is worth a cent," Foster claimed. "We will take nothing less than the champion's percentage of 37 1-2 per cent," he said in the next breath." It ought to draw $200,000."

The manager also believed that September would be a better time than May or June to stage the proposed fight. He ignored intimations that McLarnin might not be ready for an immediate return to the ring. Jimmy has done very little boxing since winning the title.

"Pop" plans to remain on the coast at least two weeks before going to New York to discuss the fight with promoters. Jimmy will be left behind to "do some more golfing."

Legion Refuses Guarantee To Sign Bears

Although American Legion committeemen still are hopeful, it was learned that the professional football champions have practically demanded a $1000 guarantee to meet Jim Musick's team of all-stars in a night game here. Legion spokesmen said they could make the Bears no guarantee because of possible bad weather conditions. Musick's team is willing to play on percentage.

The contest was tentatively set for a Wednesday night, either Jan. 31 or Feb. 7.

Landis Predicts Brighter Season For Big Leagues

CHANDLER, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(UP)—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, here on his annual winter vacation, pred' ed a bright season on the National and American leagues.

"With industrial conditions in the east showing rapid improvement I am certain the baseball business will have a good year," declared the white-haired ruler of major league diamonds.

TROY NOT READY TO END IOWA QUARREL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Those itinerant Iowa athletes, Duane Swanson and Wayne Froning, who hopped a freight here in the hope of entering U. S. C. are still reaping the whirlwind they sowed.

On the heels of an announcement of Dr. E. H. Lauer, athletic director of Iowa, that the Hawkeyes had "washed their hands" of the matter, came a cryptic statement today from Hugh Willett, chairman of the S. C. athletic committee.

"We do not consider the incident closed by any mea , and the matter is now in the hands of our faculty and athletic committee," said Dr. Willett. He refused to further amplify the statement.

Because Froning and Swanson were firm in their denial that they had been approached by S. C. athletic heads to switch to the Trojan institution, it ppeared that "the baby" would be placed squarely on the lap of Coach Rollie Williams of Iowa. Williams, when he learned his two star basketball players had departed, sent up a cry of "proselyting."

COCHET, PLAA WILL INVADE CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Ellsworth Vines and Bill Tilden will return here later in the spring with Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, French tennis stars, to give another exhibition of the professional tennis game, Tom Gallery, sponsor of the "play-for-pay" tennis troupe said today.

Vines and Tilden meet here Monday, in Pasadena Tuesday and Long Beach Wednesday, before returning to the east to pick up the foreign net stars.

STATE'S WRESTLING 'CURFEW' CANCELLED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The "curfew law" of the state athletic commission which arbitrarily terminated all wrestling matches at 11:15 p.m. was cancelled today following a riot at the Olympic auditorium Wednesday night.

Dr. Harry Martin, chairman, said today the "curfew" time had been moved up to midnight to prevent any further outbreaks on the part of the paying public.

The riot started when Joe Savoldi and Jim Browning, rematched at the order of the commission, were sent from the ring at the time limit and a draw verdict rendered by the referee. The angry spectators rioted for a half-hour before Martin could be reached and permission obtained for the wrestlers to complete their match.

Medal Play Taken By Mrs. Campbell

Mrs. Dean Campbell's extra handicap of two strokes moved her into first place in medal play at the Santa Ana Country club yesterday when she, Mrs. L. J. Bushard and Mrs. B. W. McClure all closed with gross 97s. Mrs. Campbell's net was 97-18-79, two under Mrs. Bushard and Mrs. McClure, 97-16-81.

Class B winners: Mrs. Ludy Schaffer, 110-24-86, and Mrs. Jack Colburn, 116-28-88.

COGHLAN TO START

You know how it is. It was the wind. Then that whack-blanked trap. And the caddy sneezed. But when you get home for lunch or supper that hundred plus doesn't seem so ferocious. Not when you're relaxed. With a steaming fragrant cup of Hills Bros. Coffee before you. There's a friendly quality in the deep goodness of Hills Bros. Coffee that makes the end of the day more enjoyable. And helps to make the morning bearable. If you haven't tasted Hills Bros. Coffee, tear out this reminder. Give it to the little lady who manages your home and maybe beats you at golf. Tell her to always ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name. And tell her Hills Bros. Coffee is more economical to serve because of its rich abundance of flavor. It goes farther and tastes better than "bargain counter" coffees.

CHEERFUL EARFUL

Things are definitely on the upturn, Alcibiades. Soon you'll have those chickens in the pot and two cars in your garage—if you still own one. For the Poukhkeepsie regatta is to be revived this season, and you know, Al, that the boys called it off last year because of lack of funds.

The regatta — ah, there is a sports spectacle! To our mind nothing can be as vivid as the picture of those frail shells plunging through the water over the four-mile course drive by the rhythmic beat of oars pulled by strong young arms and backs . . . the orderly stroke during the first two miles . . . the quickening of the pace in the third mile . . . and the desperate struggle at the last to heave that bark over the line first . . . and then the collapse in a heap at the finish from an exertion that knows no equal.

OH, THAT DEPRESSION!

But to stage a regatta between Columbia, Syracuse, Navy, Cornell, Penn, California, Washington, Stanford, and those other schools costs dough, big dough. And last year they didn't have it.

So, we can take it that the resumption of this rowing classic is an indication that prosperity is here again. Happy days!

Resumption of the race after a lapse of only one year since 1895 —except during the war years of 1917-18-19—will mean expenditure of the following by all schools taking part:

Racing shell, $1500; eight oars at $20 each, $160; rowing coach at a salary close to $5000 a year; training barges that can't be bought for chicken feed; maintenance of training quarters; uniforms; shell rigging, including slides and oarlocks; transportation of crew and subs from as far away as Washington and California. This expense, of course, is for the training of one crew, and then there must be shells for junior varsity and, in some cases, freshman crews. All in all, the college supporting a crew must spend in the neighborhood of $20,000 a year, and that figure is conservative.

A TIDY SUM

Calculating on an average of six crews in a race, and you can see nearly $120,000 going past when they finish in front of the spectators in the 'Keepsie.

Let it here be said that the spectators are of a rare type. They are of the nonpaying variety simply because the schools have no way of building a four-mile course, and no way to fence in a body of water to keep out prying eyes. Therefore, crew racing has no revenue.

Rowing as a sport is full of thrills. It is a mark on the credit side of the ledger for colleges that they have decided to renew this non-commercial contest. But then, perhaps, the increased attendance at football games last fall had something to do with it.

ANOTHER TWENTY GRAND?

A full sister of the great Twenty Grand starts racing with the juveniles this year . . . the daughter of St. Germans-Bonus has been named Truepenny. . . . The Greentree stable — Mrs. Payne Whitney's—has named most of its two-year-old most appropriately . . . for instance, there is a bay filly by Upset out of Goose Egg . . . the name is Scrambled Eggs.

Another bay filly by St. Germans out of Gaiety Girl has been named Jolly Saint . . . a chestnut colt by Upset out of Upsedaisy is ticketed Up and Up . . . then there's a bay filly by Royal Minstrel out of Glade, and the romantic monicker is Sylvan Song . . . a bay gelding by Whichone out of High Climb is called Alpenstock . . . a chestnut colt, the get of Peter Pan-Oroya is named Forever Young . . . a bay son of St. James-Lady Be Good will go to the races under the name of Sailor Beware.

Lexington commentator Brownie Leach spins a story which makes several Kentucky gentlemen look very smart in the matter of judging horseflesh . . . last summer a yearling judging contest was held by the Thoroughbred Club . . . 10 yearlings were inspected at the Greentree farm . . . three of the judges picked No Saint, a brown colt by High-Time-Sister Joan, as the outstanding yearling.

The other day No Saint was given his first start in a two-year-old dash at Tropical Park . . . he tin-canned in, setting a new track record for the three-furlong sprint . . . the men who picked him are John S. Wiggins, Neville Dunn and Charles Black.

SOME NAMES

Six of the Whitney youngsters have not been named . . . you might try your hand at it and see how close you come . . . for instance, what would you call a bay gelding by Chicle-Holty Toity? . . . my hunch would be Silly Sap, but the Whitneys probably would overrule that one . . . Then there's a chestnut filly by Pennant-Crispena . . . my name for her would be Banner Lady . . . A bay gelding by Diavolo-Petronella might bear up under the monicker Dinella. . . .

My suggestion for a son of St. Germans-Tigress would be Jungle Saint . . . A son of Toro-Mad Hand could be called Big Fist. . . . A bay colt by Victorian-My-Tide might easily wear the monicker Victory Tide.

And that's all for today.

Tonight's Games

Alhambra, one of the "Big Three" of Coast Prep league standings, will be favored to increase its string of basketball victories when the rambling Moors entertain Santa Ana's Saints in the Alhambra gym tonight.

The Moors, who divided with San Diego and Long Beach and beat Pasadena twice in their weekly doubleheaders, have earned an enviable record in stiff competition, and must be given an edge over the Santa Anans, who have won only two of their six league assignments.

Alhambra

Alhambra 12, San Diego	26
Alhambra 24, San Diego	18
Alhambra 15, Long Beach	12
Alhambra 10, Long Beach	27
Alhambra 25, Pasadena	20
Alhambra 23, Pasadena	29
Alhambra 129; Opponents	132

Santa Ana

Santa Ana 30, Pasadena	20
Santa Ana 22, San Diego	30
Santa Ana 24, San Diego	22
Santa Ana 13, Glendale	21
Santa Ana 15, Glendale	24
Santa Ana 127; Opponents	145

All four of Santa Ana's defeats have been by close margins, usually gained after the Saints begin to weaken near the end of the third quarter. Coach Reese Greene has been chagrined by their lack of endurance but is well satisfied with their floorwork and believe they are capable of downing Alhambra by playing "four instead of three quarters of basketball."

Tom Lacy's injured knee has improved to such an extent that he will be able to work the entire game at guard. Lacy is perhaps the most accurate shooter on the squad. LeRoy Levens, aggressive little guard, also will start in a lineup of Fred Wiemer, center; Walt Hendrie and Erwin Youel, forwards.

Heeb, fleet forward, has been figuring prominently in Alhambra's victories. He is listed in a tentative Moor lineup of West, forward; Anderson, center; Folsom and Bettinger, guards. Winterbottom and Fisk are the best of the reserves.

Pasadena defeated Santa Ana 37-29 and Alhambra 27-12 in the best performances of the losers, who appear evenly-matched for their fifth start.

S. A. GETS TWO COUNTY TENNIS TOURNAMENTS

Competition for the Orange county women's singles championship begins on the Frances Willard tennis courts here tomorrow morning with a series of nine matches scheduled, three at 8:30, three at 9:45 and three at 11.

With the ranking players of the section excluded in order to stimulate interest among the rank and file of feminine players, some 22 entries have been received by the Santa Ana Tennis club, sponsor of the event. The tournament will be the first conducted under the direction of the club's new "official family," headed by President Frank Bettis and Secretary Jack Viggars.

9:45 a. m.—E. Garlock vs. H. Lowe; J. S. Biddle vs. J. Mulbar; M. Ford vs. H. Markel.

11 a. m.—A. McDougal vs. M. Belcher; B. Copeland vs. A. Hansen; M. Leck vs. winner L.Stockton-F. Tibbetts.

C. Miller, A. Wetherell, M. Ortiz and N. Pennington have first round byes.

Second round contests will be run off Saturday Feb. 3, the pairings to be published in The Register next Friday.

* * *

Pairings for matches in the Orange county men's doubles, an event starting here Sunday, will be released tomorrow. More than 10 tandems have entered; and the list includes practically all the ranking players of the district. Lewis Wetherell and Arno Finster, 1933 champions, both have new partners this year. Wetherell will be with Olaf Hansen of Fullerton, Finster with Johnny Cress of Santa Ana.

* * *

The rankings: (1) Lewis Wetherell, Santa Ana; (2) Art Flum, Pomona; (3) Gerald Boege, Fullerton; (4) Ralph Arnold, Pomona; (5) Ray Swain, Riverside; (6) John Alman, Pomona; (7) Jack Walker, Pomona; (8) Bill Grafton, Fullerton; (9) Toby White, Santa Ana; (10) Walter Blair, Pomona.

Santa Ana also dominated the women's division, Mildred Ward ranking No. 1, followed in order by Peggy Hay, Pomona; Katherine Wood, Fullerton; Marjorie Lauderbach, Santa Ana, and Melva Roquet, Fullerton.

BEN EASTMAN WILL RUN FOR OLYMPIC CLUB

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26.—Ben Eastman, holder of two world's records—the 440 and 880 yards runs—although without an Olympic title to his credit, will compete for the Olympic club during the coming track season, he announced today.

The "Blazer" has one objective in running this season. Ben has his eyes on the Olympic Games 800-meter title for 1936.

A student at Stanford school of business, he works out three times a week and appears to be rounding into form for some real activity this spring. According to present plans he intends to run only the half-mile. Evidently he's not too sure about the leg injury that kept him from most competition last year, and without a question record-breaking quarter miles aren't the best prescription for a previous injury.

Hables With Club

Les Hables, the hard luck runner of the Stanford team for the past two years, has sharpened his spikes and intends to do a bit of sprinting for Charley Hunter's clubmen. Hables, who has had everything from two injured muscles to a broken rib and appendicitis, worked out on the track last fall and decided that he still had some of the "zip" left in his legs that made him a 9.7 sprinter.

Along with "Tex" Oliver, who has been clocked at 9.6, Hables should furnish Hunter with a pair of one-two sprinters for most meets. Unless Hunter can inveigle Eastman to run a "slow" lap once in a while, the club will be without a 440-yard runner who can step the distance under 50 seconds. Don Blackman, former Stanford relay man, and Walt Elliott can just about hit 50 flat when in perfect condition.

Norm Bright, sorrel-topper graduate student at Stanford, and Clarence Holst, Montana ace who has been credited with a 4:16 mile, furnish the Olympics with a fine pair of milers. Holst took fourth place in the national championships last year.

Laborde Back

Al Herbert, I. C. 4-A. low hurdle champion, and "Mush" Duncan, former Oregon State timber-topper who ran 14.7 last year, are Hunter's mainstays in the barrier events.

For weight tossing "Hercules" Laborde, back from his travels to Europe where he tossed the discus better than 160 feet with regularity, will provide the club with a steady point-getter. Bob Jones, Stanford's former intercollegiate discus champnan, is expected to compete and consequently furnish Laborde with all the competition he needs.

Johnny Stolp, a consistent better-than-six-foot jumper, will take care of the high jump with Bill Koblick and Dick Baldy, both 13-foot vaulters handling things in the pole vault. Ed Waterbury, former Bear javelin tosser, and Clem Friedman, who has been consistent at 195 feet for the club for several seasons, will take care of the spear-tossing event. George Martin, who can always be counted on to leap 24 feet when in condition, is the club's leading contender in the broad jump.

By JIMMY DONAHUE
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

High up in a little Chicago hotel room, C. C. ("Cash and Carry") Pyle lies seriously ill, the victim of a stroke. But his idea, big-time pro tennis, is blossoming into robust health."

It was old "Collect the Coin" who ushered in the golden era of tennis. There were pro tennis players before Pyle muscled into the sports. But they weren't certain where their next meal was coming from until he laid his Midas touch on the game. His first troupe of Vincent Richards, Suzanne Lenglen, Mary K. Browne, Howard Kinsey, Paul Feret, and Harvey Snodgrass started the landslide that finally engulfed Ellsworth Vines, U. S. No. 1 ranking player in 1933, and Henri Cochet, French tennis marvel, last year.

* * *

Of his first troupe, only Vinnie Richards is stil lactive. The veteran likes to reminisce about the time he signed to pay for Pyle.

"Pyle picked his moment well," Richards recalls. "After several sleepless nights, in which I came to the realization that my best playing days were over, I signed on the dotted line—and I have never regretted it.

"The $30,000 he guaranteed me for a four-months' tour was more than I'd ever make playing amateur tennis."

The seed Pyle planted in 1926 grew in the succeeding years until Big Bill Tilden joined the ranks in 1931. Previous questioning of Tilden had brought forth emphatic statements that he never would turn pro, but turn he did when Jack Curley got his name on the line late in December, 1930.

So ended the stormy career of Tilden the amateur, and began the career of Tilden the pro. He left behind him seven American championships, 11 years on the Davis Cup squad, and championships of England, France, Italy, Austria and New Zealand.

"That, I figured, was plenty to have done for amateur tennis—so I started out to do something for myself," he says.

Tilden not only did something for himself, but he started the second big step in the pro game—the stabilization of professional tennis.

* * *

At the time Bill joined up, the troupe consisted of Francis T. Hunter, Emmett Pare, Karel Kozeluh of Czechoslovakia, Vinnie Richards and a few more. Immediately on his entrance, a hue and cry went up for a profesional champion, and Bill, then nearly 40, won in his first time up.

Ever since, Bill's hand has been seen in the advance of the pro game. Under his ballyhoo and big name influence, it has jumped to a point where pressure is being brought for formation of a national tennis open, to be played annually between pros and amateurs.

Tilden, now on a 60,000-mile tour with Vines, Richards and Bruce Barnes, is contending that true tennis greatness is only proven by a test between the greatest amateurs and the best pros. He is the foremost exponent of the open tournament.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The Stanford university basketball team launches its final invasion of Southern California tonight when it meets the U. S. C. Trojans in the opener of a two-game series at Olympic auditorium.

The Trojans are tied for the Southern division leadership with California, and are favored slightly to thump the Indians.

The contest will be broad cast by KMTR.

SECOND PLACE STRUGGLE TOPS PREP SCHEDULE

Ever fickle, the Orange league's basketball spotlight moves to Anaheim tonight where and when Anaheim and Newport Harbor struggle to remain in the spirited contest for 1934 championship honors.

The league-leading San Juan Capistrano Cougars have a comparative easy assignment at Garden Grove, complicated only by a trip to an unfamiliar floor, and the sudden improved Tustin Tillers draw a home game with the thrice-defeated Huntington Beach five, so the Anaheim-Newport affair is carrying the evening's real load. However the Orange-Brea-Olinda dual at Orange may be a sizzler, too, as both clubs have potential power, Orange registering its class last Friday by forcing Capistrano into two extra periods before suocumbing by a single field goal.

Anaheim looks stronger than Newport Harbor. The Colonists routed Tustin to open their season, lost a close decision to Brea, then came back to muzzle Huntington Beach, 38-6. Newport Harbor beat Huntington Beach 21-7, dropped a one-sided affair to Capistrano, but rallied nicely for a decisive victory over Garden Grove last week.

Apparently past all the hard ones except San Juan Capistrano's champions, Tustin is in the best spot of all title claimants. The Farmers meet the Cougars at Capistrano Feb. 9 in what may prove the decisive joust of the season.

Although both teams have improved steadily since the start of the season, Tustin has been installed favorite over Huntington Beach.

With Howard Spangler, first string forward, on the bench with a back injury, Cole again will send a revised team on the floor. Bob Forbes, promising reserve, will be used at left forward, alongside Dean Francis. Wilson Seacord will be shifted from forward into the center position vacated by Spangler. "Chuck" Forbes and Ellsworth Teter will be at guard. Starting for the Oilers probably will be Peters and Morse, forwards; Cowling, center; Okada and Dunstan, guards.

PREININGER'S BASKETS BREAK UP 35-31 TILT

Clair Preininger

Deadlocked at the end of both halves, 20-20 and 31-31, the Eastern jaysee basketball game was one of the wildest and most thrilling ever played on the home court.

With approximately a minute left in the second half, and Citrus leading 31-30, Alex Clark of the Dons was fouled and awarded two charity throws. The fans went wild as the Santa Ana guard tossed the first one through to tie the score. His second attempt, which would have won the game, barely missed the ring. The Owls took the ball off the backboard and twice reached the Don goal for close shots before the gun sounded. The teams rested two minutes for the dramatic extra session in which Santa Ana's Preininger was to star.

Neither quintet could find the basket in the first two minutes of the playoff, but Preininger finally sank a beautiful side-shot to shove Coach Bill Cook's club into the lead, 33-31. Another minute elapsed. Then Preininger, faking a comparatively long shot, side-stepped a Citrus guard and slipped the ball through the iron rim from close range. With the pressure off at last, the Santa Anans protected their precious lead in the closing 70 seconds.

Caging field goals from every range, Citrus broke a 6-6 deadlock early in the first half and in a spirited rally, ran up a 20-9 lead in the first 12 minutes. But the Dons improved their defense, and held the visitors scoreless while earning the next 11 points to finish 20-20 at the intermission.

After nine minutes had elapsed in the second half, Santa Ana was ahead 23-22, but in the following minute of play Citrus earned a 26-23 margin, and kept the lead until the Dons tied the count 30-30 in the last four minutes. Hendley, Citrus guard, then sank a foul shot, and the Owls remained out in front until Clark scored his charity throw in the final minute.

Harold Youel's great improvement at center was the highlight. Although lack of height prevented him from receiving the tip-off from Henderson, a sixfoot, 215-pounder, Youel collected 11 points, turned in a fine floor game.

Making a bid for high scoring honors in the league, Forward Ed Bragg tallied 12 points, which brought his total to 29 for two games. Preininger scored 8 points. The exceptional guarding of Clark was one o fthe contributing factors of the Don victory. He was all over the court. Bob Schwarm, guard, also played a powerful defensive game.

M'LARNIN ASKS $50,000 TO BOX ROSS FOR TITLE

BERKELEY, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Jimmy McLarnin, the baby-faced Irishman who holds the world's welterweight title, was more concerned today with reducing his golf score than with the prospect of meeting sensational Barney Ross, lightweight king, in New York this spring.

Announcement that Ross already has signed for the "fistic natural" reached the fairways of a Berkeley golf course.

Reporters were more excited than the Vancouver boy who won the title last summer with a single punch in the first round of his bout with Young Corbett in Los Angeles seven months ago.

To all questions, and they were many, McLarnin laconically replied:

"Suits me fine. See 'Pop' Foster about the rest."

Foster proved more loquacious. So much so that he stammered and stuttered in expressing his ideas about the fight. He is the champion's manager.

"It isn't enough," were Foster's first word. He referred to the $25,000 guarantee offered McLarnin to meet the newest fistic sensation for the 147-pound title.

"A fight with Ross is worth $50,000 if it is worth a cent," Foster claimed. "We will take nothing less than the champion's percentage of 37 1-2 per cent," he said in the next breath." It ought to draw $200,000."

The manager also believed that September would be a better time than May or June to stage the proposed fight. He ignored intimations that McLarnin might not be ready for an immediate return to the ring. Jimmy has done very little boxing since winning the title.

"Pop" plans to remain on the coast at least two weeks before going to New York to discuss the fight with promoters. Jimmy will be left behind to "do some more golfing."

Legion Refuses Guarantee To Sign Bears

Although American Legion committeemen still are hopeful, it was learned that the professional football champions have practically demanded a $1000 guarantee to meet Jim Musick's team of all-stars in a night game here. Legion spokesmen said they could make the Bears no guarantee because of possible bad weather conditions. Musick's team is willing to play on percentage.

The contest was tentatively set for a Wednesday night, either Jan. 31 or Feb. 7.

Landis Predicts Brighter Season For Big Leagues

CHANDLER, Ariz., Jan. 26.—(UP)—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, here on his annual winter vacation, predicted a bright season on the National and American leagues.

"With industrial conditions in the east showing rapid improvement I am certain the baseball business will have a good year," declared the white-haired ruler of major league diamonds.

TROY NOT READY TO END IOWA QUARREL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Those itinerant Iowa athletes, Duane Swanson and Wayne Froning, who hopped a freight here in the hope of entering U. S. C. are still reaping the whirlwind they sowed.

On the heels of an announcement of Dr. E. H. Lauer, athletic director of Iowa, that the Hawkeyes had "washed their hands" of the matter, came a cryptic statement today from Hugh Willett, chairman of the S. C. athletic committee.

"We do not consider the incident closed by any means, and the matter is now in the hands of our faculty and athletic committee," said Dr. Willett. He refused to further amplify the statement.

Because Froning and Swanson were firm in their denial that they had been approached by S. C. athletic heads to switch to the Trojan institution, it appeared that "the baby" would be placed squarely on the lap of Coach Rollie Williams of Iowa. Williams, when he learned his two star basketball players had departed, sent up a cry of "proselyting."

COCHET, PLAA WILL INVADE CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Ellsworth Vines and Bill Tilden will return here later in the spring with Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa, French tennis stars, to give another exhibition of the professional tennis game, Tom Gallery, sponsor of the "play-for-pay" tennis troupe said today.

Vines and Tilden meet here Monday, in Pasadena Tuesday and Long Beach Wednesday, before returning to the east to pick up the foreign net stars.

STATE'S WRESTLING 'CURFEW' CANCELLED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(UP)—The "curfew law" of the state athletic commission which arbitrarily terminated all wrestling matches at 11:15 p. m. was cancelled today following a riot at the Olympic auditorium Wednesday night.

Dr. Harry Martin, chairman, said today the "curfew" time had been moved up to midnight to prevent any further outbreaks on the part of the paying public.

The riot started when Joe Savoldi and Jim Browning, rematched at the order of the commission, were sent from the ring at the time limit and a draw verdict rendered by the referee. The angry spectators rioted for a half-hour before Martin could be reached and permission obtained for the wrestlers to complete their match.

Medal Play Taken By Mrs. Campbell

Mrs. Dean Campbell's extra handicap of two strokes moved her into first place in medal play at the Santa Ana Country club yesterday when she, Mrs. L. J. Bushard and Mrs. B. W. McClure all closed with gross 97s. Mrs. Campbell's net was 97-18-79, two under Mrs. Bushard and Mrs. McClure, 97-16-81.

Class B winners: Mrs. Ludy Schaffer, 110-24-86, and Mrs. Jack Colburn, 116-28-88.

COGHLAN TO START

You know how it is. It was the wind. Then that whack-blanked trap. And the caddy sneezed. But when you get home for lunch or supper that hundred plus doesn't seem so ferocious. Not when you're relaxed. With a steaming fragrant cup of Hills Bros. Coffee before you. There's a friendly quality in the deep goodness of Hills Bros. Coffee that makes the end of the day more enjoyable. And helps to make the morning bearable. If you haven't tasted Hills Bros. Coffee, tear out this reminder. Give it to the little lady who manages your home and maybe beats you at golf. Tell her to always ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name. And tell her Hills Bros. Coffee is more economical to serve because of its rich abundance of flavor. It goes farther and tastes better than "bargain counter" coffees.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

The captain was a frightened man. 'Twas lucky that wee Coppy ran up and grabbed him by the leg, and saved him from a splash.

Said Scouty, "We must hang on tight until the captain is all right. I guess that fishing in a spot like this is pretty rash."

And then they tugged and pulled away until they heard the captain say, "All right, lads, I am safe, now. Let me rest till I'm in trim.

"Here, take my pole. I held it tight. The fish I hooked is out of sight. No doubt he still is snagged, though, but perhaps too tired to swim."

• • •

"He was about the biggest fish I've ever seen and I just wish that we could haul him in," exclaimed wee Scouty. "'Twould be fine."

He hauled the line in, then, with care. The monstrous fish flipped into air, and with a sudden jerk of his big head, he broke the line."

"Gee, there he goes! He got away," the Tinies heard the captain say. "Oh, well, I'll try my luck again and use more common sense.

"I'll tie my line up to the bow. Come on, somebody, help me, now. No other fish is going to have some fun at my expense."

• • •

Just then, however, came a scare, as Scouty shouted, "Hey, look there! The front end of the boat is rising. Something has gone wrong."

The boat then shook like everything, and 'round and 'round began to swing. "There's something underneath us," said the captain. "My, it's strong."

They shortly found that he was right. Wee Dotty yelled, with all her might, "We're on a monstrous turtle's back. Oh, my, what can we do?"

"Just stay right here," the captain said, as through the sea the turtle sped. "We're going for a turtle ride. Gee, this is something new!"

COMBINATION GOVERNMENT IS RECOMMENDED

Questioning the benefit received by cities from taxes paid into the county treasury and advocating the ultimate formation of a county-city government for Orange county, Councilman A. C. Hasenjaeger of Santa Ana gave a stirring inaugural message last night in Tustin as the new president of the Orange County League of Municipalities.

"Under the present system of double taxation, city taxpayers of Orange county contributed $1,095,095 to the county treasury last year, in addition to paying the customary city taxes," Hasenjaeger declared. "During the last fiscal year, Santa Ana alone paid $307,482 to the county and $368,000 to the city.

Other cities paid in proportion, including $176,824 from Fullerton and $117,230 from Anaheim.

"In addition to paying this enormous sum in taxes, Santa Ana pays $300 for the privilege of lodging prisoners in the county jail. Instead of paying the 12 cents per meal rate for prisoners like the county, Santa Ana and the other cities pay 20 cents per meal. Either the county is losing money at 12 cents or is getting a profit from 20 cents.

Suggests Study

"If the cities derive a substantial benefit to recompense the more than one million dollars paid to the county, the taxation is just. I am of the opinion that insufficient good is realized and that the taxation is unjust. Concerted study should be made of the problem through the league of cities."

Hasenjaeger pointed out that two changes were possible. Either the county supervisors could reduce the county tax for cities or a plan of county-city government could be intituted. He favored the latter plan on the theory that it would eliminate duplication of services in the county, would save the taxpayers money, strengthen the county into a strong political and economic unit, and be an example to the nation of scientific government.

Names Committee

"This change cannot come in a year or two years but must be the result of thorough study and intensive research," the president said. "The league of municipalities can well devote considerable time to the proposition, not as a criticism of the board of supervisors or county financing, but as an effort to change the system."

Hasenjaeger appointed a committee of every mayor in the county, with Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana as chairman, to study the matter.

Supervisor LeRoy Lyon, who attended the meeting, did not attempt to answer Hasenjaeger but said that the cities were entitled to an accounting from the county to determine just where the money is expended. He mentioned in passing that 20 cents of the 90 cent tax goes to the welfare department, which gives the principal help in cities. He said that the jail question was not fair and should be adjusted on a fair basis. Other city benefits he cited were the county hospital and health department.

URGES ACTION ON PROGRAM OF FLOOD CONTROL

Necessity of immediate action on matters of flood control and water conservation and authoritative hints on the final decision to be made by the county supervisors on the supervision of the county-wide police radio were highlights of an extemporaneous talk given by Supervisor LeRoy Lyon at the meeting in Tustin last night of the Orange County League of Municipalities.

Lyon said he came before the cities to ask for united action in seeking government funds or raising money to protect the watersheds and river basins of this district. He outlined the formation and power of the Orange County Flood Control district and the new Orange County Basin district, directors of which were recently elected in the county.

"There are many streams in the county which could cause great damage in case of heavy rainfall," Lyon said. "The recent tragedy above Los Angeles shows the danger of floods. Orange county cannot afford to lay dormant when it is possible to secure federal aid on flood control. Water conservation is equally as important although federal aid cannot be expected on this phase of the question."

Urges Action

Lyon explained that the new district water board had no funds with which to work, the power of the board had not been tested for legality and the tax rate could not be increased to provide operating expenses until December so that work could be started. He pointed out that government aid could be secured under the old flood control district with the county supervisors acting as directors.

Lyon strongly recommended using the flood control features of the Elliott plan and going to the government for aid. He said that many sections of the country were receiving help on projects much less valuable and necessary as flood control here and there was no reason why the Santa Ana river basin should not be developed and safeguarded against floods.

If a bond issue were passed, or federal aid secured, the speaker pointed out, the proposition would include the disposition of water and spreading into the supporting basins.

Radio Control

Questioned by Mayor William Hale of Fullerton, Lyon spoke briefly on the county radio and outlined the difficulties in arriving at a fair basis of fixing responsibility and control. Speaking as an individual, he said that he was opposed to the deputizing of the operators because that might tend to influence their service.

He said that each city, county and state agency using the radio should have direct connections to broadcast and that the radio should be sufficiently independent so that each agency should have uncensored right to the service. He pointed out that each chief of police or head of the law enforcement agency would thus be responsible for his broadcasts.

The final disposition of the radio will be made next Tuesday by the supervisors, Lyon said, and declared he could not reveal or predict the final details of the plans. He said there was no disagreement as to the location of the equipment and aerial at the jail to insure protection and centralization.

England's Midget Built to Attack Battleships

A mighty midget that Great Britain depends upon to strengthen her traditional rule of the waves is a new 50-foot craft which you see skimming along at high speed in a recent test. Built to attack submarines, aircraft and any type of surface warships, the boat carries two torpedoes, two small anti-aircraft guns, four depth charges, smoke screen apparatus and a wireless telephone cabinet which keeps it in conversational touch with other ships and air craft within a radius of 50 miles. The boat, which requires a crew of only five, is capable of a speed of 40 knots

A crowd of Scots and their friends which jammed the hall to capacity assembled last night at Knights of Columbus hall in the annual gathering of the clans to pay tribute to Robert Burns, immortal Scottish poet. The banquet and concert, honoring the bard of Scotland was held under auspices of the Orange County Post, Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League.

The affair started with the diners standing while color bearers of the post brought in the flags of the Empire and the United States led by Pipe Major William Mathieson. Following the posting of the colors true Scottish tradition was follower when Little Miss Jessie Mathieson, wearing Scottish costume brought in the haggis, famous Scotch dish, to the accompaniment of her father's magpipes. After the "Address to the Haggis" by Alex Walker, toastmaster, the smoking dish was borne back to the kitchen for serving with the dinner. The Burns Grace was said by George A. Henry.

After the dinner, formalities of the evening were observed by toasts to The President of the United States, to the King, to the Lassies and a tribute to the immortal memory of Robert Burns delivered by Walker. A toast to The Press was responded to by J. F. Burke.

J. F. Watkins, sergeant-at-arms of the Canadian Legion post in Orange county was master of ceremonies during presentation of the program who, in addition to introducing the artists on the program sang "Ye Banks and Braes o'Bonnie Doon," and led the audience in singing "Auld Lang Syne" at the close of the etertainment.

Russell Munro, commander of the post, gave a brief address of welcome at the beginning of the program. Pipe Major Mathieson played several bagpipe numbers during the evening as did the Lyra String trio of the Fullerton Union High school.

Robert L. Brown of Santa Ana held the audience with a group of baritone solos and was forced to respond to several encores. Brown sang as his first number "Star o'Rabbie Burns" and later sang "McGregor's Gathering." In response to requests he sang "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled."

Dance Follows

Comedy was provided by D. W. Smith who gave a humorous monologue and by Billy Brighton and Jimmie Robison introduced as the "Twa Funny Scots." With Brighton at the piano Robinson sang a group of comic songs. When the program had been completed and the colors retired Walker invited the guests to remain for dancing if they wished and bid goodnight to those who did not care to stay. He sent them home with the request "Wul ye no cope back again?"

Walker also announced that next year the banquet and concert would be held on the night of January 24, the eve of Burns' birthday instead of on the birthday.

During the evening John Rowan of Vancouver, B. C., was introduced as the man who has not missed a Burns banquet in 50 years. Walker who introduced him said that Rowan has a direct connection with the immortal poet having been the helper of John McKendrick who had been the helper of Burns at one time. Rowan brought greetings from the Northern Scots to the Southern Scots and spoke of the first Burns dinner he attended 50 years ago.

MORE POPPY SEED DONATED TO CITY

With the donation of another quantity of golden poppy seed, the entire length of Santa Ana boulevard will be planted in the near future and promised donations will be planted along the parking in the center of Flower street, it was learned today from City Engineer J. L. McBride.

Mrs. Susy Temple, 1502 North Broadway, was the second public spirited flower lover to donate seeds, the first being Mrs. Violet Fergus, 329 Halesworth street. The two allotments will plant Santa Ana boulevard and since other persons have promised to bring in seeds, other entrances to the city will be sown.

The movement to beautify the highways started at a recent city council meeting when a plea was made for donations of seed.

March 8 was set as the day for a dinner to be staged by Santa Ana American Legion Post No. 131 celebrating the opening of the reconstructed American Legion hall on Birch street, it was decided at a meeting of the post last night in Getty Hall.

Franklin Grouard, chairman of the building committee, reported progress on the reconstruction work and outlined plans for opening events. The dinner celebration on March 8 will be an invitational event, it was decided, and on March 10, which is the anniversary of the earthquake which ruined the Legion building, a public dance and celebration will be staged.

A resolution drawn up by the Economic Council of Southern California urging congressmen and senators to take all possible measures to assure that the fleet remain in southern waters and that Southern California be provided with adequate national defense, was adopted at the meeting. The resolution was identical to one adopted at a joint meeting of the Orange County American Legion Council and the Santa Ana Elks club in Santa Ana this week.

Entertainment for the meeting was furnished by youths from Camp Trabuco CCC camp, who gave instrumental and vocal selections. Lieutenants Albert J. Sutcliffe and Dave Hamilton accompanied the youths. Walter Gregg sang several selections.

S. A. MERCHANTS ASSOCIATION PROGRAM FOR YEAR TO STRESS MERCHANDISING, COOPERATION

An ambitious program of activities for the ensuing year, including three major merchandising events, was outlined by Secretary-Manager A. Cavalli at a semi-annual meeting of the Santa Ana Merchants association last night in James' cafe.

Capt. Don Wilkie, lecturer, author and former United States secret service operative, was the featured speaker. He kept his audience of more than 60 merchants and guests listening intently to his personal experiences in opium dens in San Francisco's chinatown and others.

The speaker was introduced by Judge Frank Drumm, who enlivened the event with a running fire of humorous quips. In a serious moment, Judge Drumm declared that the Merchants association has a place in the city for distinctive work. He said that the activities of the association do not interfere with activities of other merchant groups, all of which should co-operate for mutual benefit.

Entertainment for the session, which started with a dinner, was furnished by Ray Ramon's 10-piece dance orchestra, which won the warm applause of listerers.

Cavalli urged support of the organization by merchants, declaring that it will be the aim of the association to co-operate in every way possible with other organizations.

"The drive the association started the early part of 1933 to stress the importance to local industry to buy goods made in Santa Ana and Orange county," he said, "will be continued and will be one of the major activities of the association. We also will continue the movement to buy everything possible in Santa Ana and Orange county. We believe that our local industries are the backbone of this community. We also propose to continue making surveys that will show the trend of business.

"We propose to have at least three outstanding merchandising events in Santa Ana this year, the first one to be staged the latter part of February similar to other events held in the past which have proven successful.

Enforce Laws

"Our Better Business Bureau committee will function as before and we will continue assisting in the enforcement of state laws concerning the fair trade act, the enforcement of which has been pledged by the district attorney and state attorney department officials. Our city ordinances must be obeyed, and it is our aim to assist in every way possible the city council and city attorney. We have co-operated closely with our license inspectors and will continue to do so throughout the year.

"We propose to recommend to our city council amended and new city ordinances whenever the opportunity presents itself, for the protection of merchants. We know that we have been instrumental in keeping many 'fly-by-night' merchants out of Santa Ana, and the chiseling type today think twice before they enter this territory.

"We believe there has been too much price-cutting and too little profit for our merchants within the past few years, which we will try to stop through our active committees and by bringing men closer together, pointing out to them the right way to do business.

"We will continue working toward the elimination of the traveling street peddler, who has taken thousands of dollars from our retail merchants. Other cities have stopped this menace and we will do likewise through the co-operation of the police department and our city inspectors.

Street Extension

"We will continue working diligently for the extension of South Main street, which would shorten the trip to Laguna Beach by five miles and which would prove beneficial to both Santa Ana and coastal communities. Santa Ana must remain the shopping center of Orange county, and we all can help by co-operating in every way possible."

W. E. Baker, of the Holly Sugar company, spoke of the increased sale of locally produced sugar since the Merchants association through Cavalli started a campaign to buy local products. Claude McDowell, manager of Weber's bakery, told of a similar experience.

Hugh J. Lowe said that the work of the secretary probably will be centered on corrective measures. Walter Nelson said the business district of the city should be centralized more than it is. P. Colenchick spoke in favor of a Dollar Day. Jerry Hall said he was anxious for work of the association to continue. Edward Cochems advised the merchants to advertise bargains to entice shoppers here.

GAS TAX VARIES

Motorists paid approximately $715,000,000 in Federal and state gasoline taxes during 1933, at rates ranging all the way from three and a half cents a gallon to eight and a half cents, in addition to local gas taxes imposed in some sections of the country.

Either the county is losing money at 12 cents or is getting a profit from 20 cents.

Suggests Study

"If the cities derive a substantial benefit to recompense the more than one million dollars paid to the county, the taxation is just. I am of the opinion that insufficient good is realized and that the taxation is unjust. Concerted study should be made of the problem through the league of cities."

Hasenjaeger pointed out that two changes were possible. Either the county supervisors could reduce the county tax for cities or a plan of county-city government could be intituted. He favored the latter plan on the theory that it would eliminate duplication of services in the county, would save the taxpayers money, strengthen the county into a strong political and economic unit, and be an example to the nation of scientific government.

Names Committee

"This change cannot come in a year or two years but must be the result of thorough study and intensive research," the president said. "The league of municipalities can well devote considerable time to the proposition, not as a criticism of the board of supervisors or county financing, but as an effort to change the system."

Hasenjaeger appointed a committee of every mayor in the county, with Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana as chairman, to study the matter.

Supervisor LeRoy Lyon, who attended the meeting, did not attempt to answer Hasenjaeger but said that the cities were entitled to an accounting from the county to determine just where the money is expended. He mentioned in passing that 20 cents of the 90 cent tax goes to the welfare department, which gives the principal help in cities. He said that the jail question was not fair and should be adjusted on a fair basis. Other city benefits he cited were the county hospital and health department.

URGES ACTION ON PROGRAM OF FLOOD CONTROL

Necessity of immediate action on matters of flood control and water conservation and authoritative hints on the final decision to be made by the county supervisors on the supervision of the county-wide police radio were highlights of an extemporaneous talk given by Supervisor LeRoy Lyon at the meeting in Tustin last night of the Orange County League of Municipalities.

Lyon said he came before the cities to ask for united action in seeking government funds or raising money to protect the watersheds and river basins of this district. He outlined the formation and power of the Orange County Flood Control district and the new Orange County Basin district, directors of which were recently elected in the county.

"There are many streams in the county which could cause great damage in case of heavy rainfall," Lyon said. "The recent tragedy above Los Angeles shows the danger of floods. Orange county cannot afford to lay dormant when it is possible to secure federal aid on flood control. Water conservation is equally as important although federal aid cannot be expected on this phase of the question."

Urges Action

Lyon explained that the new district water board had no funds with which to work, the power of the board had not been tested for legality and the tax rate could not be increased to provide operating expenses until December so that work could be started. He pointed out that government aid could be secured under the old flood control district with the county supervisors acting as directors.

Lyon strongly recommended using the flood control features of the Elliott plan and going to the government for aid. He said that many sections of the country were receiving help on projects much less valuable and necessary as flood control here and there was no reason why the Santa Ana river basin should not be developed and safeguarded against floods.

If a bond issue were passed, or federal aid secured, the speaker pointed out, the proposition would include the disposition of water and spreading into the supporting basins.

Radio Control

Questioned by Mayor William Hale of Fullerton, Lyon spoke briefly on the county radio and outlined the difficulties in arriving at a fair basis of fixing responsibility and control. Speaking as an individual, he said that he was opposed to the deputizing of the operators because that might tend to influence their service.

He said that each city, county and state agency using the radio should have direct connections to broadcast and that the radio should be sufficiently independent so that each agency should have uncensored right to the service. He pointed out that each chief of police or head of the law enforcement agency would thus be responsible for his broadcasts.

The final disposition of the radio will be made next Tuesday by the supervisors, Lyon said, and declared he could not reveal or predict the final details of the plans. He said there was no disagreement as to the location of the equipment and aerial at the jail to insure protection and centralization.

England's Midget Built to Attack Battleships

A mighty midget that Great Britain depends upon to strengthen her traditional rule of the waves is a new 50-foot craft which you see skimming along at high speed in a recent test. Built to attack submarines, aircraft and any type of surface warships, the boat carries two torpedoes, two small anti-aircraft guns, four depth charges, smoke screen apparatus and a wireless telephone cabinet which keeps it in conversational touch with other ships and aircraft within a radius of 50 miles. The boat, which requires a crew of only five, is capable of a speed of 40 knots

A crowd of Scots and their friends which jammed the hall to capacity assembled last night at Knights of Columbus hall in the annual gathering of the clans to pay tribute to Robert Burns, immortal Scottish poet. The banquet and concert, honoring the bard of Scotland was held under auspices of the Orange County Post, Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League.

The affair started with the diners standing while color bearers of the post brought in the flags of the Empire and the United States led by Pipe Major William Mathieson. Following the posting of the colors true Scottish tradition was follower when Little Miss Jessie Mathieson, wearing Scottish costume brought in the haggis, famous Scotch dish, to the accompaniment of her father's magpipes. After the "Address to the Haggis" by Alex Walker, toastmaster, the smoking dish was borne back to the kitchen for serving with the dinner. The Burns Grace was said by George A. Henry.

After the dinner, formalities of the evening were observed by toasts to The President of the United States, to the King, to the Lassies and a tribute to the immortal memory of Robert Burns delivered by Walker. A toast to The Press was responded to by J. F. Burke.

J. F. Watkins, sergeant-at-arms of the Canadian Legion post in Orange county was master of ceremonies during presentation of the program who, in addition to introducing the artists on the program sang "Ye Banks and Braes o'Bonnie Doon," and led the audience in singing "Auld Lang Syne" at the close of the etertainment.

Russell Munro, commander of the post, gave a brief address of welcome at the beginning of the program. Pipe Major Mathieson played several bagpipe numbers during the evening as did the Lyra String trio of the Fullerton Union High school.

Robert L. Brown of Santa Ana held the audience with a group of baritone solos and was forced to respond to several encores. Brown sang as his first number "Star o'Rabbie Burns" and later sang "McGregor's Gathering." In response to requests he sang "Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled."

Dance Follows

Comedy was provided by D. W. Smith who gave a humorous monologue and by Billy Brighton and Jimmie Robison introduced as the "Twa Funny Scots." With Brighton at the piano Robinson sang a group of comic songs. When the program had been completed and the colors retired Walker invited the guests to remain for dancing if they wished and bid goodnight to those who did not care to stay. He sent them home with the request "Wul ye no come back again?"

Walker also announced that next year the banquet and concert would be held on the night of January 24, the eve of Burns' birthday instead of on the birthday.

During the evening John Rowan of Vancouver, B. C., was introduced as the man who has not missed a Burns banquet in 50 years. Walker who introduced him said that Rowan has a direct connection with the immortal poet having been the helper of John McKendrick who had been the helper of Burns at one time. Rowan brought greetings from the Northern Scots to the Southern Scots and spoke of the first Burns dinner he attended 50 years ago.

With the donation of another quantity of golden poppy seed, the entire length of Santa Ana boulevard will be planted in the near future and promised donations will be planted along the parking in the center of Flower street, it was learned today from City Engineer J. L. McBride.

Mrs. Susy Temple, 1502 North Broadway, was the second public spirited flower lover to donate seeds, the first being Mrs. Violet Fergus, 329 Halesworth street. The two allotments will plant Santa Ana boulevard and since other persons have promised to bring in seeds, other entrances to the city will be sown.

The movement to beautify the highways started at a recent city council meeting when a plea was made for donations of seed.

March 8 was set as the day for a dinner to be staged by Santa Ana American Legion Post No. 131 celebrating the opening of the reconstructed American Legion hall on Birch street, it was decided at a meeting of the post last night in Getty Hall.

Franklin Grouard, chairman of the building committee, reported progress on the reconstruction work and outlined plans for opening events. The dinner celebration on March 8 will be an invitational event, it was decided, and on March 10, which is the anniversary of the earthquake which ruined the Legion building, a public dance and celebration will be staged.

A resolution drawn up by the Economic Council of Southern California urging congressmen and senators to take all possible measures to assure that the fleet remain in southern waters and that Southern California be provided with adequate national defense, was adopted at the meeting. The resolution was identical to one adopted at a joint meeting of the Orange County American Legion Council and the Santa Ana Elks club in Santa Ana this week.

An ambitious program of activities for the ensuing year, including three major merchandising events, was outlined by Secretary-Manager A. Cavalli at a semi-annual meeting of the Santa Ana Merchants association last night in James' cafe.

Capt. Don Wilkie, lecturer, author and former United States secret service operative, was the featured speaker. He kept his audience of more than 60 merchants and guests listening intently to his personal experiences in opium dens in San Francisco's chinatown and others.

The speaker was introduced by Judge Frank Drumm, who enlivened the event with a running fire of humorous quips. In a serious moment, Judge Drumm declared that the Merchants association has a place in the city for distinctive work. He said that the activities of the association do not interfere with activities of other merchant groups, all of which should co-operate for mutual benefit.

Entertainment for the session, which started with a dinner, was furnished by Ray Ramon's 10-piece dance orchestra, which won the warm applause of listerers.

Cavalli urged support of the organization by merchants, declaring that it will be the aim of the association to co-operate in every way possible with other organizations.

"The drive the association started the early part of 1933 to stress the importance to local industry to buy goods made in Santa Ana and Orange county," he said, "will be continued and will be one of the major activities of the association. We also will continue the movement to buy everything possible in Santa Ana and Orange county. We believe that our local industries are the backbone of this community. We also propose to continue making surveys that will show the trend of business.

"We propose to have at least three outstanding merchandising events in Santa Ana this year, the first one to be staged the latter part of February similar to other events held in the past which have proven successful.

Enforce Laws

"Our Better Business Bureau committee will function as before and we will continue assisting in the enforcement of state laws concerning the fair trade act, the enforcement of which has been pledged by the district attorney and state attorney department officials. Our city ordinances must be obeyed, and it is our aim to assist in every way possible the city council and city attorney. We have co-operated closely with our license inspectors and will continue to do so throughout the year.

"We propose to recommend to our city council amended and new city ordinances whenever the opportunity presents itself, for the protection of merchants. We know that we have been instrumental in keeping many 'fly-by-night' merchants out of Santa Ana, and the chiseling type today think twice before they enter this territory.

"We believe there has been too much price-cutting and too little profit for our merchants within the past few years, which we will try to stop through our active committees and by bringing men closer together, pointing out to them the right way to do business.

"We will continue working toward the elimination of the travelling street peddler, who has taken thousands of dollars from our retail merchants. Other cities have stopped this menace and we will do likewise through the co-operation of the police department and our city inspectors.

Street Extension

"We will continue working diligently for the extension of South Main street, which would shorten the trip to Laguna Beach by five miles and which would prove beneficial to both Santa Ana and coastal communities. Santa Ana must remain the shopping center of Orange county, and we all can help by co-operating in every way possible."

W. E. Baker, of the Holly Sugar company, spoke of the increased sale of locally produced sugar since the Merchants association through Cavalli started a campaign to buy local products. Claude McDowell, manager of Weber's bakery, told of a similar experience.

Hugh J. Lowe said that the work of the secretary probably will be centered on corrective measures. Walter Nelson said the business district of the city should be centralized more than it is. P. Colenchick spoke in favor of a Dollar Day. Jerry Hall said he was anxious for work of the association to continue. Edward Cochems advised the merchants to advertise bargains to entice shoppers here.

GAS TAX VARIES

Motorists paid approximately $715,000,000 in Federal and state gasoline taxes during 1933, at rates ranging all the way from three and a half cents a gallon to eight and a half cents, in addition to local gas taxes imposed in some sections of the country.

Birthday Dinner Has Unexpected Sequel Of Bridge Party

In accepting a recent dinner invitation of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell W. Finley, 1539 East Fourth street, Rhodes Finley considered it a pleasant observance of his birthday anniversary, and did not realize that it was merely an introduction to a more general celebration.

In serving the appetizing dinner menu, Mrs. Finley suggested that they repair to the parental home, 1633 East Fourth street, where their mother, Mrs. S. H. Finley, had a birthday cake baked in readiness for the dessert course.

In the meantime, the senior Mr. and Mrs. Finley had assembled a group of young people to await the arrival of the diners and to surprise the birthday celebrant with their good wishes and congratulations on his anniversary. His surprise was a happy culmination of the gay conspiracy.

Card tables, linen spread and candle-lighted, were in readiness for serving the dessert course as a preface to the evening of bridge. In the games, Miss Elizabeth Downie and George Bradley, scoring high, were rewarded with prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Finley were assisted in entertaining by Miss Lula B. Finley and Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Finley. In the party in addition to the son of the home and birthday celebrant, Rhodes Finley, were the Misses Helen Bower, Elma McBride, Marie Smith, Eleanor Metzgar, Verna Helm, Ernestine Wakeham, Eloise Schrier, Elizabeth Downie, Messrs. George Bradley, James Lukens, Roderick Smiley, James Stump, William McDaniel, John Hoy and Ted Meece.

Book Review Section Spends Interesting Evening

Reviewing Mary Webb's "Precious Bane," Mrs. W. H. DeWolfe provided a delightful evening for members of Junior Ebell's Book Review section as they met this week as guests in the home of Mrs. Gail Jordan, 1727 North Main street.

In speaking of the book and its author, Mrs. De Wolfe said "Mary Webb wove all the materials which might be used for melodrama of the cheapest sort into a drama of humor, tragedy, sweetness and worth; never becoming tawdry, at times only melodramatic." Mrs. De Wolfe told of the superstitions, rural customs and beauties of countryside unfolded by the book, "a drama of heartache.

During the business session Mrs. Kenneth Conner resigned as leader of the section, and Mrs. E. F. Bruning was named to fill her unexpired term.

In serving refreshments at the close of the program, Mrs. Jordan had assistance of her sister, Mrs. Melvin Salveson of Fullerton. The prettily appointed tea table was centered with sweet peas. Bouquets of calendulas had been arranged throughout the home.

R., Mrs. Lula Hall, president of Sedgwick W. R. C., and Mrs. Ida Millen, newly-installed president of W. R. C. Federation No. 1.

It was reported that 143 calls, 63 of which were of patriotic nature, had been made.

A letter was received from Inglewood tent, inviting the local group to attend installation of officers January 26.

It was announced that Sarah A. Rounds tent presented a flag to Belleria T. Jones tent of Redlands at its institution meeting held recently, when Mesdames Eva Bell, Nellie Parker, Rowena Grout, Lena Hewitt and Orpha Wade attended from here.

Daughters will be charge of a McKinley program to follow the monthly 6:30 o'clock dinner which Daughters and Sons of Veterans will have tonight in K. P. hall. Sons will be in charge of dinner arrangements.

A friendly social afternoon was shared by Shiloh Circle Ladies of the G. A. R. at their meeting in Pythian hall, with a short program to launch the afternoon.

Employes' Wives Join In Giving Surprise Dinner

Disclosing their plans to C. J. McDowell, manager of Weber's Baking company, wives of employes of the organization joined in giving a surprise dinner party recently in observance of Mrs. McDowell's birthday anniversary.

They made the bakery's clubrooms setting for the occasion, darkening them as the time drew near when the honor guest was to arrive, accompanying her husband to the plant supposedly on a business errand. To Mrs. McDowell's surprise the rooms were lighted with tapers in addition to small candles on a birthday cake provided for the occasion by Mr. McDowell. The group joined in singing "Happy Birthday To You."

Thus apprised of the occasion's significance, the birthday celebrant was escorted to a long table where a delectable dinner was in readiness for the 18 couples participating. A pink and green theme was observed in decorations, including much greenery and bouquets of flowers. Devotions were given by Bernard Snow.

Just preceding the dessert course, Mrs. J. E. Miller, on behalf of the women present, presented to Mrs. McDowell an electric mixer. Mr. McDowell then presented his wife a silver coffee urn, with accompanying tray, sugar and creamer. Mrs. McDowell responded with a short talk.

A program given during the evening included dances by little Miss Hambright and readings by Mrs. J. E. Miller. Mrs. Katherine Williams was piano accompanist for the evening. Dancing was enjoyed to radio music.

Mrs. Sam Sinesio had complete charge of arrangements for the evening. All participants had contributed dishes to the delicious dinner served.

Contract Bridge Forms Interesting Sequel To Luncheon

In entertaining yesterday at luncheon and bridge, Mrs. Theodore A. Winbigler and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ernest Winbigler, received a score or more guests in the T. A. Winbigler home, 207 East Ninth street, adding another to the long list of enjoyable affairs finding their setting in this friendly and delightful home.

The charms of winter were combined with those of the approaching spring in details of the party. For a wood fire snapping and crackling on the hearth, added to the intimate atmosphere, while bright hued ranunculas blossoms, as completely a harbinger of spring in California as robins are in the east, were grouped gracefully about the home, and arranged to center each luncheon tabe.

In serving the inviting menu, the hostesses employed a definite color scheme for each table, using azure, topaz, pink and pale green glass with charming effect when combined with the beautiful linens in Italian cutwork and filet lace.

Assistance in various duties of the afternoon was extended by close friends of the hostesses, including Mrs. J. E. Liebig, Mrs. Joseph H. Metzgar and Mrs. W. D. Ranney.

While the majority of guests played contract in the afternoon at the five tables provided for that form of bridge, there was one table where auction held sway. Here Mrs. Volney V. Tubbs made high score and Mrs. Charles D. Brown made second high, each suitably rewarded. Mrs. J. S. Smart and Mrs. Howard Timmons made first and second high scores in contract, and received the lovely gifts provided.

A second group of guests was to be entertained today at a bridge luncheon, with Mrs. Theodore Winbigler as hostess.

Plans Near Completion For Birthday Party Tuesday Night

Mrs. E. D. White, executive chairman of the women's division of the President's Birthday Party interviewed while she was receiving reports from her various committees, said today that she felt every detail was being carried out so that this would be a successful and happy party.

Members of the decorations committees for the three events were particularly happy to have each secured a copy of a handsome portrait of President Roosevelt to feature in their decorations. The prize committee for the Ebell card party is expending care and thoughtfulness on the selection of prizes, keeping in mind the purpose of the party and the nature of the occasion as well as the pleasure of the guests. Mrs. Claudia Worswick, Mrs Roy Shafer, Mrs. E. W. Spruance and Mrs. Milo Tedstrom comprise the women's committee with John Knox working with them from the men's division.

Mrs. C. V. Davis, chairman of the women's committee on arrangements for the card party, and Ernest Winbigler, from the men's division, have a large committee to assist them in the work of arranging tables in preparation for the party, and a committee of hosts and hostesses has been appointed to see to the seating of players.

The auditorium of Ebell clubhouse will be open for the entire national broadcast which has been specially arranged for the occasion. The program, which is more than an hour in length, can be heard there in its entirety. Opportunity will be given guests at the other parties to hear the President's address.

The general observance of this nation-wide event, has aroused an unusually warm and friendly interest in Santa Ana. This interest is being manifested by different hostesses who are planning friendly little dinner parties in their homes to precede attendance at some one of the major events of the general program.

Student Recital

A spring recital of much interest was that at which several gifted young piano pupils were presented by Minnie Phillips Heard, assistant piano teacher to Earl Fraser. Relatives of the young people and several appreciative guests were bidden to Miss Heard's home, 457 West Sixth street, which was decked with garden flowers for the event.

Edward H. Burns assisted by introducing his 'cello pupil, Earl Talley, who played several numbers. This lad, although handicapped by blindness, is showing fine musical talent and is an honor student at Los Angeles Polytechnic high school. He played two 'cello numbers arranged by Leo Schulz, "Berceuse" and "Scherzo."

Mrs. Heard's two advanced pupils, Lois Gill and Esther Vogt, played with fine feeling and artistry. Both are teaching as a part of their musical development. Miss Gill's numbers included "Prayer" and "April" by Julian Pascal, and Miss Vogt played "Etude" and "Dance of the Gnomes" by Liszt.

Others taking part were Grace Olson, Margaret Olson, Charlotte Quiggle, Ruth Scharer, Doris Clark and Phyllis Krock. All their numbers were well received, and special interest was manifested in the work of Doris Clark, only eleven years old.

Birthday Dinner Has Unexpected Sequel Of Bridge Party

In accepting a recent dinner invitation of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell W. Finley, 1539 East Fourth street, Rhodes Finley considered it a pleasant observance of his birthday anniversary, and did not realize that it was merely an introduction to a more general celebration.

In serving the appetizing dinner menu, Mrs. Finley suggested that they repair to the parental home, 1633 East Fourth street, where their mother, Mrs. S. H. Finley, had a birthday cake baked in readiness for the dessert course.

In the meantime, the senior Mr. and Mrs. Finley had assembled a group of young people to await the arrival of the diners and to surprise the birthday celebrant with their good wishes and congratulations on his anniversary. His surprise was a happy culmination of the gay conspiracy.

Card tables, linen spread and candle-lighted, were in readiness for serving the dessert course as a preface to the evening of bridge. In the games, Miss Elizabeth Downie and George Bradley, scoring high, were rewarded with prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Finley were assisted in entertaining by Miss Lula B. Finley and Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Finley. In the party in addition to the son of the home and birthday celebrant, Rhodes Finley, were the Misses Helen Bower, Elma McBride, Marie Smith, Eleanor Metzgar, Verna Helm, Ernestine Wakeham, Eloise Schrier, Elizabeth Downie, Messrs. George Bradley, James Lukens, Roderick Smiley, James Stump, William McDaniel, John Hoy and Ted Meece.

EAT AND GROW SLIM
Luncheon

Salad plate:
½ cup shredded cabbage
2 tbsps. grated carrot
2 walnut meats, cut fine
2 tbsps. diced celery
2 tbsps. mineral oil mayonnaise
1 square ry-krisp unbuttered
Pot of tea, no cream or sugar.
Calory total....140.

This menu is good for the family, as far as it goes, but it needs bolstering up for those who are allowed to eat. How about deviled ham sandwiches? Or grated cheese in a toasted sandwich. And of course, straight mayonnaise in place of mineral oil dressing.

Dessert? Most anything the family likes, or the one easiest for you to make.

Book Review Section Spends Interesting Evening

Reviewing Mary Webb's "Precious Bane," Mrs. W. H. DeWolfe provided a delightful evening for members of Junior Ebell's Book Review section as they met this week as guests in the home of Mrs. Gail Jordan, 1727 North Main street.

In speaking of the book and its author, Mrs. De Wolfe said "Mary Webb wove all the materials which might be used for melodrama of the cheapest sort into a drama of humor, tragedy, sweetness and worth; never becoming tawdry, at times only melodramatic." Mrs. De Wolfe told of the superstitions, rural customs and beauties of countryside unfolded by the book, "a drama of heartache."

During the business session Mrs. Kenneth Conner resigned as leader of the section, and Mrs. E. F. Bruning was named to fill her unexpired term.

In serving refreshments at the close of the program, Mrs. Jordan had assistance of her sister, Mrs. Melvin Salveson of Fullerton. The prettily appointed tea table was centered with sweet peas. Bouquets of calendulas had been arranged throughout the home.

Employes' Wives Join In Giving Surprise Dinner

Disclosing their plans to C. J. McDowell, manager of Weber's Baking company, wives of employes of the organization joined in giving a surprise dinner party recently in observance of Mrs. McDowell's birthday anniversary.

They made the bakery's clubrooms setting for the occasion, darkening them as the time drew near when the honor guest was to arrive, accompanying her husband to the plant supposedly on a business errand. To Mrs. McDowell's surprise the rooms were lighted with tapers in addition to small candles on a birthday cake provided for the occasion by Mr. McDowell. The group joined in singing "Happy Birthday To You."

Thus apprised of the occasion's significance, the birthday celebrant was escorted to a long table where a delectable dinner was in readiness for the 18 couples participating. A pink and green theme was observed in decorations, including much greenery and bouquets of flowers. Devotions were given by Bernard Snow.

Just preceding the dessert course, Mrs. J. E. Miller, on behalf of the women present, presented to Mrs. McDowell an electric mixer. Mr. McDowell then presented his wife a silver coffee urn, with accompanying tray, sugar and creamer. Mrs. McDowell responded with a short talk.

A program given during the evening included dances by little Miss Hambright and readings by Mrs. J. E. Miller. Mrs. Katherine Williams was piano accompanist for the evening. Dancing was enjoyed to radio music.

Mrs. Sam Sinesio had complete charge of arrangements for the evening. All participants had contributed dishes to the delicious dinner served.

FRED FRAME TO BROADCAST ON KREG TONIGHT

Fred Frame, famous race driver, will be interviewed by R. R. McDonald, sales manager for George Dunton, Ford dealer in Santa Ana, in KREG's main studio tonight at 7:30.

Frame will recount highlights of the sensational Elgin Stock Car Race which he won, driving a Ford V-8 at an average speed of over 80 miles per hour.

His broadcast tonight from the local station is contemporary with the showing of the cut-away Ford V-8 chassis on display at George Dunton's today only, until 9 p. m., where Fred Frame will be, except during the time of his broadcast, to explain the features to those who visit the showroom. The chassis will be in motion.

The direct road from Stockton via Collegeville and Valley Home is still closed due to bridge construction, according to the National Automobile club. An alternate is offered via U. S. No. 99 and the Manteca-Escalon road.

EMMA OGLDMAN TO BE TOPIC OF TALK

Tonight's broadcast of "People Who Make News" from KREG at 8:15 will describe the personalities of Emma Goldman, whom "News Week" describes as "the indomitable anarchist" and who returned to the United States from Russia for a 90 day visit; the Duc de Guise, present pretender to the throne of France who hasn't given up hope that the monarchy, dethroned since 1870, will be reestablished; Henry Pu-yi, Regent of Manchuko, so-called Japanese puppet state which resulted from the Japanese occupation of Manchuria, and who was laying in a stock of imperial robes last week, ready to become Emperor; and a prune-raiser, Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, leader of the Republican minority and on whom President Roosevelt is depending for the Republican support of the St. Lawrence waterways project.

GARVEY ROAD DETOUR

There is a detour on Garvey road at San Gabriel boulevard due to bridge construction, reports the National Automobile club. Traffic goes south over an oiled detour on San Gabriel boulevard to Durfee road and returns to the Valley boulevard over Durfee road.

FAMOUS DRIVER OF AUTO RACES IN SHORT TALK

Tonight at 6:40, KREG listeners will hear the first of a series of 5-minute talks by Barney Oldfield, oldest and probably the most famous of all race drivers, to be broadcast by means of electrical transcription each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at this time and at 8:45 p. m. Sundays. The broadcasts will be made under the sponsorship of L. D. Coffing, of Santa Ana, local distributor of Plymouth and Dodge cars.

Each broadcast will be different and Oldfield will discuss many of his most interesting experiences as a race driver of international fame, describing several close escapes from fatal accidents. His "Plymouth Pilgrims" will offer brief bits of novelty music on each program.

JULIA JORDAN BACK ON KREG TONIGHT

Julia Jordan, concert vocalist, will return to KREG tonight at 6:15 for another series of programs to be given each Wednesday and Friday at that time. She has been on a vacation for over two weeks.

Her program for tonight will include "La Serenata," Tosti; "Roses of Kilarney," Collins; "In the Luxembourg Gardens," Manning; "Mi Viejo Amro," Oteo, and "A Kiss in the Dark," Herbert. She will be assisted by Mrs. Winifred Humeston.

Program officials said that Julia Jordan has received many letters of appreciation for previous programs and that her excellent voice is the culmination of many years of intensive training.

KREG NOTES

C Sharpe Minor at the organ and Lois Deering at the piano, a feature C. B. S. broadcast from KREG, usually scheduled at 10:15 p. m., will be heard at 8 o'clock tonight for 15 minutes only, due to a temporary change in schedule.

The play will dramatize the true story of a charming princess, of the House of Romanoff, who now lives alone on the island of Majorca in the Mediterranean. "From the ashes of the Russian Revolution comes a true story of adventure, love and sacrifice that has few equals in fiction," program officials said.

Here's a triple-plated recipe for eliminating those breakfast brambles. Husbands—yes, even the maddest of the fellows—are astonishingly pliable to the rich and mellow soothings of a steaming cup of Hills Bros. Coffee. In fact, so are you. Try it and see. No human system yet designed can stand the terrible strain of getting out of a cozy bed without proper incentive. Ample Hills Bros. Coffee waiting on the breakfast table is incentive enough for anyone. So weep no more, dear lady. Ply that man across from you with freshly brewed Hills Bros. Coffee. He will leave the table as meek as a lamb and go to the office with the determination of twenty lions.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy Morell and Tom Weaver are married the same day as Lila Hotaling and Derek Bliss. Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy intends to go on with her job, teaching in a settlement.

After returning from a honeymoon in Europe Lila asks the Weavers to dinner. Among the guests is wealthy Marko Groughton, who once asked Gypsy to marry him. He showers Gypsy with attentions and Tom is jealous.

Broughton offers her a job on Saturdays, cataloguing his library and Gypsy accepts without telling Tom. Just as she finishes the work she is taken ill and the doctors tells her she is going to have a baby. Tom insists she must give up her job at the settlement. Gypsy is happy keeping house until Lila comes back from a winter in Florida and asks her to luncheon. Gypsy realizes her clothes are shappy in comparison with Lila's.

CHAPTER XX

They had been established in the little blue-roofed house for two weeks now and life had taken on a different hue. Was it possible, Gypsy thought, awakening in her narrow green bed, looking out at the interlocking branches of apple trees just beyond her window, was it posible that 14 days ago she had been possessed by a very madness of despair and sickness. The air of this place renewed her. She sang about her work now. Everything was fun—marketing in the little car, boiling fat lobsters until they were scarlet, steaming clams for Tom's dinner, stringing beans in the deep-cushioned swing in the garden.

Mrs. McKinnon's small house seemed a very paradise to her after the cramping walls of the flat. The brass kettles twinkled, the water sang a little tune of its own as it splashed into the dish-pan, beds were made to the accompaniment of robins and thrushes. Roses bloomed in the dooryard and peonies and mock orange made a screen for the kitchen garden. Could life be so different?

Yes, it was a new Gypsy who moved about the bare, neat little rooms. Sometimes in the evenings it was ooo! enough to have a fire lighted on the hearth and neighbors dropped in, friendly people who lived down the road and wanted to share their largesse of flowers and advice with the newcomers.

Gypsy filled the vases with flowers. She dusted and sewed and read, all with a full and happy heart. Life was glorious and complete.

One afternoon she was sitting in the garden swing, shelling peas into a wooden bowl, happily planning a dinner of chops and salad and custard, when she heard the purr of an expensive motor in the drive. She looked up hastily to see an expensively shod and stockinged foot emerge from the tonneau, and threw her apron over the peas, hating herself for the snobbish impulse that prompted the gesture but unable to prevent herself from doing it.

"Lila, my dear! However did you find me?"

"I rang up your apartment and the operator told me." Lila was glancing about her with appraising eyes, taking it all in, the pleasant rather shabby garden, with no pretension about it. Just a tangle of old-fashioned flowers and overgrown shrubs.

Gypsy cleared a space for her on the swing, pushing books, vegetables and bowl aside. "But how nice to see you," she said. "I've been wondering where you were and what you were doing."

Lila was thin, petulant, restless. Her eyes roved, her conversation was gay and morbid by turns. Things were dull, she said. Everybody had gone abroad. There was absolutely nothing to do. Through her discourse wove the thread of discontent, although the happenings she sketched sounded, to Gypsy's simple soul, dazzling enough. The garden party at the Tewksburys, the fete at the Chisholms, the bathing, tea-ing, dancing existence that was the sum of Lila's daily round.

"My dear!" she murmured indulgently. "You have no idea—you simply have no idea how deadly it is. Sometimes I think I'll run to Majorca, to Bali, or some place where one doesn't have to see people...."

Now it was Gypsy turn to be amused.

"I hear those places are crowded, too," she said with a pleasant laugh. To distract Lila she offered a promise of tea. She had bought some little cakes in the village that morning, pink and white ones, looking like cakes for a children's party. These she offered her caller on a tin tray painted green, with the ice clinking delightfully in the amber glasses.

"This is—nice," Lila offered, laying aside her gloves, her expensive-looking bag, to accept the plate Gypsy offered. "You're a very comfortable sort of person, do you know that, my dear? There's something about this garden, simple as it is...." She did not finish the sentence, but Gypsy knew what she meant. And indeed the peace and simplicity of the place laid cool hands upon you. There was a sort of magic there, for those wise enough to find it.

Gypsy told her friend something of the stress of the past months; her feeling of weakness and misery, the heat of town, their release when Tom had found this place. Lila laid her long, slim-fingered hand on her cheek and looked at the younger girl with wide, serious, concerned eyes.

"But my dear, why didn't you let me know? You might have come to us."

Now she was more like the old playmate Gypsy had played sand tag with on the beach in Maine so many happy summers. She had for the moment dropped her air of boredom and artificiality and was simply another girl, sympathetic, sincere and loving.

Gypsy asked about Derek and it seemed to her that his young wife answered hastily and almost coldly, that she turned her eyes fleetingly away.

"He's all right. He's splendid," she added most unconvincingly. What was the matter with Derek these days, Lila asked herself with resentment. He was always tired, taciturn, reserved. You grew tired of playing up to a man's moods. She, herself, didn't believe in it. Men ought to realize—her father always had—that the woman, the wife, was the important cog in domestic affairs. She was the one to be petted, amused, made happy. It was the man's business to make as much money as possible, to surround his wife with lovely things, give her the setting she deserved.

She wasn't like Gypsy, to be contented with a hearth and blue aprons and a rickety little car. She had to have life, movement, color. What was it Marko had said to her the other night: "You're like some wild bird....bird of paradise, flashing by." Marko said things like that, made you feel young, precious, infinitely desirable. She said abruptly, "Marko's wonderful, isn't he, Gypsy? I wonder you ever had the courage to refuse him."

"Why, yes, I suppose he is. But marriage...." Her voice trailed away, her eyes were on the glossy foliage of the Claudius Pernet rose bush just under the living room window. Marriage with Marko Broughton! Out of the question, her rebellious heart said. Marriage meant Tom and shared simple meals and apricots in a green bowl.

"Why, I couldn't have married Marko," Gypsy said wonderingly. What was Lila thinking of?

"Hilda Blanchard often asks about Tom," she said carelessly after a moment. "She thought he was marvelous looking. Hilda's a bit of the devil," she added admiringly.

* * *

Gypsy felt the color rise in her cheeks. She knew it was foolish to care. It was horrid, too, to be so possessive, but she just couldn't help it. She hated that girl who had behaved so outrageousy at Lila's dinner party.

But Lila had already forgotten Hilda in some recital of a real or fancied grievance. Did Gypsy remember the Ranson Howes? Well, they had been at Newport—they didn't go to Maine any more—and Ellen Howe had rung her up to say they'd like to come down to luncheon. They had all descended, bag and baggage, a week before, wit four dogs. "My dear, can you believe it? Four! And Noggins (that's my new chow) was in a beast of a temper. I was a wreck when they pulled out."

Gypsy listened, agreed, nodded. She had a feeling that under Lila's chatter there was a deep undercurrent of restlessness, a hidden meaning. Lila was talking at random. She didn't really care what the Howes did, nor how long they had stayed.

It all seemed very petty and shallow and (in spite of the electricity and glamour) rather sad. Lila's life was one valiant pursuit of pleasure and apparently she seldom achieved her aim. Gypsy enjoyed the unwonted sensation of feeling sorry for her friend. The contrast between them was great; one thin, brown, eager, with apricot tints in her cheeks and lambent lights in her brown eyes; the other willowy, elegant, scented, all in purest white, with rings on her slim fingers and paint on her lovely, restless, unhappy mouth. And yet, of the two, Gypsy felt the richer—the more content.

At long last, Lila rose to go. She would be slain, she said, when she arrived home. There were guests for dinner and she hadn't ordered the flowers. Koto would be in vile humor. He always was. With outflung hands, Lila implored Gypsy's sympathy on this point. "Servants, my dear," she said, with raised brows. "Servants!"

She seemed oddly loath to go. At parting she held Gypsy's hand fondly. "I didn't tell you what I came to say," she said in a half whisper. "I have something to ask you. Most important. But it will have to wait."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Gypsy Morell and Tom Weaver are married the same day as Lila Hotaling and Derek Bliss. Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy intends to go on with her job, teaching in a settlement.

After returning from a honeymoon in Europe Lila asks the Weavers to dinner. Among the guests is wealthy Marko Groughton, who once asked Gypsy to marry him. He showers Gypsy with attentions and Tom is jealous.

Broughton offers her a job on Saturdays, cataloguing his library and Gypsy accepts without telling Tom. Just as she finishes the work she is taken ill and the doctors tells her she is going to have a baby. Tom insists she must give up her job at the settlement. Gypsy is happy keeping house until Lila comes back from a winter in Florida and asks her to luncheon. Gypsy realizes her clothes are shabby in comparison with Lila's.

Summer in the New York apartment is hard on Gypsy. Then a friend who lives on Long Island loans the Weavers his home.

CHAPTER XX

They had been established in the little blue-roofed house for two weeks now and life had taken on a different hue. Was it possible, Gypsy thought, awakening in her narrow green bed, looking out at the interlocking branches of apple trees just beyond her window, was it posible that 14 days ago she had been possessed by a very madness of despair and sickness. The air of this place renewed her. She sang about her work now. Everything was fun—marketing in the little car, boiling fat lobsters until they were scarlet, steaming clams for Tom's dinner, stringing beans in the deep-cushioned swing in the garden.

Mrs. McKinnon's small house seemed a very paradise to her after the cramping walls of the flat. The brass kettles twinkled, the water sang a little tune of its own as it splashed into the dish-pan, beds were made to the accompaniment of robins and thrushes. Roses bloomed in the dooryard and peonies and mock orange made a screen for the kitchen garden. Could life be so different?

Yes, it was a new Gypsy who moved about the bare, neat little rooms. Sometimes in the evenings it was cool enough to have a fire lighted on the hearth and neighbors dropped in, friendly people who lived down the road and wanted to share their largesse of flowers and advice with the newcomers.

Gypsy filled the vases with flowers. She dusted and sewed and read, all with a full and happy heart. Life was glorious and complete.

One afternoon she was sitting in the garden swing, shelling peas into a wooden bowl, happily planning a dinner of chops and salad and custard, when she heard the purr of an expensive motor in the drive. She looked up hastily to see an expensively shod and stockinged foot emerge from the tonneau, and threw her apron over the peas, hating herself for the snobbish impulse that prompted the gesture but unable to prevent herself from doing it.

Presently the clack of high heels sounded on the flagstone walk and Gypsy rose to greet her visitor. Her eyes widened.

"Lila, my dear! However did you find me?"

Her caller was exquisite in white—simple and perfectly made frock of dull crepe with a little jacket, white hat atilt on her shining golden waves.

"I rang up your apartment and the operator told me," Lila was glancing about her with appraising eyes, taking it all in, the pleasant rather shabby garden, with no pretension about it. Just a tangle of old-fashioned flowers and overgrown shrubs.

Gypsy cleared a space for her on the swing, pushing books, vegetables and bowl aside. "But how nice to see you," she said. "I've been wondering where you were and what you were doing."

Lila was thin, petulant, restless. Her eyes roved, her conversation was gay and morbid by turns. Things were dull, she said. Everybody had gone abroad. There was absolutely nothing to do. Through her discourse wove the thread of discontent, although the happenings she sketched sounded, to Gypsy's simple soul, dazzling enough. The garden party at the Tewksburys, the fete at the Chisholms, the bathing, tea-ing, dancing existence that was the sum of Lila's daily round.

"My dear!" she murmured indulgently. "You have no idea—you simply have no idea how deadly it is. Sometimes I think I'll run to Majorca, to Bali, or some place where one doesn't have to see people...."

Now it was Gypsy turn to be amused.

"I hear those places are crowded, too," she said with a pleasant laugh. To distract Lila she offered a promise of tea. She had bought some little cakes in the village that morning, pink and white ones, looking like cakes for a children's party. These she offered her caller on a tin tray painted green, with the ice clinking delightfully in the amber glasses.

"This is—nice," Lila offered, laying aside her gloves, her expensive-looking bag, to accept the plate Gypsy offered. "You're a very comfortable sort of person, do you know that, my dear? There's something about this garden, simple as it is...." She did not finish the sentence, but Gypsy knew what she meant. And indeed the peace and simplicity of the place laid cool hands upon you. There was a sort of magic there, for those wise enough to find it.

Gypsy told her friend something of the stress of the past months; her feeling of weakness and misery, the heat of town, their release when Tom had found this place. Lila laid her long, slim-fingered hand on her cheek and looked at the younger girl with wide, serious, concerned eyes.

"But my dear, why didn't you let me know? You might have come to us."

Now she was more like the old playmate Gypsy had played sand tag with on the beach in Maine so many happy summers. She had for the moment dropped her air of boredom and artificiality and was simply another girl, sympathetic, sincere and loving.

* * *

The heat of the afternoon deepened around them. Birds sang in the bushes and a salt breeze blew off the Sound and still Lila stayed on.

Gypsy asked about Derek and it seemed to her that his young wife answered hastily and almost coldly, that she turned her eyes fleetingly away.

"He's all right. He's splendid," she added most unconvincingly. What was the matter with Derek these days. Lila asked herself with resentment. He was always tired, taciturn, reserved. You grew tired of playing up to a man's moods. She, herself, didn't believe in it. Men ought to realize—her father always had—that the woman, the wife, was the important cog in domestic affairs. She was the one to be petted, amused, made happy. It was the man's business to make as much money as possible, to surround his wife with lovely things, give her the setting she deserved.

She wasn't like Gypsy, to be contented with a hearth and blue aprons and a rickety little car. She had to have life, movement, color. What was it Marko had said to her the other night: "You're like some wild bird....bird of paradise, flashing by." Marko said things like that, made you feel young, precious, infinitely desirable. She said abruptly, "Marko's wonderful, isn't he, Gypsy? I wonder you ever had the courage to refuse him."

"Why, yes, I suppose he is. But marriage...." Her voice trailed away, her eyes were on the glossy foliage of the Claudius Pernet rose bush just under the living room window. Marriage with Marko Broughton! Out of the question, her rebellious heart said. Marriage meant Tom and shared simple meals and apricots in a green bowl.

"Why, I couldn't have married Marko," Gypsy said wonderingly. What was Lila thinking of?

Lila shrugged her shoulders. It was none of her business, after all.

"Hilda Blanchard often asks about Tom," she said carelessly after a moment. "She thought he was marvelous looking. Hilda's a bit of the devil," she added admiringly.

* * *

Gypsy felt the color rise in her cheeks. She knew it was foolish to care. It was horrid, too, to be so possessive, but she just couldn't help it. She hated that girl who had behaved so outrageously at Lila's dinner party.

"She's very attractive," was Gypsy's contribution.

But Lila had already forgotten Hilda in some recital of a real or fancied grievance. Did Gypsy remember the Ranson Howes? Well, they had been at Newport—they didn't go to Maine any more—and Ellen Howe had rung her up to say they'd like to come down to luncheon. They had all descended, bag and baggage, a week before, wit four dogs. "My dear, can you believe it? Four! And Noggins (that's my new chow) was in a beast of a temper. I was a wreck when they pulled out."

Gypsy listened, agreed, nodded. She had a feeling that under Lila's chatter there was a deep undercurrent of restlessness, a hidden meaning. Lila was talking at random. She didn't really care what the Howes did, nor how long they had stayed.

It all seemed very petty and shallow and (in spite of the electricity and glamour) rather sad. Lila's life was one valiant pursuit of pleasure and apparently she seldom achieved her aim. Gypsy enjoyed the unwonted sensation of feeling sorry for her friend. The contrast between them was great; one thin, brown, eager, with apricot tints in her cheeks and lambent lights in her brown eyes; the other willowy, elegant, scented, all in purest white, with rings on her slim fingers and paint on her lovely, restless, unhappy mouth. And yet, of the two, Gypsy felt the richer—the more content.

At long last, Lila rose to go. She would be slain, she said, when she arrived home. There were guests for dinner and she hadn't ordered the flowers. Koto would be in vile humor. He always was. With outflung hands, Lila implored Gypsy's sympathy on this point. "Servants, my dear," she said, with raised brows. "Servants!"

She seemed oddly loath to go. At parting she held Gypsy's hand fondly. "I didn't tell you what I came to say," she said in a half whisper. "I have something to ask you. Most important. But it will have to wait."

Postage Stamps Commemorate Events of Nations

Issues of postage stamps commemorating important international events add much to the fascinating hobby of stamp collecting. This world-wide hobby has received a new impetus in California since the Weber Baking Company began enclosing interesting foreign postage stamps with its bread.

An example of a nation paying tribute to another by a postage stamp issue, is shown in the illustration below. As a reciprocal gesture of friendship to the United States, who had previously issued a stamp in honor of Poland, that country in 1932 returned the gesture by a stamp issue of its own honoring the United States.

The unusual widespread fascination of stamp collecting, according to officials of Weber Baking Company, is evidenced by the huge number of requests they are receiving for the stamp album which they mail free to the users of their bread.

Postage Stamps Commemorate Events of Nations

Issues of postage stamps commemorating important international events add much to the fascinating hobby of stamp collecting. This world-wide hobby has received a new impetus in California since the Weber Baking Company began enclosing interesting foreign postage stamps with its bread.

An example of a nation paying tribute to another by a postage stamp issue, is shown in the illustration below. As a reciprocal gesture of friendship to the United States, who had previously issued a stamp in honor of Poland, that country in 1932 returned the gesture by a stamp issue of its own honoring the United States.

The lower stamp in the accompanying illustration was issued by Brazil in commemoration of the visit of the King and Queen of Belgium to Brazil.

The unusual widespread fascination of stamp collecting, according to officials of Weber Baking Company, is evidenced by the huge number of requests they are receiving for the stamp album which they mail free to the users of their bread.

GARDEN GROVE

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Perkins jr. entertained at dinner Monday evening George Perkins of Neward, N. J., who is in the west on a business trip. The visitor is a cousin of W. W. Perkins jr.

Mrs. Henry Wallen of Pittsburgh, Pa., spent two days in the home of her niece, Mrs. E. L. Marr. She is spending the winter in Southern California.

Mrs. Walter Knott and daughters, Virginia and Elizabeth, and Miss Josephine Davis, of Buena Park, were luncheon guests Monday in the home of the former's mother-in-law, Mrs. M. V. Knott.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rogers of North Euclid street, have purchased a six-room house at the corner of Flower and Russell streets in Sunnyside Gardens. The new owners are redecorating the house and expect to make their home there, having leased their Euclid avenue property. The deal was made by A. J. Kelly, local realtor.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Favorable developments in business and trade from all parts of the country combined with a firm bond market and strength in commodities brought increased activity into the stock market today. Late in the session the list showed a firm tone with tickers barely able to keep pace.

Wet stocks were late features. Long strngs of National Distillers came out at rising prices and gains spread thru the list. The reason for the turn was anticipation of high earnings for the various companies. Distillers crossed 27 for agan of a point or so. Schenley jumped 2 upoints and U. S. Industrial Alcohol more than a point.

Automobile and automobile equipments led in activity throughout the session on reports from all automotive cents of increased orders and heavy re-employment of men. New highs for 1933-34 were made by General Motors, Nash, Hudson, Motor Wheel, Moto-Meter, and Electric Auto-Lite.

GARDEN GROVE

GARDEN GROVE, Jan. 26. — Mrs. E. L. Marr entertained with a dinner party at her home on West Stanford street recently in honor of her husband on his birthday anniversary. A turkey dinner was served at a table decorated with pink stock and Chinese lilies. A feature of the dessert course was a lovely pink and white birthday cake. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Young and Emery Marr of Venice, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Marr and children of Riverside, Ernest Marr jr., and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Marr.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Perkins jr. entertained at dinner Monday evening George Perkins of Neward, N. J., who is in the west on a business trip. The visitor is a cousin of W. W. Perkins jr.

Mrs. Henry Wallen of Pittsburgh, Pa., spent two days in the home of her niece, Mrs. E. L. Marr. She is spending the winter in Southern California.

Mrs. Walter Knott and daughters, Virginia and Elizabeth, and Miss Josephine Davis, of Buena Park, were luncheon guests Monday in the home of the former's mother-in-law, Mrs. M. V. Knott.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rogers of North Euclid street, have purchased a six-room house at the corner of Flower and Russell streets in Sunnyside Gardens. The new owners are redecorating the house and expect to make their home there, having leased their Euclid avenue property. The deal was made by A. J. Kelly, local realtor.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(UP)—Favorable developments in business and trade from all parts of the country combined with a firm bond market and strength in commodities brought increased activity into the stock market today. Late in the session the list showed a firm tone with tickers barely able to keep pace.

Wet stocks were late features. Long strngs of National Distillers came out at rising prices and gains spread thru the list. The reason for the turn was anticipation of high earnings for the various companies. Distillers crossed 27 for agan of a point or so. Schenley jumped 2 upoints and U. S. Industrial Alcohol more than a point.

Automobile and automobile equipments led in activity throughout the session on reports from all automotive cents of increased orders and heavy re-employment of men. New highs for 1923-34 were made by General Motors, Nash, Hudson, Motor Wheel, Moto-Meter, and Electric Auto-Lite.

NOT REALLY SO STUPID

We should like to allay some alarm that is felt in the hearts of the people of Orange county, through fear that our national government is leaving us unprotected from the wily Japanese. A speaker the other night endeavored to stir up sentiment to keep our Pacific fleet close to our shores here, and drew a picture of the dangers from Japan. He said this:

> The Pacific coast is the frontier of the nation. We defend it no better than 20 years ago, when the Japanese were hanging by their tails from trees, while today they are able to whip any nation.

There are a few suggestions we would make about that statement. In the first place, we are not entirely familiar with just how our departments of Navy and Army would protect or are protecting our coast. Frankly, there are some things that we have observed that we didn't know until we had gone along our coastline. We rather imagine there are some things that are known to the Navy Department of our government, and to our army leaders, that are not commonly known.

In fact, if it were commonly known, those who might sometime become enemies would learn of it, and sometimes in the secrecy of it, lies its main power. We do not believe that we can reasonably charge our government, after the millions of dollars which have been spent in the army and navy, in all these years, with being as dumb as this kind of suggestion would make them. No, we rather believe that we have had some wise leadership.

We have not been well acquainted with the Japanese. We have known some of them for more than 20 years. They have shown marvelous progress. We should say, if this gentleman is quoted correctly, that if in 20 years they should go from the "monkey stage" to the leadership of the world, and if they have done that marvelous and miraculous thing, they must be God-led, and if they are, why should we attempt to fight against them anyhow? They have achieved in 20 years what the rest of the race has achieved in countless thousands of years if this be true. Maybe they could "lick" any nation. They certainly can in the next 20 years if they progress as rapidly as they have in the last.

We are rather inclined to think that some of these remarks were due to excitement or to propaganda, desiring to bring pressure to bear upon the government for business reasons to bring back the fleet. Now we are for this. We are for it 150 per cent. We believe the Pacific fleet ought to be in the Pacific, and we believe that with the vast expenditure of money that is being made in our navy, and through the payment of the officers and men, it should be spent in those localities where the people have been led to expect it, and where they have been depending on it, as far as can be consistent with the program of the government.

We think that weight could be brought to bear upon the government along this line, but we wonder if through the other method an impression could be made upon thinking men in Washington. We would hesitate to assume the role of telling our government what they have done, and what they have not done in regard to the protection of our coast. For we can't help believing that they know a vast deal more about it than we do, and that they know more about it than they are going to let us know. Because if we knew it, we would probably make a speech about it at a public gathering somewhere, and then these rapidly developing Japanese would know as much about it as we would. And it wouldn't be wise to give that information, for "information is power."

In many ways, with the modern means of communication and the means of information, we are rather inclined to believe that a nation that is on the verge of financial disaster, if it has not already reached it, can hardly come across thousands of miles of water and attack Santa Ana or Los Angeles, without us having some idea of reasonable probability that the thing is to be done.

DEPOSITORS GUARANTEE HELPFUL IN MANY WAYS

The Federal insurance of accounts up to the amount of $2500, in banks that are connected with the Federal Reserve, is a fine thing in almost every conceivable way.

In the first place, it is helpful to the small depositor. Every depositor in the banks of Santa Ana can rest assured that, up to the amount of $2500 deposited in any particular bank, his money is as good as the government. Above that amount there is a partial guarantee.

This relieves from every depositor the element of fear that might accompany his account in the bank. He can well afford to take his money from the postal savings, and put it in any bank that is connected with the Federal Reserve, because he receives, we believe, one per cent more interest on such amount than he will in the postal savings.

There is another phase of it. People interested in preserving and protecting the banks in times of stress and crisis, are always exceedingly careful in making any comment upon a bank or a bank practice. This has been due to the consciousness that fear might take hold of the minds of the depositors in large numbers, and they in turn would proceed, en masse, to draw their respective amounts from the bank, and thus a "run" on the bank be created, which would exhaust the cash reserve, and close possibly an otherwise solvent bank. In fact, it is to guard against this very condition that rigid laws are enacted, penalizing any false statements concerning banks.

But while false statements never should be made, there is every reason why banking institutions, like all other institutions, should be subject to public criticism, for it leads most certainly to the correction of mistakes. We have always been particular, even to stretching our own conscience, to sustain banking institutions, because of the havoc that would result in any mistake that would generate undue fear.

Now the people need have no such fear. While one bank may differ from another in its practices, and it may be making serious mistakes, the depositors in that bank, as far as the depositors are concerned, need not worry over the security of their funds. Hence there not only should be a freedom in the discussion of the practices of the bank, but because of the manner in which deposits are made in the banks, namely, people turning their money without receiving anything personally in the way of security, the practices should be subject to personal and public criticism, just as public officials are subject to criticism, and are understood to be when they subject themselves to public office.

In fact, it is criticism alone which tends to clarify and straighten up matters, and eliminate mistakes. One of the finest values that comes as a result of this insurance or guarantee is this freedom it gives to the people to examine and pass upon any practice. Not only so, but the banks can now afford to invite this criticism, just as public utility organizations are doing. The aggregate and accumulated wisdom of all is greater than the wisdom of any single individual.

It is fortunate indeed that this institution, which plays such a vital part in the economic and industrial life of the nation, should now be placed in such a position where it can be assured of the protection which comes from the searchlight being turned upon it. We have heard bankers express themselves with joy over this condition. And the ones who are desirous of eliminating all practices of a questionable character will be the ones who will be glad of this condition.

It doesn't mean that everything will be "rosy," and that mistakes will not be made, but it does mean that they will be far fewer than in the past. So it helps in these three ways—first, insures the money; second, the restoration of confidence; and third, the protection of the institution.

THE GIRLS OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS

The death of Harrison Fisher the creator of the Fisher girl portraits has stirred sweet memories. His drawings of girl heads were romantic, sentimental, idealistic, lovely. They appeared at a time when girls were emerging from the Victorian chrysalis and learning to play games, to enjoy college life, to indulge "outlandish" whims. And the "new woman" was most attractive for she had a new fascination. Then came Harrison Fisher who for a time kept the busy and modern young woman of those days true to her womanliness. The war turned the favor against the Harrison Fisher type. Girls took on masculine traits, they bobbed their hair, they strutted, they smoked, they "went in" for frankness.

Strangely enough lately there has been a renewed interest in the Harrison Fisher womanliness. Only a few nights before the artist passed away Alexander Woollcott in his biweekly broadcast appealed for a book which he very much wanted. He told how he had gotten a copy which he much treasured and loaned it to a friend and the friend sharing his enthusiasm never returned the book, possibly thinking it was a present. In response to his appeal Woollcott found many people were still in possession of copies of the book which was the original Harrison Fisher Girl book.

Anyone who happened to be passing through his youth, during the time that Harrison Fisher was painting his beautiful girl's heads feels the passing of Harrison Fisher and with his death recalls days that were and girls who were more beautiful than any girls before or since because they were all influenced by the Harrison Fisher standard. And in memories' eyes no Mae West, or Greta Garbo type can approach the Harrison Fisher girl in lovely appeal.

Forest Fire Savings

Riverside Daily Press

Almost every week brings new testimony to the value of the work being done by the president's "forest army."

United States forest service officials have just checked the figures and discovered that in 1933, in the 18 national forests which lie in California, only 75,000 acres were swept by forest fire—and the average for the last decade has been 217,000 acres a year for that area.

Fire fighting costs have been reduced by 80 per cent, at a direct saving to taxpayers of approximately $300,000 in cash—to say nothing of the value of the timber saved, which is far greater.

Regional Forester S. B. Show declares bluntly that the C. C. C. is largely responsible for this saving. For years the forest service has yearned for a trained, disciplined and well-equipped reserve force available at a moment's notice.

The C. C. C. is just such a force; and forest service officials predict that it will be even more valuable in the future.

San Bernardino Sun

Mary is a Hollywood rhinoceros. She was playing a role in a Tarzan movie being made on a picture lot recently when she suddenly went in for realism. Alas! The screen Tarzan took to his heels in haste. The heroine—the human one, not the rhino—also fled. Then the indignant rhinoceros turned to the cameramen and charged their cage ferociously.

It is disheartening to know that Tarzan did not stay to do battle after swinging the lady into a tree-top. It is disillusioning to learn that the camera men were inside a cage all the time, doing their "shooting" from that safe haven.

Yet, when the picture is completed, everything will seem real enough to thrill and terrify uncritical audiences. Instead of laughing at the disclosed tameness of Hollywood jungles, readers ought to respect the directors' skill in producing the illusions which reach the screen.

There Seems to Be Something In This New Deal

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

CHILD CULTURE

When you shudder with fear
Lest you shortly may hear
The crashing of crockeryware,
When you murmur, in terror, "An earthquake!"
As a vase clatters down from a shelf,
But be placid and calm.
It is Tommy expressing himself.

Do not fuss when he opens the bird cage
And the inmate soars cheeping afar,
Do not moan with dismay
If you find him some day
Chucking stones at the neighbor's new car
Be always indulgent and gentle;
Do not stupidly seek to destroy
The masterful traits
That may swing back the gates
Of fame and success to the boy.

Though the urchin may drive you demented
Let his soul be unfettered and free,
Even though you may find
That you're somewhat inclined
To lay the kid over the knee.
Only smile when he breaks the piano;
It will soothe you a bit to recall
The things that you did
As a mischievous kid,
And that now you're a parent, that's all.

PLEASANT PROSPECT

The new tax on gas will enable consumers to save $37,500,000 yearly, which will enable them to buy that much more gasoline.

HAPPIER DAYS

Reno reports a shortage of divorces. Probably everybody that wants one has got it by this time.

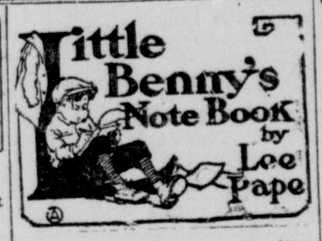
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Sattiday afternoon I had a dime and I invited Mary Watkins around to the drug store for a ice cream cone, and we was wawking around there tawking and laffing on account of me saying funny things, and I said, G, you certeny got pritty teeth when you laff. I meen you have them whether you laff or not but especially when you laff.

Do you think so, O I dont think so, Mary Watkins said.

Being modest, and I said, Sure you have, I bet you'd win first prize in any teeth show, and do you want to know something? Do you know what those little sharp teeth are called? I said, and she said, I guess they're all just called teeth.

No sir, they're called your canines, that means dog teeth, I said, and she said, O of all things I never felt so insulted in my life, Im going rite home.

Wich she started to, me saying, Hay, G, wait a minnit, that wasn't anything personel, G wizz, wait. Everybody has to have dog teeth, men and ladies both, G wizzikers all ladies have them because if they didn't they'd have empty spaces instead and that would be even werse, holey smokes.

Now you're insulting all ladies, now you're perfeckly terrible, Mary Watkins said, and I said, No I'm not, no I didn't, hay, G wizzikers listen, what I meant was, I meant ladies are diffrent, I mean when you tawk about ladies dog teeth, I mean when you mention those teeth in ladies you call them kitty teeth.

The group was composed of nine girls chosen by Miss St. Denis from the graduates of Denishawn. The tour would consume the early spring months and plans were underway for an eastern tour through autumn and winter.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

LABOR ASSETS UNDER NRA

Some day soon I shall present a carefully analyzed balance sheet of the assets and liabilities that the NRA has brought to labor. Meanwhile, today and tomorrow, I want to hint at some things NRA has brought to labor and some things that labor has still to achieve under the New Deal.

The New Deal has made three important contributions to labor by throwing the prestige of the federal government back of three principles that are fundamental to labor's welfare as well as to the stabilization of our national economy.

(1) The principle that the hours of labor must be determined primarily in terms of the length of working day and working week that will go as far as practically possible towards giving employment to all who are able and willing to work.

It will be difficult for business and industry ever to retreat from this idea that hours should be determined in the light of social need. NRA has gone some distance—although there is still a long distance to be gone—in so regulating hours that employment has been increased and the workers' hours reduced.

(2) The principle that minimum wage levels must be determined in terms of the need for a spread of buying power to keep industry a going concern.

It will be difficult for business and industry ever to retreat from this idea that the determination of wages must be made in the light of national economic policy and not solely on the basis of the cheapest bargain that can be made for the workers' time.

(3) The principle of labor organization and collective bargaining.

Never before has the federal government so fully got behind this principle. It will be difficult for business and industry ever again to paint the venture of "organized labor" as the wild-cat venture in radicalism that some short-sighted business forces have sought to brand it.

The intangible asset of federal support of the three principles here stated may prove more important than any attempt of business and industry to overthrow these gains of labor in the future.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

NOISY CHILDREN

"Here they come. I wish school lasted all day, every day in the week and the whole year round. The noise they make is something awful. Bill, Richard, stop that noise."

"Ma, O ma, give us our lunch quick, will you? We want to get back early so's to have a game before the bell."

"Can't you talk inside the house Why can't you—QUIET, I say. Both of you yelling at the top of your lungs. Get to the bathroom and wash yourselves. Lunch is ready when you are."

Away they went, the wall resounding to the tramp of their well shod feet and the power of their hearty lungs. Both talking at the top pitch, both making the most of their undoubted ability to be heard and felt throughout the house. The doors banged behind them, the light bits of furnishings fell before their onrush like apples in high wind.

"Boys, boys," screamed their excited, angry mother. "If you don't be quiet I'll take a stick and give you some reason for making a noise. I'm just sick of it. You HEAR me?" But the din never lessened. Lunch was served and devoured in a noise that would do credit to a football squad in full form in the dressing room after the game.

"Go on to school. Get out of here as fast as you can. You've given me such a headache—" but the words were lost in a final slam of the big front door, the last pounding rush down the steps.

Noise like this is destructive. It is all the more distressing because it is unnecessary. Boys and girls can be trained to respect the quiet of the home. They can learn to lower their voices and adjust their vocabularies to the home atmosphere. This can be done easier by implication than by direct instruction.

Set the house as you would a stage, so as to bring a certain response from those who enter. Strong light, bare hard floors, abrupt movements, loud tones, sharp accents, will bring a noisy response. Shout at children and they shout back. You stimulated them to noise and their nerves responded to it as nerves were intended to do.

Set the house for quiet and you will get it. Shade the windows so that the light is soft, not dim, but soft. Cover the floors with a sound deadening floor covering. Pad the table for service. Speak softly. The louder the eager children speak the lower your voice in response. They will respond to the mood of the house almost immediately.

Not that children should live in a dimly curtained, darkened and padded home. They need light and color and activity in the home and out of it. But, and this is important because children will have to adjust themselves to people and houses all their lives, there should be places and occasions where noise is out of the question. Adjust the atmosphere and the training will be easier.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)

NOT REALLY SO STUPID

We should like to allay some alarm that is felt in the hearts of the people of Orange county, through fear that our national government is leaving us unprotected from the wily Japanese. A speaker the other night endeavored to stir up sentiment to keep our Pacific fleet close to our shores here, and drew a picture of the dangers from Japan. He said this:

> The Pacific coast is the frontier of the nation. We defend it no better than 20 years ago, when the Japanese were hanging by their tails from trees, while today they are able to whip any nation.

There are a few suggestions we would make about that statement. In the first place, we are not entirely familiar with just how our departments of Navy and Army would protect or are protecting our coast. Frankly, there are some things that we have observed that we didn't know until we had gone along our coastline. We rather imagine there are some things that are known to the Navy Department of our government, and to our army leaders, that are not commonly known.

In fact, if it were commonly known, those who might sometime become enemies would learn of it, and sometimes in the secrecy of it, lies its main power. We do not believe that we can reasonably charge our government, after the millions of dollars which have been spent in the army and navy, in all these years, with being as dumb as this kind of suggestion would make them. No, we rather believe that we have had some wise leadership.

We have not been well acquainted with the Japanese. We have known some of them for more than 20 years. They have shown marvelous progress. We should say, if this gentleman is quoted correctly, that if in 20 years they should go from the "monkey stage" to the leadership of the world, and if they have done that marvelous and miraculous thing, they must be God-led, and if they are, why should we attempt to fight against them anyhow? They have achieved in 20 years what the rest of the race has achieved in countless thousands of years if this be true. Maybe they could "lick" any nation. They certainly can in the next 20 years if they progress as rapidly as they have in the last.

We are rather inclined to think that some of these remarks were due to excitement or to propaganda, desiring to bring pressure to bear upon the government for business reasons to bring back the fleet. Now we are for this. We are for it 150 per cent. We believe the Pacific fleet ought to be in the Pacific, and we believe that with the vast expenditure of money that is being made in our navy, and through the payment of the officers and men, it should be spent in those localities where the people have been led to expect it, and where they have been depending on it, as far as can be consistent with the program of the government.

We think that weight could be brought to bear upon the government along this line, but we wonder if through the other method an impression could be made upon thinking men in Washington. We would hesitate to assume the role of telling our government what they have done, and what they have not done in regard to the protection of our coast. For we can't help believing that they know a vast deal more about it than we do, and that they know more about it than they are going to let us know. Because if we knew it, we would probably make a speech about it at a public gathering somewhere, and then these rapidly developing Japanese would know as much about it as we would. And it wouldn't be wise to give that information, for "information is power."

In many ways, with the modern means of communication and the means of information, we are rather inclined to believe that a nation that is on the verge of financial disaster, if it has not already reached it, can hardly come across thousands of miles of water and attack Santa Ana or Los Angeles, without us having some idea of reasonable probability that the thing is to be done.

DEPOSITORS GUARANTEE HELPFUL IN MANY WAYS

The Federal insurance of accounts up to the amount of $2500, in banks that are connected with the Federal Reserve, is a fine thing in almost every conceivable way.

In the first place, it is helpful to the small depositor. Every depositor in the banks of Santa Ana can rest assured that, up to the amount of $2500 deposited in any particular bank, his money is as good as the government. Above that amount there is a partial guarantee.

This relieves from every depositor the element of fear that might accompany his account in the bank. He can well afford to take his money from the postal savings, and put it in any bank that is connected with the Federal Reserve, because he receives, we believe, one per cent more interest on such amount than he will in the postal savings.

There is another phase of it. People interested in preserving and protecting the banks in times of stress and crisis, are always exceedingly careful in making any comment upon a bank or a bank practice. This has been due to the consciousness that fear might take hold of the minds of the depositors in large numbers, and they in turn would proceed, en masse, to draw their respective amounts from the bank, and thus a "run" on the bank be created, which would exhaust the cash reserve, and close possibly an otherwise solvent bank. In fact, it is to guard against this very condition that rigid laws are enacted, penalizing any false statements concerning banks.

But while false statements never should be made, there is every reason why banking institutions, like all other institutions, should be subject to public criticism, for it leads most certainly to the correction of mistakes. We have always been particular, even to stretching our own conscience, to sustain banking institutions, because of the havoc that would result in any mistake that would generate undue fear.

Now the people need have no such fear. While one bank may differ from another in its practices, and it may be making serious mistakes, the depositors in that bank, as far as the depositors are concerned, need not worry over the security of their funds. Hence there not only should be a freedom in the discussion of the practices of the bank, but because of the manner in which deposits are made in the banks, namely, people turning their money without receiving anything personally in the way of security, the practices should be subject to personal and public criticism, just as public officials are subject to criticism, and are understood to be when they subject themselves to public office.

In fact, it is criticism alone which tends to clarify and straighten up matters, and eliminate mistakes. One of the finest values that comes as a result of this insurance or guarantee is this freedom it gives to the people to examine and pass upon any practice. Not only so, but the banks can now afford to invite this criticism, just as public utility organizations are doing. The aggregate and accumulated wisdom of all is greater than the wisdom of any single individual.

It is fortunate indeed that this institution, which plays such a vital part in the economic and industrial life of the nation, should now be placed in such a position where it can be assured of the protection which comes from the searchlight being turned upon it. We have heard bankers express themselves with joy over this condition. And the ones who are desirous of eliminating all practices of a questionable character will be the ones who will be glad of this condition.

It doesn't mean that everything will be "rosy," and that mistakes will not be made, but it does mean that they will be far fewer than in the past. So it helps in these three ways—first, insures the money; second, the restoration of confidence; and third, the protection of the institution.

THE GIRLS OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS

The death of Harrison Fisher the creator of the Fisher girl portraits has stirred sweet memories. His drawings of girl heads were romantic, sentimental, idealistic, lovely. They appeared at a time when girls were emerging from the Victorian chrysalis and learning to play games, to enjoy college life, to indulge "outlandish" whims. And the "new woman" was most attractive for she had a new fascination. Then came Harrison Fisher who for a time kept the busy and modern young woman of those days true to her womanliness. The war turned the favor against the Harrison Fisher type. Girls took on masculine traits, they bobbed their hair, they strutted, they smoked, they "went in" for frankness.

Strangely enough lately there has been a renewed interest in the Harrison Fisher womanliness. Only a few nights before the artist passed away Alexander Woollcott in his biweekly broadcast appealed for a book which he very much wanted. He told how he had gotten a copy which he much treasured and loaned it to a friend and the friend sharing his enthusiasm never returned the book, possibly thinking it was a present. In response to his appeal Woollcott found many people were still in possession of copies of the book which was the original Harrison Fisher Girl book.

Anyone who happened to be passing through his youth, during the time that Harrison Fisher was painting his beautiful girl's heads feels the passing of Harrison Fisher and with his death recalls days that were and girls who were more beautiful than any girls before or since because they were all influenced by the Harrison Fisher standard. And in memories' eyes no Mae West, or Greta Garbo type can approach the Harrison Fisher girl in lovely appeal.

Forest Fire Savings

Riverside Daily Press

Almost every week brings new testimony to the value of the work being done by the president's "forest army."

United States forest service officials have just checked the figures and discovered that in 1933, in the 18 national forests which lie in California, only 75,000 acres were swept by forest fire—and the average for the last decade has been 217,000 acres a year for that area.

Fire fighting costs have been reduced by 80 per cent, at a direct saving to taxpayers of approximately $300,000 in cash—to say nothing of the value of the timber saved, which is far greater.

Regional Forester S. B. Show declares bluntly that the C. C. C. is largely responsible for this saving. For years the forest service has yearned for a trained, disciplined and well-equipped reserve force available at a moment's notice.

The C. C. C. is just such a force; and forest service officials predict that it will be even more valuable in the future.

San Bernardino Sun

Mary is a Hollywood rhinoceros. She was playing a role in a Tarzan movie being made on a picture lot recently when she suddenly went in for realism. Alas! The screen Tarzan took to his heels in haste. The heroine—the human one, not the rhino—also fled. Then the indignant rhinoceros turned to the cameramen and charged their cage ferociously.

It is disheartening to know that Tarzan did not stay to do battle after swinging the lady into a tree-top. It is disillusioning to learn that the camera men were inside a cage all the time, doing their "shooting" from that safe haven.

Yet, when the picture is completed, everything will seem real enough to thrill and terrify uncritical audiences. Instead of laughing at the disclosed tameness of Hollywood jungles, readers ought to respect the directors' skill in producing the illusions which reach the screen.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

CHILD CULTURE

And the puppy has fled up the stair,
When you shudder with fear
Lest you shortly may hear
The crashing of crockeryware,
When you murmur, in terror, "An earthquake!"
As a vase clatters down from a shelf,
Do not lose your aplomb,
But be placid and calm.
It is Tommy expressing himself.

Do not fuss when he opens the bird cage
And the inmate soars cheeping afar,
Do not moan with dismay
If you find him some day
Chucking stones at the neighbor's new car
Be always indulgent and gentle;
Do not stupidly seek to destroy
The masterful traits
That may swing back the gates
Of fame and success to the boy.

Though the urchin may drive you demented
Let his soul be unfettered and free,
Even though you may find
That you're somewhat inclined
To lay the kid over the knee.
Only smile when he breaks the piano;
It will soothe you a bit to recall
The things that you did
As a mischievous kid,
And that now you're a parent, that's all.

PLEASANT PROSPECT

The new tax on gas will enable consumers to save $37,500,000 yearly, which will enable them to buy that much more gasoline.

HAPPIER DAYS

PARAGRAPHS

By Robert Quillen

If the government wold keep public confidence, let it prove that it can lick racketeers.

Mr. Lorimer needn't worry about Republicans. Nobody stays conservative when he's out of a job.

Agents no longer buy from a bootlegger and then arrest him, but Dad gives Willie an air rifle and then licks him for using it.

A subscriber asks the difference between hog and pork. In most places it is about 22 cents.

IF THE AUTHOR TOOK TEN PAGES TO SAY WHAT A MODERN WOULD PUT IN TEN WORDS, THE BOOK IS A CLASSIC.

Another objection to Repeal is that we'll never know whether 3.2 beer can send a nation to the dogs.

AMERICANISM:—Urging the young to develop high ideals and escape this money-madness; snubbing the poor and lifting your hat to a rich guy.

Still, many a fellow got 40 cents an hour for work when he was getting only 10 cents an hour for staying there.

You can make manufacturers improve anything. Just spend your money for the present model, and then it happens.

You can show the kid what war is like. Just let him pick up 90 pounds of stuff and go stand in the rain.

THE DECREASE OF ROUGHNECKS MAY BE DUE TO EDUCATION, BUT ALSO FEWER PEOPLE WEAR COLLARS SHARPENED BY A LAUNDRY.

The more successfully the government trails a few bad men, the more you wonder why it doesn't want the others.

If he tells about his sins at 30, that is confessing. If he does it at 50, he is bragging.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

LABOR ASSETS UNDER NRA

Some day soon I shall present a carefully analyzed balance sheet of the assets and liabilities that the NRA has brought to labor. Meanwhile, today and tomorrow, I want to hint at some things NRA has brought to labor and some things that labor has still to achieve under the New Deal.

The New Deal has made three important contributions to labor by throwing the prestige of the federal government back of three principles that are fundamental to labor's welfare as well as to the stabilization of our national economy.

These three principles are:

(1) The principle that the hours of labor must be determined primarily in terms of the length of working day and working week that will go as far as practically possible towards giving employment to all who are able and willing to work.

It will be difficult for business and industry ever to retreat from this idea that hours should be determined in the light of social need. NRA has gone some distance—although there is still a long distance to be gone—in so regulating hours that employment has been increased and the workers' hours reduced.

(2) The principle that minimum wage levels must be determined in terms of the need for a spread of buying power to keep industry a going concern.

It will be difficult for business and industry ever to retreat from this idea that the determination of wages must be made in the light of national economic policy and not solely on the basis of the cheapest bargain that can be made for the workers' time.

(3) The principle of labor organization and collective bargaining.

Never before has the federal government so fully got behind this principle. It will be difficult for business and industry ever again to paint the venture of "organized labor" as the wild-cat venture in radicalism that some short-sighted business forces have sought to brand it.

The intangible asset of federal support of the three principles here stated may prove more important than any attempt of business and industry to overthrow these gains of labor in the future.

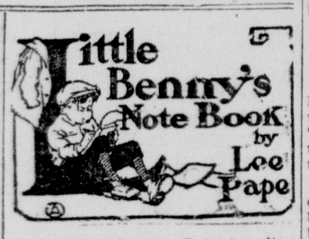
Little Benny's Note Book by Lee Pape



Sattiday afternoon I had a dime and I invited Mary Watkins around to the drug store for a ice cream cone, and we was wawking around there tawking and laffing on account of me saying funny things, and I said, G, you certeny got pritty teeth when you laff. I meen you have them whether you laff or not but especially when you laff.

Do you think so, O I dont think so, Mary Watkins said.

Being modest, and I said, Sure you have, I bet you'd win first prize in any teeth show, and do you want to know something? Do you know what those little sharp teeth are called? I said, and she said, I guess they're all just called teeth.

No sir, they're called your canines, that means dog teeth, I said, and she said, O of all things I never felt so insulted in my life, Im going rite home.

Wich she started to, me saying, Hay, G, wait a minnit, that wasn't anything personel, G wizz, wait. Everybody has to have dog teeth, men and ladies both, G wizzikers all ladies have them because if they didn't they'd have empty spaces instead and that would be even worse, holey smokes.

Now you're insulting all ladies, now you're perfeckly terrible, Mary Watkins said, and I said, No I'm not, no I didn't, hay, G wizzikers listen, what I meant was, I meant ladies are diffrent, I mean when you tawk about ladies dog teeth, I mean when you mention those teeth in ladies you call them kitty teeth.

Making me feel lucky.

The tour would consume the early spring months and plans were underway for an eastern tour through autumn and winter.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

NOISY CHILDREN

"Here they come. I wish school lasted all day, every day in the week and the whole year round. The noise they make is something awful. Bill, Richard, stop that noise."

"Ma, O ma, give us our lunch quick, will you? We want to get back early so's to have a game before the bell."

"Can't you talk inside the house Why can't you—QUIET, I say. Both of you yelling at the top of your lungs. Get to the bathroom and wash yourselves. Lunch is ready when you are."

Away they went, the wall resounding to the tramp of their well shod feet and the power of their hearty lungs. Both talking at the top pitch, both making the most of their undoubted ability to be heard and felt throughout the house. The doors banged behind them, the light bits of furnishings fell before their onrush like apples in high wind.

"Boys, boys," screamed their excited, angry mother. "If you don't be quiet I'll take a stick and give you some reason for making a noise. I'm just sick of it. You HEAR me?" But the din never lessened. Lunch was served and devoured in a noise that would do credit to a football squad in full form in the dressing room after the game.

"Go on to school. Get out of here as fast as you can. You've given me such a headache—" but the words were lost in a final slam of the big front door, the last pounding rush down the steps.

Noise like this is destructive. It is all the more distressing because it is unnecessary. Boys and girls can be trained to respect the quiet of the home. They can learn to lower their voices and adjust their vocabularies to the home atmosphere. This can be done easier by implication than by direct instruction.

Set the house as you would a stage, so as to bring a certain response from those who enter. Strong light, bare hard floors, abrupt movements, loud tones, sharp accents, will bring a noisy response. Shout at children and they shout back. You stimulated them to noise and their nerves responded to it as nerves were intended to do.

Set the house for quiet and you will get it. Shade the windows so that the light is soft, not dim, but soft. Cover the floors with a sound deadening floor covering. Pad the table for service. Speak softly. The louder the eager children speak the lower your voice in response. They will respond to the mood of the house almost immediately.

Not that children should live in a dimly curtained, darkened and padded home. They need light and color and activity in the home and out of it. But, and this is important because children will have to adjust themselves to people and houses all their lives, there should be places and occasions where noise is out of the question. Adjust the atmosphere and the training will be easier.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)
